EFFICIENCY IN PRODUCTION.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Perhaps some tardy ones have not yet made the final seasonal culling of laying flocks; if not, these few hints may be timely. Layers, whether hens or pullets, ought to be handled before being committed to the pen for the winter, to establishing their right to be allowed a place there. Unless a bird is structurally built for egg production there is no use taking up valuable space with her; therefore, the first thing to do is to ascertain her points and then decide according to pass or to reject her. A potential good layer will have a fairly long and wide back; width particularly must be looked for across the shoulders and hips, and the abdomen must be well developed. If a hen is in lay the abdomen should be soft and pliable, the gizzard being distinctly felt and the other organs being freely movable. The breast bone should be covered, but not with fat, and should not be sharp.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

PUBLICAN FINED £10

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

Mrs. Mary J. Mangan, publican, Sorrento road, Dalkey, was fined £10 on a charge of allowing intoxicating liquor to be consumed on her premises at 7.10 p.m. on 4th July last.

The Justice directed that the conviction should be endorsed on the licence.

Sergeant P. Murphy said that when he visited the premises he found twenty-five men there. Four of them gave wrong names. Some of the men had drink and others were waiting for drink.

For the defence it was stated that the date mentioned was the day of the Dalkey regatta, for which Mrs. Mangan had presented a cup. The cup was won by the Dalkey crew, and some of the crew went to Mrs. Mangan's premises to have a drink on the occasion.

The men who were found on the premises were fined sums varying from 5s. to 10s.

POSSESSION OF CLOTHING

YOUNG GIRL CONVICTED

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

Kathleen Gibson, an eighteen-year-old waitress, with an address off the North Circular road, appeared on remand, charged with the larceny of a silk dress, the property of Bridie O'Carroll, another waitress, from a hotel in Parnell street, and with being in possession of a silver fox fur and other articles of clothing for which she failed satisfactorily to account.

It was now stated that the fur was worth about £15.

The accused girl said that when she had finished her work on an evening in September she went to the linen press in the hotel where her things were and rushed them into her attaché case. The silk dress must have got into the case by mistake. She got the fur as a present from a young man in Norwich to whom she had been engaged and who was now working in a hotel in London. They had parted company. The other articles of clothing had been given to her by a young man with whom she was friendly and who travelled for the sale of women's clothing. What he had given her were samples.

Having given her evidence, the girl fainted, but soon recovered after attention, and requested that the hearing of the case should be continued.

Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, who defended, said that the girl never had been in trouble before. There was employment waiting for her, and he asked that she should be given the benefit of the Probation Act.

The Justice convicted the girl and directed that she should be put back until 12th inst.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted.

TAILOR ON CONVERSION CHARGE

SECURITIES MONEY INVOLVED

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

Samuel Millar (52), Shelmartin avenue, Fairview, tailor, was charged on remand with having between December 18, 1936, and April 12, 1937, fraudulently converted to his own use a sum of £25 entrusted to him by Patrick Gavin, Mountjoy street, Dublin, as security for the proper discharge of his employment.

He was also charged with having between October 25, 1935, and August, 1936, fraudulently converted to his own use a sum of £100 entrusted to him by John Small, a native of County Galway, as security for the proper discharge by the latter of his duties as manager of a tailoring establishment to be opened by Millar either in Sligo or Galway.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. Herman Good, solicitor (Herman Good and Co.) defended.

Detective Officer Cryan stated that he interviewed Millar on September 1 of last year and asked him if he had received any letters from Small. He replied "No." Witness produced a bundle of letters, and told Millar that they were his replies to Small. He asked him if he was prepared to make a statement covering his entire transactions with Small, and he replied "I would not do that yet." On September 29 of the same year witness again called to his premises and Millar handed him a prepared statement. Millar had a room in premises in Pearse street. The furniture consisted of a small bench and a table. There were some patterns in the room and two or three half-finished garments. There was no staff.

Replying to Mr. Good, the witness said that he had known the accused man—who had been apprehended on a warrant—for about five years. He did not know of anything against him.

The accused man was further remanded for a week on continuing bail.

FATAL ROAD ACCIDENT

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

John Lee, a young man with an address in Parnell avenue, Parnell road, Harold's Cross, Dublin, was further remanded until next Friday on continuing bail, charged with stealing a motor car, the property of Charles F. Gordon, Lisburn street, Dublin, from outside the Leinster Cinema on August 10th last, and with having caused the death of John Ward (13) of Forbes lane, Dublin, by striking him with a motor car at the junction of Greenmount lane and Greenmount avenue, Harold's Cross, on the same date.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, and Mr. McKeever, solicitor (Messrs. McKeever and Son) defended.

TUNNY IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Great shoals of tunny have been reported off the coast of New South Wales, no doubt, as they do here, following the herrings. This is good news for game fishermen, for if the fish run to the size that are caught off Scarborough, then the lucky man who lands one during the course of the angling competitions next year stands a fair chance for the £1,000 prize for the heaviest fish. Apart from the sporting aspect, there is also the prospect of the new industry, that of canning tunny fish—which has just been opened up—benefiting greatly from the fish coming in so close to the coast.

"CLOSE TO OVER"

LONDON'S NO-MISTAKE GIRLS

Have you ever tried talking continuously for eight hours a day? London's Stock Exchange 'phone girls, who regularly perform this feat, are getting ready for a burst of activity after the annual summer "slack-off." Within a few days the "big noises" of the financial world will be streaming back to the city from their yachts and country houses. A desultory once-a-day 'phone call to their broker from a holiday retreat will develop into a barrage of inquiries for prices, stocks, market opinions.

The stockbrokers' telephonist will be ready. No noise of talking, shouting, tape-machines or bells can disturb her swift serenity or effortless concentration. A special telephone system known as the "house" 'phone, links up the brokers and jobbers and the Stock Exchange building. It enables the operator to "call" any member of her own firm from the floor or the exchange to answer a call from a client. A light shows up on a board, and the broker has only to cross the narrow width of Throgmorton street to reach his telephone. Within thirty seconds of getting the information required by his client the broker will be back in the 'phone box; a plug is pushed home and the 'phone girl will have dialled and connected him at a speed which leaves the observer gasping. To do this she has to carry all clients' 'phone numbers in her head; no mean feat in itself.

Throgmorton street is lined with these "telephone rooms." They vary from a shelf carrying two or three 'phones to a large room with a switchboard worked by an operator and containing a row of sound-proof telephone boxes. Many of the boxes are old and shabby. They give no suggestion of the wealth which is won and lost on these telephones, which are the arteries leading to the throbbing heart of the world's financial centre.

Even the jargon of a Stock Exchange telephone girl sounds disjointed to a casual listener. She is probably talking to nine or ten people at once. By her clever manipulation of the switchboard keys each man is kept quite unaware that she is not giving him her undivided attention.

"Close to over. . . . Yes, Mr. Brown, your Nickels are a little better this afternoon. . . . We'll take a farthing limit to sell. . . . New York opening through in three minutes. . . . Steel are a quarter bid. . . . Yes, I'll repeat that order. . . . Hold on for a few moments, please. . . ."

A disc falls and in a split second the telephonist has answered. It is a private line from an important client who takes precedence over all other calls. She writes down his instructions on a narrow strip of paper, and repeats them quickly. As the last syllable falls from her lips she hands the paper to the waiting dealer, who rushes off without a word. A good Stock Exchange man, it is said, can always do the hundred yards in ten seconds if he is buying on a rising market, when every second counts.

Thousands of pounds worth of stock may change hands in a few minutes as the broker goes from jobber to jobber, bidding, offering, buying and selling. A mistake of one figure or fraction in the telephone message in his hand might cause someone to loose a small fortune. But the Stock Exchange 'phone girl does not make mistakes. She can divide her mind into at least a dozen sections, which all work independently, clearly and accurately.

With tenseness and activity all around her, the Stock Exchange 'phone girl remains calm and smart and immaculate. She can afford to be well-dressed. Girls with her ability are hard to find and wages are good for this exacting work. She must, for example, be able to take in a rapid string of prices from a man who gabbles them and is gone. These 'phone girls sometimes perform feats of memory which would do credit to a professional memory expert.

A good telephonist on the Stock Exchange has almost as extensive knowledge of the market as a dealer. Yet no woman is ever allowed to set foot inside the Stock Exchange, except once a year for two minutes—on Armistice Day, when the rule is relaxed.

Strangely, many Stock Exchange 'phone girls have never even seen their firms' offices or set eyes on the clerks and typists who do the all important and technical office routine. The 'phone girl's working hours are spent entirely at the switchboard.

VICHY IN SEPTEMBER

SPA'S SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The season in Vichy, which began unusually early in May this year with many visitors stopping over en route to London for the Coronation, is continuing most active in these last September days, always one of the pleasantest seasons in the French spa. Its favoured and protected situation in the heart of France, in the Allier valley, assures it mild weather, which is manifested by the fact that the trees are still verdantly green and the flowers blooming in the parks and at the Sporting Club.

Even after the departure of the 1,500 doctors of 35 nations, who were in town for the International Congress on Hepathic Insufficiency, many of whom seized the occasion to remain for a few days, varied languages are still to be heard around the springs. Lady Priestly is at the Hotel du Parc, where Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt are stopping during their September cure. Mrs. Irene Warfield and Mrs. Dorothy Kemp, of New York; Mr. F. S. Sears, of Florida, and Mrs. Kemp, of London, are at the same hotel.

At the Hotel des Ambassadeurs, Mussein Sibry Pacha, Under Secretary of State for Egypt, and M. Papeians de Morchoven, Minister Plenipotentiary for Belgium, are staying. Also noted about town have been Baronne de Flaghac, who is at the Hotel d'Aix et Chambéry, Comte A. de Saint-Maurice, who is at the Radio, and General Jordan, who is at the Astoria.

The two-weeks comedy season which will close the Grand Casino in Vichy for this year is bringing to the spa some of the best of the recent Parisian successes, among them "Prosper," from Gaston Baty's Théatre Montparnasse, and the celebrated comedian, Arnaudy, in a farce, "Mon Bébé," adapted from Margaret Mayo's play, "Baby Mine." The daily afternoon and evening open-air concerts are, of course, continuing.

The little folk are finding these delightful days in Vichy especially to their liking, for the new Children's Physical Culture Park, which has been crowded all summer, has a fortnight of competitions arranged, which include races, rope climbing, football, basket-ball and general athleticism.

Incidentally, when he was in Vichy last week to open the new third class Lardy Baths, M. Marc Rucart, Minister of Public Health escaped from his official receptions, and was found on a bench in the children's park enjoying the Punch and Judy show with the juvenile audience! The Guignol Theatre, directed by M. Déléaz, changes its programme daily, just as the Grand Casino does, its repertory being both extensive and delightful.

BY AN UNKNOWN MASTER

MYSTERY PAINTING IN RHODESIA

A picture has been lent to the Bulawayo (Southern Rhodesia) Public Library which is arousing considerable interest. It is the property of Mr. L. C. Kernick, in whose family it has been for two or three centuries, but how the family first came by it no one knows.

The original canvas is 49 inches by 39 inches, and is mounted on newer and less coarse canvas. Various repairs have been done, but so perfectly as to be almost invisible. There are indications that the picture was once hurriedly cut out of its frame—perhaps, by a thief—and thus separated from the artist's signature.

The subject, depicted in oils, is Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane. The Master is robed in scarlet and holds a spade. Mary Magdalene kneels before him in a yellow-brown dress, with blue girdle. The general tone is burnt sienna with a grey-blue morning sky for background. There are distant hills and Jerusalem appears in the middle distance. Morning sunlight strikes Mount Calvary and three crosses, with wonderful effect.

In the right centre, under a palm grove, is a formal garden. A figure is carrying a pitcher of water towards some steps leading from this garden, and in the foreground are large trees and luxuriant shrubs.

Local people with a knowledge of pictures conclude this discovery is by an unknown old master.

RECITAL AT CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

MR. LESLIE PAUL'S FINE ORGAN PLAYING

It was rather disappointing to see such a poor audience for the organ recital given under the auspices of the Leinster Society of Organists and Choirmasters in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, last night, by Mr. Leslie D. Paul, organist and choirmaster of Bangor Cathedral, North Wales. Mr. Paul is a very distinguished player of the organ, and, as he had obviously taken great trouble to present a programme that might well be described as popular in its appeal, one would have expected a large audience.

There was much of interest in his work, which began with a Voluntary in C minor by Greene. Played with restraint and nicely contrasting effects, it served as an effective prelude to the excellent things that followed. "A Little Tune," by Felton, was admirable in its pastoral atmosphere, and the organist painted some delicate tones on muted stops. In the earlier part of the night the outstanding work was the Toccata and Fugue in D minor of Bach. The opening was very impressive, especially in the clear cut enunciation of the phrases. The Fugue was treated with rare understanding, the theme being carried through in an exceptional range of tones, the stopping being wonderfully effective. Handel's Musette and Minuet was a study of strong contrasts, though the Minuet sounded somewhat too strenuous. There was a lovely atmosphere of meditation in the treatment of Karg-Elert's "Before the Image of a Saint." Restful also was the reading of an Andante Cantabile by Widor, the use of the muted stops being very artistic. The full power of the Cathedral instrument was well brought out in the colourful treatment of Reubke's Introduction and Fugue, based on the 94th Psalm. Prichard's Prelude and Choral Preludes by Ernest Walker completed a most enjoyable programme.

"INVASION" OF FREE STATE

MANŒUVRES TO REPEL LANDINGS

The Irish Free State is combating an imaginary invasion of the South Coast, involving landings at Kinsale and Courtmacsherry, County Cork.

The "invasion" provided the basis yesterday of the largest scale military manoeuvres the Free State Army has ever undertaken in the South. Nearly 3,000 troops of the Regular Reserve and Volunteer Forces were engaged along a front of several miles. The manœuvres, which will continue for some days, were watched yesterday by Major-General M. Brennan, Chief of Staff.

SCENES AT RAND GOLD MINE

ARMED POLICE STOP BATTLE OF NATIVES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
JOHANNESBURG, Tuesday.

Thirty police, armed with rifles, bayonets, and tear gas, under the command of Captain A. A. J. Smart, had to be called in last night to stop a pitched battle between 2,000 natives that developed in the compound of a gold mine here.

The cause of the fighting was a dispute between Pondo and Basuto tribesmen, the mine concerned being the property of the West Rand Consolidated Mines, Ltd.

The riot was successfully quelled, but trouble broke out again this morning underground.

Captain Smart, who is the District Commandant, thereupon went down the shaft at the head of a few men, arrested the principal trouble-makers, and restored peace.

There were a few minor casualties among the natives, but no police casualties.

MANSION HOUSE DANCE FOR ACHILL FUND

The arrangements for the dance in the Mansion House, Dublin, on Saturday evening, in aid of the Achill Dependents' Fund are now complete. A number of Cabinet Ministers are expected to attend.

THE THEATRE IN PARIS

BRILLIANT AUTUMN SEASON

With two months still to go, the theatrical section of the Paris International Expedition of 1937 reached a high spot this month with the German Artistic Week, which packed the Theatre des Champs Elysées night after night, with certain events overflowing to the huge Salle Pleyel. A night of dancing, including the Gunther School of Munich, the ballet of the State Opera of Berlin, and solos by Harald Kreutzberg; a night of German leider; magnificent performances of Wagner and the Paris creation of Richard Strauss's "Ariane à Naxos," all helped to put the Parisian theatre goer in tune for a big season at an unusually early date.

The month also brought the Ensemble of Songs and Dances of the Red Army to participate in the Expedition, both choruses and ballets being of a high order. Side by side with the popular Russian songs, from Georgia, the Ukraine or the Cossacks, the great operatic arias were sung, and dances such as the famous sailors' dance, the "Yablotchko," executed.

At the same time, the purely French season has gotten under way with amazing velocity. The Paris Opera gave its first performance of "L'Aiglon," which will figure on the bill all winter, the work having been created at Monte Carlo last season. The poem by Edmond Rostand has been set to music by Arthur Honegger and Jacques Ibert, and adapted by Henri Cain. The great historic scenes of Napoleonic history, ably brought out by the settings and by projections for which M. Klausz is responsible, succeed in making this an impressive spectacle. Fanny Heldy, in the rôle of L'Aiglon, which Sarah Bernhardt interpreted so magnificently, does an excellent piece of dramatic singing.

M. Charles Dullin has revived his ever-popular "Volpone" at the Atelier. Based on Ben Jonson's masterpiece, this is one of the best things that his company has done in the past ten years, and Dullin himself in the title rôle and Francois Vibert in the brilliant rôle of Corbaccio make a powerful team.

Sacha Guitry had adopted the British and American practice of trying out his new plays in the provinces, and his latest work, "Quadrille," has just been given its first performance in Orleans. Guitry himself plays the role of Philippe de Moranes, and Gaby Monday, who last year did "Queen Victoria," is his partner for the first time, playing Paulette Nantueil. Paris is eagerly awaiting its first performance in the capital. It is said that the single set for the play, entirely of solid natural woods, is worth a quarter of a million francs.

Among the "discoveries" of the Paris Exposition is the bringing out of the talent of a young dramatic company, "Le Rideau Gris." Their efforts have been quite ambitious and crowned with success, and we may expect to see them on the Paris stage most of the winter, as it is rumoured that they intend to abandon their status as amateurs and register themselves as professionals, a well-merited change. An Italian tragedy, "La Duchesse d'Amalfi," and a Greek tragedy, "Hecube" of Euripidus figure on their programme, and bring them full houses to the charming Comédie des Champs-Elysées.

As his autumn offering René Rocher will give us "Le Mariage de Figaro" at the Vieux-Colombier, the immortal comedy by Beaumarchais being newly set, costumed, and generally invigorated with a sparkling cast, including Henri Rollan, Roger Gaillard, Jeanne Provost and Genia.

All managers are planning to run these productions through the fall months, and daily new announcements foretell one of the best theatrical seasons in recent Paris history.

MAPONDERA'S GRAND-SONS

HOW THEY WILL TRY TO PLEASE HIM

A native family in the Darwin area of Southern Rhodesia have recently been having what we would call a run of bad luck. According to native ideas, however, what Europeans look on as misfortune is, in fact, the result either of a witch's spell or of the displeasure of an ancestral spirit. One, therefore, ascertains where the root of the trouble lies by consulting a witch-doctor, who "throws the bones," or, perhaps, the hereditary spirit-medium of the clan may, while in a trance, get a line on it.

By some such means this native family in Darwin has learned that its troubles are due to the annoyance of grandfather Mapondera because his obsequies were not properly carried out at the time of his death.

Now the late Mapondera, a petty chief in his time, was tried, sentenced and duly hanged for a spot of bother, including robbery and murder, in 1902, so his grandsons have come to Salisbury cemetery to collect some earth from his grave. When they get back to their kraal in the back-blocks of Darwin, they will consult the witch-doctor as to certain necessary ceremonies, during which a beast will be killed and the earth from the cemetery placed in the carcase, which will be duly buried. In this symbolical burial, and the sacrifice of a beast, due respect will have been done to Mapondera, and, it is to be hoped, his uneasy spirit will cease to cause misfortune to his descendants and their cattle.

SOME NEW EGG DISHES

Eggs, in one form or another, usually appear at some time during the day on the menu. There may be eggs and bacon for breakfast or an omelette for lunch, eggs boiled for the children's tea and scrambled for somebody else's supper. No matter how they are cooked, their food value remains undisputed. They are a most important source of good protein and of valuable minerals, including iron, and the fat contained in the yolk of an egg is particularly rich in Vitamin B.

However, whether you judge an egg by its food value or not, here are one or two ideas for egg dishes that are simple and economical, as well as sustaining and appetising:—

BREAKFAST

TOMATO AND EGG SCRAMBLE.

Skin 4 tomatoes and stew till tender in a little butter. Season with salt, pepper and ½ teaspoonful dry mustard. Add two beaten eggs; cook for a further 3 or 4 minutes, stirring all the time, and serve on buttered toast.

LUNCH

EGG FRICASSEE.

4 hard-boiled eggs, 2 sticks celery, 1 shallot, ½ oz. butter, ½ oz. flour, ½ pint milk, ½ teaspoonful dry mustard, little mace and salt.

Melt the butter; add the chopped shallot and celery, cut in short lengths. Fry gently, but do not allow the onion to get very dark in colour. Stir in the flour, add the milk, bring to the boil, stirring meanwhile. Add the salt, mustard and mace, and simmer gently for 10 minutes. Cut the eggs in slices, arrange on a fireproof dish or in a pie-dish, strain the sauce over the eggs, reheat in a moderate oven, garnish with chopped parsley, and serve immediately.

TEA

EGGS WITH FRIED ROES.

½ cupful milk, 2 eggs, 6 herring roes, 1 oz. butter, 3 rounds of buttered toast, salt, pepper and mustard.

Wash and dry the roes. Simmer them in the milk in a saucepan for about 5 minutes. Drain and place 2 roes on each round of toast. Keep hot. Beat the eggs and add salt, pepper and ¼ teaspoonful dry mustard. Then melt the butter in saucepan. Add the egg mixture, and stir to prevent it sticking to the pan. When cooked and creamy, pour over the toast.

"ALL-YEAR-ROUND" ICES

A refrigerator is no longer a luxury for the few, but is a necessity for a well-planned kitchen. Most housewives who own a refrigerator are anxious to try their hand at ice cream making. The possibilities are almost unlimited; for ice cream is now "in season" almost the whole year round. Many delicious and unusual sweets can be made to tempt your friends, and the children will be delighted with the treats mother prepares for them. Even without a refrigerator you can still try these recipes. The creams can be frozen in a covered basin or earthenware jam jar placed in a bucket of chopped ice mixed with salt.

BANANA ICE CREAM.

1 egg, ½-pint milk, 2 teaspoonsful castor sugar, 1 small tin unsweetened full-cream condensed milk (not skimmed), 3 bananas.

Beat the eggs with half a pint of milk and stir in the sugar. Heat gently over a low flame, stirring all the time, until the mixture thickens. Remove from the flame and allow to cool. Mash the bananas smoothly, and add the full-cream condensed milk. Then add the custard mixture and mix thoroughly. Turn into the ice-cream mould and put into the freezing chamber. Beat well every 10 or 15 minutes to keep the texture smooth.

APRICOT PRALINE ICE.

1 small tin apricots, 1 tin full-cream condensed milk (unsweetened), ½-pint egg custard, 2 ozs. chopped or ground almonds or walnuts.

Strain the juice from the apricots and cut up the fruit finely. Mix the juice with the custard. Whip up the full cream condensed milk slightly and add to the custard mixture. Stir in the fruit and the chopped nuts, place in the mould, and put into the freezing container. Beat with a wooden spoon every 10 or 15 minutes until frozen to the desired consistency.

APPLE SORBET.

This is a very refreshing fruit ice for those who prefer a sharp, piquant flavour.

4 large baked apples, juice of a lemon, 1 tablespoonful sherry, 2 ozs. castor sugar.

Remove the apples from their cores and beat to a smooth pulp. Add the sugar lemon juice and sherry, and freeze slightly, beating frequently to keep the texture smooth. This ice should not be frozen hard.

CHEESE FOR SUPPER

SOME NEW IDEAS

NEW ideas for supper dishes are always very welcome, particularly when we haven't very much time at our disposal to cook and prepare a meal. Cheese is a good stand-by. It's economical, easily prepared, and makes a really substantial meal. In these nutrition-minded days it is well known that cheese has a high food value—indeed, according to several dieticians it is even more nourishing than meat. Here are one or two recipes for cheese suppers that will go down very well on chilly autumnal evenings:—

HOT CHEESE SANDWICH.

Bread and butter, grated cheese, mustard, 1 egg ½ teacupful milk, clarified fat or butter.

Spread four or six slices of bread with butter, mixing a little mustard with the butter before using it. Trim the crusts off the bread, and then sprinkle the slices with as much grated cheese as the butter will take up. Press the cheese well on to the butter, place two slices together, and then cut in convenient-sized pieces. Beat up the egg on a plate, and mix it with the milk and a little salt. Dip the sandwiches into this, and let them soak for a minute or two; then fry them in a small quantity of hot clarified fat or butter, browning them on both sides. Serve hot, sprinkled with a little grated cheese.

Of course, there are people who are afraid to have cheese last thing at night in case they have a disturbed night. Mustard, however, lessens the risk of indigestion considerably, because it quickens up the flow of the digestive juices. So remember to use a little mustard in the cooking of the cheese dish or take mustard with it. Then the actual task of digesting will be helped enormously.

POTATOES AND CHEESE.

2 new-laid eggs, pepper, salt, mustard, cold potatoes, ¾ pt. milk, grated cheese.

Thoroughly beat eggs, add milk and season to taste with pepper and salt; then grease a large baking dish, and put in first a layer of slices of cold potatoes. Sprinkle with grated cheese, pepper, salt, and a little dry mustard; add carefully 2 tablespoonfuls egg flip and milk; repeat the process till the dish is full, the top layer being one of the grated cheese. Bake slowly and serve in the dish in which it was cooked.

CHEESE FONDU.

Cheese fondu is a most nourishing vegetarian dish.

1 cup stale breadcrumbs, 1 cup cheese (cut fine), 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoonful butter, ½ teaspoonful salt, ½ teaspoonful mustard, pinch of pepper.

Mix bread, milk and cheese in double boiler. When cheese is melted add eggs. Beat thoroughly and season. Cook until thick and perfectly smooth. Serve with crisp thin toast.

WHEN BABY CRIES

THE WEANING PROBLEM

Baby may cry for a number of reasons. He may be uncomfortable, hungry, angry, in pain, tired or unwell, or he may only be bored and want to be petted. Mother should try to find out why baby is crying, in case it indicates some serious condition for which a doctor should be consulted.

It baby stops crying immediately he is picked up and fondled it may be only "temperament," for which the cure is a little gentle discipline. Ignore him and let him have his cry out once or twice until he learns to understand that your presence in the room does not necessarily mean he must be immediately picked up. But make sure his crying is not due to something else. Make sure, for instance, that baby is quite comfortable, that his napkins do not chafe, and that they are changed frequently. See that his clothing is not too tight, and that he is not over-clothed. Tapes and ribbons should not be tied tightly.

On a warm day let baby lie on a blanket, wearing as little clothing as possible, so that his limbs are quite free, and he can kick and wriggle to his heart's content.

Baby's cries may be due, perhaps, to the fact that he is not taking his food properly and putting on normal weight. All babies cry during the weaning stage when first started on solid foods. This may be because however carefully mother prepares, cooks and sieves the fruits and vegetables the indigestible walls round the tiny food cells remain intact, and baby's delicate digestion is being overtaxed to break down the tough fibres which pass unchanged through the very finest sieve.

Recently, however, science has come to mother's aid and provided a solution to this weaning problem. Science has given us homogenised foods—homogenised vegetables, fruits and soup, which can be added to the milk feed.

These scientifically-prepared foods are made from choice fruits and vegetables in such a way that the cell walls, which are untouched by ordinary sieving, are broken down, and baby can absorb the goodness straight away. Baby's tummy is saved all the hard work, in a manner of speaking. Consequently, he does not cry so much, because he is saved most of the digestive trouble which frequently starts when baby is weaned.

TRAINING OF VOLUNTEER PILOTS

FIRST SCHOOL OPENS

The first of the new Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve Schools opened at Gatwick and Gravesend aerodromes on Friday last.

A dozen military aircraft are now based at each of these airports for instruction. Of these, six are Tiger Moths for elementary training, and six are Hawker Hart two-seater day bombers for more advanced flying tuition.

The first candidates selected for recruitment to this new Reserve were sworn in on Friday as sergeant-pilots.

Later some will have opportunities of being promoted to commissioned rank on merit. Members of this new Air Force Reserve, who need not have any previous flying experience, must all be of good education, up to school certificate standard, and between the ages of 18 and 25. A dozen pupils have already arrived at Gatwick, and about 14 are at Gravesend. Instruction commenced during the week-end.

The chief flying instructors are Flight-Lieut. A. D. Bennett and Flight Lieut. J. B. Tatnell, who both hold the highest category certificates from the R.A.F. Central Flying School.

The instruction will include dual, solo, and instrument flying, aerobatics and forced landing practice. Instruction in ground subjects and navigation will be given in London.

Pilots join the R.A.F.V.R. for five years in the first instance, and they can then extend their service. Their tuition is to be given at week-ends and on summer evenings. Pilots will be encouraged to put in as much time in the air as possible, but it will not interfere with their normal civil employment. Fifteen days must be spent in camp each summer, and a bonus of £25 per year is given to all members.

WOLFE TONE TO REPLACE NELSON

PROPOSAL BY CLARE COUNTY COUNCIL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ENNIS, Tuesday.

The Clare County Council desires the figure of Nelson on the well-known Dublin monument to be replaced by that of Wolfe Tone. At a meeting of the Council yesterday the following resolution was adopted unanimously, on the motion of Mr. J. P. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Sean Hayes:—

"That we, the members of the Republican Clare County Council, desire to place on record our disapproval of the attempt to defame the memory of Theobald Wolfe Tone, and, in the name of the citizens of Clare, we reaffirm our faith and trust in the doctrine for which he died. We call upon all the members of the Government of the twenty six counties to confirm this resolution by giving every assistance, both financially and otherwise, in having removed from Nelson's Pillar, Dublin, the figure of a British Admiral and replacing it with the figure of the father of republicanism."

Mr. Hughes said that comments were unnecessary on such a resolution, and Mr. Hayes said that there was no member of the Council would disagree with it, no matter what his political convictions were.

Mr. Halpin suggested the Council should ask that the lion and unicorn be removed from the Royal Dublin Society's premises in Dublin.

Mr. McMahon—And the monument of Queen Victoria removed from Leinster Lawn.

"Yes," said Mr. Hogan, T.D., "and why not turn it into Kathleen ni Houlihan."

Water Works Schemes.—Meath County Council granted the Meath Board of Health permission to borrow £2,757 for a water supply scheme for Dunshaughlin, £2,148 for a sewerage system scheme for Dunboyne, and £2,531 for a water supply scheme for Nobber and £700 for provision of sanitary convenience at Laytown and Bettystown.

HELP FROM THE SKIES

AUSTRALIA'S FLYING DOCTORS

MEDICAL AID FOR THE "OUTBACK"

AUSTRALIA has long been the home of social experiments, writes Beula May, the well-known Australian writer, some bad and subsequently discarded, others good and now settled practice, a few of such excellence as to be copied by other countries. The virility of the people, the extent and varied nature of the country and the range of climates are the ingredients from which experiment is bound to proceed.

One of the most outstanding in recent years is the establishment of the flying doctor service to the great outback. It has been going on quietly and efficiently and, therefore, with insufficient fuss to attract much outside attention. But it has been and is extraordinarily successful, and for the sheer romance of it and of its originator, the Reverend John Flynn—"Flynn of the Inland" is a household name in Australia—one has to go back to the days of Grace Darling for comparison

News has just been published in England of the establishment at Broken Hill, in the far west of New South Wales, of the sixth base of the Australian Aerial Medical Services, as it is called, and with it John Flynn sees his life's ambition well on the way to completion.

At the present time, when air casualties on this side of the world are causing much concern, there is the cheering fact that, in Australia at least, more lives have been saved by the use of aeroplanes than have been lost in accidents.

In the sparsely settled territories of the Southern Continent, flying doctors cover immense stretches of country from day to day, so that men, women and children, struck down by accident or illness, may have the best of attention. In almost every case attended by a flying doctor, so far, the life of the patient has been saved.

It is Australia's pride that John Flynn founded the first aerial medical service in the world and that America, for one, has followed suit.

In 1912, when aeroplanes were more or less primitive and comparatively few, and wireless was also going through the experimental stages, John Flynn dreamed of using them in the years to come for errands of mercy. I met this now grey-haired and elderly minister of the Gospel before leaving Sydney, and I was impressed by the quiet power of his cheerful manner

The Australian Governments—State and Federal—have recognised his flying doctor service as a national necessity. Most of the support, however, comes from wealthy private citizens, organisations, and the general public, which gives what it can to enable this sky pilot in physical reality to carry on his splendid work.

A parent wireless station is the nerve centre of each service base which is situated near the flying doctors' homes. Scattered for miles round each parent station, in the homes of the isolated present-day pioneers, are pedal-operated transmitting and receiving sets, "transceivers," as they are called. They were invented by Mr. Alfred Traeger, another Australian. The power of these sets is generated in much the same way as riding a bicycle.

In cases of sickness, wirelessed through one of these sets directions from the parent station are received by the same set, and if medical treatment is required the flying doctor sets off in his 'plane to attend the patient. If hospital treatment is necessary, the patient is placed on a stretcher in the 'plane and flown to the nearest hospital, sometimes three or four hundred miles away.

These "transceivers" are also used for communication between neighbours separated by, perhaps, a hundred miles, and the transmission of reports of the news of the outside world. This is a great boon, and mitigates much of the loneliness of these people living out in the "never-never land." In fact this, and the knowledge that a 'plane will swoop from the skies with help if needed, has given the settlers new courage to carry on hundreds of miles from the civilised parts of Australia.

THE FIRST BASE

The first aerial medical base was founded at Cloncurry, in Queensland, in 1928. There were many difficulties to overcome, but the tradition of service became so established that "the mantle of safety," as Dr. Allan Vickers, one of the first flying doctors, describes the services, is now spreading over the whole of the outback.

There are daily illustrations of this splendid work. I remember an Adelaide woman, accompanied by a doctor, flying to her husband, who was lying seriously ill at Hall's Creek, in Central Australia—a journey that would have taken weeks before the advent of the aeroplane. A few days earlier, a man from Bali, in the Dutch East Indies, made a trip by 'plane to the bedside of his wife, who was dangerously ill in Melbourne. That journey was one of 4,000 miles, but by 'plane it only occupied three days.

A few days after a transceiver had been installed in a station homestead a neighbouring settler travelled 50 miles to use the set to ask assistance from the parent station. His wife was ill, and he received instructions how to treat her. The doctor heard nothing further for three weeks. He then received a letter, which had taken ten days to reach the base, to say that the woman had fully recovered after the treatment which the husband had been told to give her.

Another man, a miner, working in rough mountain country, was taken suddenly ill with a severe internal hæmorrhage. The doctor, who was called up at the Port Hedland base, realised that medical attention was necessary. He set off in his 'plane to the nearest possible landing place, which was fifty miles away. Fellow-miners placed the patient in a motor truck and set off to meet the 'plane, which was waiting for them when they arrived five hours later.

The truck ride had given him a bad jolting and he arrived almost bloodless. He was so feeble that the doctor could not feel his pulse. After having been carefully placed on the ambulance stretcher from the 'plane, which was lifted to the level of the truck, he was carried into the "John Flynn," and the air journey to the Australian Inland Mission Hospital, 110 miles away, was so comfortable that the miner fell asleep. He has now completely recovered and is back at the mine.

The pathetic stories of isolated people dying before medical aid could be sought are growing fewer and fewer, and men and women are no longer being killed by terrifying journeys over rocky bush tracks on their way to a hospital miles away now that doctors regularly fly on their errands of mercy.

With the gradual spreading of this mantle of safety across Australia, men from the cities are taking heart and venturing into the little known parts of the country, with their wives and young families, to undertake the important tasks of opening up the interior of Australia.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

APPLICATION FOR AN INJUNCTION

ALLEGED INTERFERENCE WITH PROPERTY

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

John Walsh, 13 Merchant's quay, Dublin, sought a mandatory injunction against Arthur H. Smith, 139 Upper Dorset street, Dublin, requiring him to remove certain works which, the plaintiff alleged, had been erected on his premises at 3 and 4 Upper Dominick street, Dublin. These premises adjoin the defendant's premises at 139 Upper Dorset street.

It was alleged that Smith trespassed on the plaintiff's premises in April and May, 1937, and erected, without permission, a number of windows, ventilator pipes and other pipes, one of which was caused to carry water to a sewer, the property of the plaintiff. The plaintiff also asked damages for trespass.

Judge Davitt said that, while the plaintiff owned the premises, he could do what he liked, and he suggested a settlement on the basis of the defendant's acknowledging the plaintiff's rights and indemnifying him as regards costs.

The hearing was adjourned.

Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. P. F. O'Reilly) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Clancy (instructed by Messrs. Reddin and Reddin) appeared for the defendant.

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY

SALE OF WORK

The annual sale of work in aid of the South American Missionary Society brought many visitors to the C.M.S. Hall, 35 Molesworth street, Dublin, yesterday, and the stalls were well patronised. At the opening ceremony the hon. secretary welcomed the workers and expressed regret at the absence of Miss Carr, who recently met with a rather serious accident; Mrs. Drought, and Mrs. Couser, whose indisposition rendered her still unable to take charge of the Sweet Stall. In all cases these breaches in the ranks, said the hon. secretary, had been willingly and promptly filled by other workers determined to see that the organisation was carried through as heretofore.

He referred to the fact that, although the Society had been without a full-time secretary for the past few years, there had been no falling off in the income. The income for the past five years was as follows:—1932, £1,997; 1933, £2,032; 1934, £1,973; 1935, £1,858; and 1936, £1,912. During that period expenditure had been reduced by about half.

They had a candidate come forward from Dublin—a young man who wished to work in South America. His case was taken up by the Society, and it was hoped that he would be accepted in the near future and sent abroad.

The stalls and hollholders are:—"White Elephant"—Mrs. Duggan and Miss Roberts; "Ferns"—Miss Carr; "Work"—Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Barton; "Sweets"—Miss Craig and Miss Nicholls; "Meath"—Mrs. Nicholson and Miss Smith; "Universal"—Mrs. Rafter. Each stallholder was supported by a large staff of helpers.

During the day the visitors were entertained by violin solos played by Miss Cecily Huggard, with Miss Madge Lougheed at the piano.

The sale will be continued to-day, opening at 12.30.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Mr. Gordon Bottomley : A Famous Covert : Lady Warrender : Relics of Handel : The London "Tubes"

The Irish Army

Most Irish citizens possess only the vaguest ideas as to the strength of their fighting forces. And as to the Air Arm, popular estimates of the number of our fighting 'planes vary from twelve to two hundred machines.

Actually the Saorstat's permanent Army numbers 5,883 men of all ranks, and the reserve force runs to 6,050 men. Add to these figures 23,000 men in the Volunteer Force and you have the total fighting army, on which the Saorstat spends about £1,500,000 annually.

Our Air Force is decidedly less formidable, embracing, as it does, only twenty-four 'planes, fourteen of which are classed as first line aircraft.

Ours, however, is by no means the smallest air force in the world. Actually that distinction belongs to Honduras, the South American republic, which can boast of only three machines. Against the figures, again may be placed the fact that no less than eight countries, including Austria and Bulgaria, have no fighting aircraft whatsoever.

Lady Warrender

It is only within the last few years that Lady Warrender came to visit Ireland. She first came to Punchestown, and then, two winters ago, she went to the West. There she hunted with the Galway Blazers, and so thrilled was her ladyship with her first experience over the stone wall country that she returned last season to repeat it.

Now she has come again, and is down in Connemara at the moment, where, I hear, she is to enjoy some cub hunting.

Lady Warrender, who is the wife of Sir Victor Warrender, a prominent man in England, is herself a great rider to hounds. She rides astride and hunts in Leicester.

Knockroe

Talking about cub-hunting reminds me that I had a long chat with Mrs. Marshall on that subject when I met her at Naas on Saturday. She had spent the morning around Knockroe before she came on to the races.

Knockroe is one of the most famous coverts in Ireland, and is, of course, in the Kilkenny country. It is always drawn on the day of the opening meet. This covert is not just gorse alone, but a thick growth, with plenty of trees—a miniature forest. You can wait for hours before a fox breaks, but when that does happen it is worth waiting for, as you get a terrific run.

Mrs. Marshall is, of course, in her element at Knockroe; for it provides the best sport. She thinks nothing of cubbing all day from 7 a.m. until 4 in the afternoon.

Handel and Dublin

When I heard the other day that the house in Halle where Handel was born was to be acquired by the municipal authorities for conversion into a Handel Museum, I wondered if Dublin might have something to contribute to the collection.

Undoubtedly, something recalling the first public production of his "Messiah" would be a worthy contribution to an representative collection of objects connected with the great composer.

The theatre in Fishamble street, Dublin, in which Handel conducted "The Messiah" in public for the first time in 1742, has long since disappeared, and the site is now occupied by an engineering firm. It is possible, however, that in the archives of Mercer's Hospital there is a musical score or some other object recalling that great day when the Oratorio was performed in aid of the hospital's funds.

A Yorkshire Poet

One of the most interesting visitors to Dublin at present is Mr. Gordon Bottomley, the well-known English poet and dramatist. He has been visiting Connemara, where he spent some time with Dr. Oliver Gogarty, and is making Dublin the centre from which to tour other parts of the country.

Rather unusually for a Yorkshireman, Mr. Bottomley now lives in Lancashire, and he has not found that industrialism interferes unduly with poetic inspiration. He was born in the Yorkshire town of Keighley in 1874, but his first play was staged at the Birmingham Repertory Theatre in 1915. This was "King Lear's Wife," but his most popular play is "Gruach," which was staged in Glasgow and London some thirteen years ago and was awarded the Femina-Vie Heureuse prize in 1923. "King Lear's Wife" was also presented at His Majesty's Theatre, London, in 1916, and established the reputation of its author in the theatre.

Mr. Bottomley is also the author of "The Crier by Night," "Britain's Daughter," "Midsummer Eve," "The Riding to Lithend," "Laodice and Danae," and a volume entitled "Scenes and Plays." Only the prejudice against plays in verse has prevented Mr. Bottomley from achieving a wide popularity in the theatre, but with the growing acceptance of verse plays his work should become more widely known in the future.

It is probable that Mr. Bottomley is better known in Ireland as a poet; his "Poems of Thirty Years" and contributions to many anthologies having made his poems familiar to a large number of readers.

An Autumn Wedding

Trafalgar Day, October 21st, has been chosen for the marriage of Viscount Jocelyn and Miss Clodagh Kennedy. It is an appropriate day, inasmuch as the Earl of Roden's son and heir is in the Navy. He has taken a house at Portsmouth and proposes to take another in Northern Ireland—somewhere in County Down.

The wedding in St. Margaret's, Westminster, will be one of the most important of the London season, and Mrs. Edward Kennedy has invited all her Irish friends.

Miss Kennedy is creating a precedent in her decision to wear a diamond tiara instead of the traditional wreath of flowers. Few brides have ever done so before, but Miss Kennedy objects, it seems, to artificial flowers. Her wedding gown of pale gold will be topped by a Limerick lace veil in conjunction with the tiara.

A Rushed Rush Hour

Not often does the London tube system break down, but when it does the confusion is indescribable. When I was last in London I had to get to Maida Vale one evening in a hurry. It was 6 p.m., at the height of the rush hour, and I was in Oxford street.

Having got my ticket, I went below, but was not quite prepared for what I saw. Every corridor was packed tight with people, and only by great pushing and heaving did I reach the platform. Here it was impossible to move, and I had to wait for about ten minutes before I found an official, who told me that a breakdown had occurred on the line lower down.

I decided I had better take a taxi to my destination. It took me exactly twenty-five minutes to fight my way up into the streets again, so dense were the crowds.

The whole incident was grimly suggestive of the horrors of an air raid, if the tube stations were used as refuges by the citizens in the next war.

BRITISH FILMS

PRIME MINISTER'S INTEREST

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the British Prime Minister, became "Neville Chamberlain, film star," last night.

Under the shadow of an enormous telescopic camera, he stood with a turbaned Himalayan chieftain, in grizzly beard and brilliant robes, while flashlights exploded and shutters clicked.

The Prime Minister was "shot" at one of the theatres at the studio which he toured with Sir Albert Clavering, of the Conservative central office. Mr. Chamberlain's sombre black overcoat and Trilby hat made him a "star" among the thousands of celebrities and extras, some of whom saw only his back and thought he must be an actor playing in a sober rôle until they heard that the Prime Minister was seeing the mysteries of film-production.

Mr. Chamberlain chatted with technicians in dozens of departments, and at the end said that he was astonished to see that film-production was such a vast industry.

ZION CHURCH, RATHGAR

This school, for Bible Study, will reopen to-morrow, at 8 p.m., in Zion Parochial Hall. A special feature of these study courses is the notes which are issued weekly. The large numbers that attend week by week from all sides of Dublin is an indication of the desire for simple, systematic Bible teaching on sound lines.

LORD NUFFIELD'S GIFT

FOR ORTHOPÆDIC SURGERY

Lord Nuffield has placed £100,000 in the hands of trustees, among whom are the Earl of Athlone and the High Commissioner for South Africa, for the development of orthopædic surgery and of an organised service for the early discovery and cure of crippling disabilities, on a carefully considered plan, in South Africa. The plan will be worked out during the next few months, and will be based on information to be gathered and collated by Professor G. R. Girdlestone, Nuffield Professor of Orthopædic Surgery of Oxford University and honorary surgeon of the Wingfield-Morris Hospital, who will be paying a special visit to South Africa for the purpose during December and January.

GREYSTONES CONCERT

A very entertaining concert, organised by Miss Sydney Jameson, was held in the Schoolhouse, Greystones, County Wicklow. A number of well-known musicians took part, and the proceeds are being used to provide a new piano for the schoolhouse. Apart from her work as organiser, Miss Jameson contributed a number of songs. Other singers who took part were Mr. Frank Cowle, Miss Madge Lougheed and Mr. Robert McCullagh. Mr. R. R. Figgis played piano solos, and Mrs. E. McNeice gave a number of recitations. Mrs. A. Yoakley played the accompaniments.

NEW BATHS FOR SANDYCOVE

£750 PRIZES FOR DESIGNS

The Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation have decided to erect baths at Sandycove, in surroundings which, it is claimed, will rival in attractiveness those of any other seaside resort in Ireland or Great Britain. The baths will cost £100,000, and Saorstat materials and products are to be used as far as possible.

As will be seen from our advertising columns, designs are invited from architects and engineers of the Saorstat, for which prizes amounting to £750 will be awarded to those placed first, second and third by the assessors. Subject to any necessary Departmental approval, the author of the design placed first will be employed to carry out the work. He will be required to support the scheme before any inquiry ordered by the Minister for Local Government.

The general scope of the scheme provides for the demolition of the existing Sandycove Baths; the construction of a new swimming pool, necessary buildings and part of a new roadway, the lay-out and forming of ornamental gardens and approaches, and a car-park with space for a miniature railway and station. The scheme provides for the linking up of the Marine Parade, Dun Laoghaire, with Sandycove avenue, North, by a road 40 feet wide.

FOR COMPETITIONS

The swimming pool will be 330 feet long, and laid out in lanes suitable for championship events. As it is to be primarily a bathing pool ample provision will be made for non-swimmers and indifferent swimmers, as well as for the more proficient. The diving stage is to have firm boards at 10 and five metre levels, and spring boards at one and and three metres, with additional spring boards at different positions round the pool, and the depth of water under the 10 metre board will not be less than 15 feet. The pool will comply with Olympic and international requirements, and, as far as is practicable, with the wishes of the Irish Amateur Swimming Association. The platform surrounding it will be at least 10 feet wide, and all persons entering it will pass through a foot-bath and under a continually running shower. There will be seating accommodation for 3,000 people.

The buildings will include entrance hall, lounge, offices for superintendent and staff, first-aid station, attendants' rooms, and dressing cubicles. There will be 80 slipper baths, including 80 hot and cold sea, hot and cold fresh and medicinal, and hot and cold showers; ultra-violet ray treatment and facilities for sun bathing. There will also be a café, suitable for dancing, with orchestra, and sun loggia.

The installation of purification equipment in the pool is to conform to the best modern practice. The chemical pre-treatment will be carried out by one of the several processes of specialist firms. There will be filtration, aeration, and sterilisation of all bath water.

ORNAMENTAL GARDENS

In addition to continuous ordinary circulation, the pumping and piping arrangements will enable sea water to be pumped from the sea into the settling tanks, from the settling tanks into the pool, from the settling tanks to the filters, and from the sea direct to the pool.

The lay-out of the ornamental gardens and approaches to the bathing establishment will be left to the discretion of the competing architects, but a formal open-air palm garden, with bandstand, will be included. In addition, parking for 300 cars is to be provided. Space will be left for a terminal station for the projected miniature railway from the site of the existing Dun Laoghaire baths. Provision will also be made for a site for an enclosed bath, open throughout the year, and in which water will be warmed to approximately 70 deg. F.

WEDDINGS

COL. THE O'CALLAGHAN AND MISS M. D'OYLY BATTLEY

At the Parish Church, Delgany, Co. Wicklow, the wedding took place yesterday of Colonel The O'Callaghan and Miss Muriel D'Oyly Battley, only daughter of the late Major Charles Wilson Battley and of Mrs. D'Oyly Battley, Belvedere Hall, Bray, Co. Wicklow.

The Service was conducted by the Rev. J. T. Cummins.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. John D'Oyly Battley, wore a smart ensemble of maize-coloured wool georgette, with a fox fur and a nigger brown hat. She carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums, and wore a diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by Miss Synolda Cholmondeley Clarke, who wore a golden brown dress with a velvet toque to match, and carried a bouquet of golden chrysanthemums.

Mr. Conor O'Callaghan-Westropp acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held for relatives and intimate friends at Belvedere Hall, Bray, by the bride's mother, who wore a smart black wool georgette ensemble, trimmed with blue and petunia.

During the afternoon The O'Callaghan and Madame O'Callaghan left for the West of Ireland.

MR. E. O'SHAUGHNESSY AND MISS H. P. HANNEN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday.

The marriage took place at St. James's Church, Spanish place, London, W., this afternoon of Mr. Edward O'Shaughnessy, son of the late Edward O'Shaughnessy and of Mrs. O'Shaughnessy, of Cahirciveen, County Kerry, and 24 Curzon street, London, W., and Miss Heather Patricia Hannen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hannen, of Ouseleys Wargrave, Berkshire, and Devonshire House, Piccadilly, W. White flowers, lilies, carnations and chrysanthemums, with Pampas grass, were used in the scheme of decoration.

Father John Caulfield, of Pinner, officiated, and was assisted by Father R. E. Fairhall.

The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. L. C. D. Hannen, owing to the indisposition of her father. She wore a gown of ivory crepe Romaine, with a very long train from the skirt. The material was draped down the skirt in front in "waterfall" fashion. A long spray of orange blossoms extended from one shoulder, to be tucked in at the waist. She wore a veil of fine ivory tulle, held by a head-dress of mother-of-pearl orange blossoms, and instead of a bouquet she carried a white and gold bound prayer book.

There were four bridesmaids—Miss Rose Waithman, Miss Betty Cobham, Miss Patience Nicholl and Miss Betty Robinson. Their dresses were of ivory moss crepe, with short trains from the skirts made with simple bodices fastened with a silver "zipp" down the gauged fronts. They, too, wore short veils of ivory tulle, held by swathed bands of the dress material, and they carried sheaves of Auratum lilies.

Mr. Victor P. Vickerman acted as best man.

Mrs. Hannen held a reception at the Royal Institute of British Architects, in Portland place, W.

The honeymoon will be spent in a motor tour through Italy and South Germany.

MR. F. O'CONNOR AND MISS MALA NORRIS

The wedding took place on Monday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Donnybrook, of Mr. Frank O'Connor, second son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. O'Connor, 247 North Circular road, Dublin, and Miss Mala Norris, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Norris, Marlborough road, Donnybrook. The Service, with Nuptial Mass, was celebrated by the Right Rev. Monsignor Molony, P.P., V.G.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a rose angora two-piece, with fox fur trimmings. The bridesmaids were the Misses J. Norris and B. O'Connor. Mr. P. O'Connor was best man, and the groomsmen were Messrs. Ted O'Connor and James Norris.

A reception was held at Jury's Hotel by the bride's mother, and afterwards Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor left for the South of England, the bride wearing a navy blue costume, with silver fox furs.

THE O'CALLAGHAN

By a notice published in last night's Iris Oifigiuil Colonel George O'Callaghan-Westropp, of Lismehane, O'Callaghan's Mills, County Clare, gives notice that, by deed poll dated 11th August, 1937, he would, as the direct descendant and representative of Donal O'Callaghan, of Mount Allen, in the County of Clare, who was in the seventeenth century styled "The O'Callaghan," assume the use of the style and title of "The O'Callaghan" as from that date.

A Sportsman's Review

Irish Golfer's Experience in Scandinavia : A Hockey Suggestion : Serious Situation in Munster

By PAUL DENIS

A Difficult Gallery

Accustomed as we are to the reverential hush and decorum of championship golf matches here, the final of the Danish Championship recently provides an amusing contrast. The young Dublin player, Roger Greene, was taking part in it, and he was suitably astonished by the Danish attitude towards the royal and ancient game. The course at Springforbi, near Copenhagen, is situated in the Royal Park, and as bunkers are regarded as somewhat unsightly by the Royal Family, there are only about twenty-five on the whole course. The final was played on a Sunday, and as the Royal Park is a playground for the city, the course was swarming with children, who were keen addicts of tig and other active games, while their parents had picnics and quiet games of cards along the edge of the rough. The gallery was largely composed of cyclists, and the majority of those on foot were amateur photographers, with a horrifying desire for securing close-ups of a shot actually being made. At various intervals cadets from a military riding school situated in the Park would gallop past furiously in groups of about fifteen, and the match would have to be held up until they had passed by. To cap everything, when the players arrived at the eleventh green they discovered a men's choir performing in full voice—it was certainly a memorable experience, but no great help to golf. After consistently outplaying his opponent, Jonssen, up to the greens, the Irishman was beaten at the thirty-fifth hole by the Dane's deadly putting.

ROGER GREEN.

S. DE LACY.

A Contrast in Sweden

Roger Greene also reached the final of the Swedish Amateur Championship, played at Bastad during the previous week, but that was a far more orthodox affair, played on a course rather resembling Grange, and kept in perfect condition. After playing consistently well throughout the earlier rounds, Greene's putting broke down in the final, and he was defeated by P. H. Godfrey-Smith, a young Londoner. Golf is becoming very popular in both Sweden and Denmark, and the Crown Prince of the former country plays frequently at Bastad, having 36 holes with Greene and Colonel H. A. Boyd on the day after they arrived. The standard of play in both countries is quite high, so Greene accomplished a good performance in reaching both finals. The selectors might well keep an eye on him for next year's international matches.

The Hockey Leagues

After years of blundering along with an unwieldy senior league competition, the Leinster Hockey Branch have infused fresh life and interest into the game by their eight-club senior league and the qualifying section of the same size. The promotion and relegation scheme will keep interest very high in both competitions, and every single match will have its own individual importance; for every senior team will fight hard to try and avoid going down to the qualifying division, while of those in the latter class the former senior teams will be keen to regain their status, and the promoted middle leaguers will be thirsting to sample senior hockey. Since the leagues have been reduced to eight teams each, the branch ought to give careful consideration to a later start with their programmes. With only fourteen league matches to be played by each team, there should be no congestion with the programme, so a start could be made with the various leagues towards the end of October, instead of at the beginning of that month. Some clubs find it impossible to get their grounds into proper condition before the last Saturday in September, and with only one practice behind them have to embark on their league campaign under the present system. This puts them at a considerable disadvantage frequently through no fault of their own, and it could, I fancy, be avoided from next season onwards. A start with the leagues on the last Saturday in October would give every club the opportunity to have a couple of practices and a "friendly" match or two, and they would then all be able to start the serious business completely prepared and fighting fit. After all, if every league match is to count, every club should have an opportunity of starting fully prepared.

Where Hockey is Failing

The Irish Hockey Union must be a trifle worried over the reports which seem to indicate that the game is losing ground in Munster. The news that the famous Limerick P.Y.M.A. Club would not be functioning this year is followed by the information that Old Cork Grammarians are almost certain to resign from the Senior League owing to their difficulty in fielding a representative side. This is a serious business, for it is not to the advantage of hockey to have it concentrated in one or two centres like Dublin and Belfast; and, also, the South has produced some excellent players for Ireland in recent years. The find of last season was S. de Lacey, of P.Y.M.A. With his tremendous speed and clever stick-work he made a big impression in all three international matches at outside-right, while prior to that R. Power and J. McCarthy had played successfully for their country. In the inter-provincial series the Southern province has done quite well in recent years, so every effort should be made to save the game there. One suggestion which might be of assistance would be to urge all the Dublin clubs to arrange fixtures, whenever possible, with Limerick and Cork teams. It would improve the latters' hockey and add interest to their season. The game must be kept alive in Munster.

Home Footballers' Chance

Although in some quarters it is reckoned as a disaster that the cross-Channel clubs have been unwilling to release players for the Irish Association football team to meet Norway at Oslo in the World's Cup, it is, to my mind, a good thing to see home players getting a chance in one of the two most important matches of the year. The other, of course, is the return match against the Norwegians at Dalymount Park next month. The Irish tour on the Continent last Easter was most successful, and increased our prestige considerably, but it did not really hold much interest for followers of the game here, since only two or three regular home players were considered worthy of inclusion. The fortunes of the XI. recently selected for the journey to Oslo will be followed much more keenly, since everyone who attends the matches in Dublin knows the majority of the players well. Of course, the team may not prove sufficiently good to beat Norway, but unless we are defeated very decisively I hope the selectors will again confine their attentions to the Free State clubs for the return match. It must be a big encouragement to our players to know that they are in the running for a place on their country's team.

MIDWIVES' BOARD

A special meeting of the Central Midwives' Board, Saorstat Eireann, in Dublin on Monday heard charges alleged against three midwives. The following members were present:—Sir Edward Coey Bigger, M.D. (Chairman), Miss N. Healy, R.G.N., S.C.M. (Vice-Chairman), Mrs. M. Martin, S.C.M.; Miss A. Smithson, R.G.N., S.C.M.; Dr. Ninian Falkiner, Mrs. M. Price, S.C.M.; Dr. R. M. Corbet, Mrs. K. Clarke, M. Stafford, Esq. The Secretary (Miss O. Meyler) was in attendance. Having heard the evidence the Board decided in the first case to postpone giving their decision for three months; in the second case to suspend the midwife for twelve months, and in the third case to caution the midwife to be more particular as to carrying out the rules of the Board in future.

LIGHT AND ITS LAWS

The theory of light and its laws were dealt with in a lecture by Mr. E. J. Davidson, a member of the Illuminating Engineering Society, at the meeting of the Society in the Engineers' Hall, Dublin, last night. The application of the laws to practical needs was illustrated by means of models and slides, and Mr. Davidson gave an explanation of various terms as well as of the "lumen" method of calculation and design.

Mr. F. X. Algar, President of the Society, presided.

O'CASEY FILM WITHDRAWN

DEMONSTRATION AT OMAGH

SCENES BOOHED BY UNIONISTS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

OMAGH, Tuesday.

FOLLOWING a hostile demonstration at Omagh Picture House on Monday night on the showing of the film "The Plough and the Stars," it was announced to-day in Omagh that the film, which was booked for three nights, had been withdrawn.

The play deals with incidents in connection with the Rising in Dublin in 1916, and the various episodes were received with boohs and cheers by the audience, this being particularly noticeable while the taking of the G.P.O. was being shown. The climax was reached when British soldiers removed the Republican flag from the G.P.O.

STINK BOMBS USED

During the performance stink bombs were freely used, and the audience had a most unpleasant time. At the conclusion a crowd of Unionists assembled outside the picture house and boohed, and subsequently a great crowd of Unionists paraded the streets and sang songs.

BUILDING TRADE AGREEMENT

DAIRY HANDS' DEMANDS

The agreement whose terms ended the long Dublin building trade strike was signed yesterday in the Department of Industry and Commerce by representatives of the workers and the employers.

The only union of the group affected which did not endorse the settlement is the Operative Plumbers' and Domestic Engineers' Union, which was not a party to the settlement.

Notice of demand for increased wages has been served by the Workers' Union of Ireland on behalf of its members engaged in the dairying industry on the Cowkeepers' Association. Improved conditions also are sought.

Among the demands are a wage of £4 per week for milkers of a maximum herd of 15 cows during May, June and July, and a maximum herd of 20 cows during the remainder of the year, and £3 3s. for milk servers of 18 years or over. It is sought to ensure that milkers will not be requested to engage in the serving of milk or driving of cows, or do other work than milking, and that no workers under 15 years may be employed as milkers.

The notice concerns some one thousand workers.

It is understood that a basis on which negotiations may be conducted has been reached by the representatives of the Irish motor traders and the engineering trades group in the Dublin Trades' Council.

The parties have been considering the classification of work and the wages to be paid in the motor assembly industry in the Free State at a conference under the auspices of the Department of Industry and Commerce.

It is arranged that the talks will be resumed on October 28th.

RECENT GENERAL ELECTION

SOME UNSATISFACTORY CONVENTIONS

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

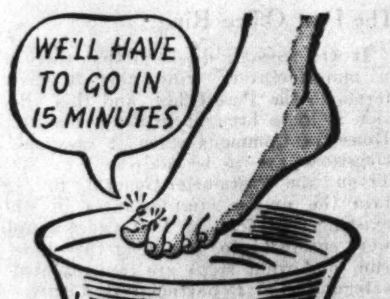
That the Fianna Fail Party had considerable difficulties with local branches of the organisation in connection with the recent general election is indicated in the report of the honorary secretaries, which will be submitted to the Ard-Fheis next week.

"The principal work of the year," it says, "was the preparation for the General Election. During the period January to April preliminary conventions were held in all constituencies for the purpose of making arrangements and providing for re-organisation in connection with the General Election.

"Conventions for the selection of candidates at the General Election were held during the month of May, and the results, in some constituencies, were so unsatisfactory that a special meeting of the National Executive was convened on May 31st, at which it was decided to take power to add, where necessary, a name or names to the panel of candidates selected by constituency conventions."

The report draws special attention to the amendments to the rules to be proposed by the National Executive at the meeting of the Ard-Fheis next week, and expresses the hope that these will be passed by that body, as they are considered necessary in the best interests of the organisation. It adds that the General Election took place on July 1, and the results of the election and plebiscite "were, on the whole, satisfactory."

There are, the report says, 1,954 branches of the Fianna Fail organisation, of which eight are in Scotland. The constituencies with the largest numbers are Tipperary 118, and Clare 107.



WE'LL HAVE TO GO IN 15 MINUTES

CORNS walk out in quarter-of-an-hour

Corn sufferer—why go on hobbling?—when you could be jumping for joy to-morrow! Don't think your corn is too bad to shift—every night, hundreds of really bad corns come floating out of tired old feet—into little warm footbaths of Radox! Just read this from a man who had suffered for ages:—

"I can say from experience that Radox is far superior to any other bath salts on the market. I have had bad feet since I can remember, and have tried dozens of preparations without success. About a week ago I decided to give Radox a test. The result was wonderful. After 15 minutes' immersion, I was able to remove my corns, root and all." P. N.

HOW OXYGEN AND SALTS WORK TOGETHER

Do this to-night—slip YOUR aching feet into a soothing Radox foot-bath . . just a few Radox crystals in a basin of hottish water. You'll feel the busy bubbles of oxygen burrow deep down through your acid-choked pores . . . clearing the way for the active salts that loosen the corn's vice-like grip—till it almost floats out of your feet—easily, and without a twinge of pain. It's almost worth while having corns to feel the ecstasy of relief as Radox eases them out. Come on now—limp your last to-day—get a packet of Radox right now! All chemists sell Radox in 1s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. packets.

HOUSING SCHEME INQUIRY

OBJECTIONS HEARD FROM LANDOWNERS

SEVERAL objections to the Dublin Corporation's £250,000 scheme for the acquisition, under compulsory purchase orders, of areas in Donore avenue and Crumlin road and their vicinities, were heard at the Local Government Department's sworn inquiry, which was held yesterday by Mr. E. O'Maille in the City Hall, Dublin. The areas to be acquired by the Corporation are to be used for housing of the working classes.

Opening the inquiry, Mr. Ignatius Rice, Law Agent to the Corporation, said that they were prepared to pay the full market value for the property which they proposed to acquire compulsorily.

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. A. O'Hagan and Son, solicitors) appeared for Mrs. Annie Day, 74 Donore avenue, whose premises comprise 3¾ acres laid out as a training ground for thoroughbred horses and polo ponies. Mrs. Day and her husband, who died in 1929, said counsel, had carried on for 35 years a very successful business in horses and ponies. The Corporation had ample powers to acquire the property, but he suggested that in all fairness to his client it should be left alone. The goodwill would be destroyed if the Corporation took the premises, and the compensation necessary would, in his opinion, render their scheme uneconomic.

David Harvey, who managed the business for Mrs. Day, gave evidence regarding it. At present, he said, they were sending a number of polo ponies to Singapore. The place was ideal for riding lessons, and their patrons came from all parts of the city. If they were to carry on the business elsewhere their expenses would be considerably increased.

Other objections included that of Mrs. Susanne Fox and Mr. Thomas Byrne, 12 Dolphin's Barn street, monthly tenants since December, 1935, for whom Mr. Brendan T. Walsh appeared. No compensation was provided for in the case of the acquisition of the interests of monthly tenants, said Mr. Walsh. His clients' position was such as to justify them in law and equity in claiming as much compensation as an ordinary lease holder. The protection they enjoyed under the Rents Act and the Landlord and Tenant Act became valueless when they came up against compulsory acquisition.

SHORT TERM TENANTS

Mr. Rice said that they could not carry through those schemes without inconvenience to somebody. At present there was a friendly case pending in the High Court as to whether there was power given by those Acts to compensate weekly and monthly tenants. Nobody would be better pleased than the Corporation if there was power to compensate these people. The Corporation had often to feel uncomfortable and distressed at not being able to deal with these cases as they would like to. Suggestions had been put forward by him to the Department for the amendment of the law in that respect in the next Local Government Bill to be brought forward.

Mr. Walsh said that, as the matter stood at present, it was no consolation to his clients that in the future monthly tenants would be in a better position, because no legislation that might be enacted as a result of a case being stated by the High Court in favour of such tenants, unless it were made retrospective, would be of any benefit to the parties for whom he appeared.

Mr. Thomas Thornton, 1 Dolphin's Barn street, said that he was a dairyman and carried on a dairy business at his residence, which he had purchased for £1,000 in 1921. The premises then were a private dwelling, and he had had to carry out extensive alterations. No compensation would repay him if he were dispossessed. He would find it very difficult, if not impossible, to find an alternative place.

LAUNDRY PROTEST

Opposing the scheme on behalf of the Mirror Laundry, Mr. C. S. Campbell, K.C. (instructed by Mr. S. H. Watson), said that a modern laundry was a huge factory, and if this one had to close down or move to another district there would be serious interference with the economic life of the city. The cost of its transfer would be £10,000, without considering the value of the site or the interference with business.

Mr. Neill Watson, managing director of the laundry, said that it was acquired in 1916. He gave evidence of extensions to the laundry and of its modernisation. In the balance sheet at present the machinery stood at £6,000. Their boiler was one of the largest in Ireland. Its cost was £250, but another £600 was required to bring it into the premises. It was recognised in the laundry industry that 10s. of every £1 received from customers was paid in wages. If the scheme was modified they would be reasonable about the making of any alterations in the frontage that were considered to be desirable.

To Mr. Rice—If he were assured by the Corporation that he would get a site within a quarter of a mile he would object to the disturbance, as it would take two months to transfer the machinery. He had heard that the Corporation were to spend £250,000 on the scheme.

Mr. J. H. Allen, surveyor and valuer, said that the site to be acquired was 16½ acres, of which half-an-acre was occupied by the laundry premises. It would be difficult to move some of the heavy machinery. He had seen an earlier plan in which the laundry was omitted from the scheme, and he thought it would be better excluded, as the cost of removal would be very heavy.

Mr. M. O'Brien, engineer to the Housing Committee, who was called by Mr. Rice, gave evidence regarding the condition of the premises. The reason for not excluding the laundry from the scheme was aesthetic.

TOWN-PLANNING

Mr. H. G. Sims, Housing Officer to the Corporation, said that this was more than a housing scheme. It included many town planning improvements, and two roads, Dolphin's Barn street and Donore avenue, would be widened. A great deal of the area was virgin ground, but a number of buildings were included, some of them old and dilapidated. The Poddle river, which cut through the area, probably would be diverted. The Mirror Laundry now was approached by a narrow lane, but when this scheme was completed it would face a new main road. They were prepared to offer the laundry an alternative site within a stone's throw, and to give the company eighteen months or two years before requiring it to leave. The principal reasons for including the Mirror Laundry in the scheme were aesthetic, because of the chimney and its smoke and the fact that it interfered with witness's architectural conception of the scheme as a whole.

Appearing for Mr S A. Joyce, whose dairy farm and house adjoin the Boys' Brigade field, Mr. Garett Gill (instructed by Mr. A. Ellis) said that the map showed the area surrounding the scheme to consist of densely massed streets, and when the scheme was completed the green fields, every piece of which had a definite advantage, would have entirely disappeared.

Mr. Joyce, in evidence, said that he would never be able to find a place like this again. Thanks to the present Government, the dairy trade was in a better position than it had been, both for man and master, so that compensation should be better than it would have been some years ago.

Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., on behalf of the Boys' Brigade Organisation, which has a ground adjoining the scheme, said that the Corporation had been able to meet them, and was not to interfere with their ground; but if the scheme was altered as a result of the representations of other objectors, so that their ground would be concerned, it would be necessary for an objection from them to be considered.

The inquiry adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

UNEMPLOYED DEPUTATION TO DAIL

At a meeting of the Unemployed Workers' Rights Association, in College Green, Dublin, last night, it was announced that a deputation to the Dail to-day would be supported by a demonstration in the streets of the city. An appeal was made by a number of speakers to all unemployed workers to take part.

It was stated that before the demonstration the names of the members of the deputation would be announced.

"DOCTORS ON STRIKE"

STATEMENTS AT A DUBLIN MEETING

DISPUTE WITH MINISTER ABOUT FEES

THE Dublin Board of Health, at their meeting yesterday, discussed the question of the hold-up of their scheme for immunisation consequent on the dispute that has arisen following the decision of the doctors in the area not to accept the fees sanctioned by the Minister for Local Government and Public Health.

The matter arose when Mr. P. Fogarty, T.D., proposed that the County Medical Officer of Health, in conjunction with the dispensary medical officers, be instructed to prepare an immunisation scheme for County Dublin, the scheme to embrace every type of fever, including measles and rheumatism.

Mr. J. J. Claro seconded.

DOCTOR'S STATEMENT

Dr. Harbison, Medical Officer of Health said that two years ago he had submitted such a scheme, and it had actually been in operation in various areas in County Dublin. A dispute, however, arose between the Irish Medical Union and the Department of Local Government about the fees. The doctors would not accept the scale sanctioned by the Minister, which was 1s. 6d for single immunisation and 2s. 6d. for triple immunisation. The Irish Medical Union wanted 3s. 6d. for triple treatment. The scheme was held up. Fortunately there had been a low diphtheria mortality, but it might only be the calm before a storm, and there might be a serious outbreak at any moment. The Board would have to face the question of getting on with immunisation. At the moment the Board could only pay the fees sanctioned by the Minister.

Mr Dooge said that it was a question between the Department and medical practitioners' union. The latter had simply declared a strike.

Mr. Rollins said that it was the duty of that Board to look after the health of the people Were they to endanger the lives of little children, and perhaps see many of them in their coffins, while the doctors and the Minister argued about fees?

Mr. Blake said that the scheme had been in operation until the doctors went on strike.

THE BOARD'S POSITION

Mr. Rollins said that the doctors had a right to strike if they liked, but the Board must do something to get their scheme carried out.

Dr. Harbison said that the Minister had sanctioned a scheme and fixed a fee. The Medical Union refused to accept it, and the medical practitioners refused to work the scheme.

Mr. Fogarty withdrew his motion, and instead it was decided to ask the Minister for Local Government and Public Health to expedite a settlement of the dispute, so that the Board of Health could proceed with its immunisation scheme.

THE MEATH HOSPITAL

WHY IT IS OPPOSED TO AMALGAMATION

The annual report of the Meath Hospital and County Dublin Infirmary for the year ended December 31, 1936, records that, notwithstanding the pressure on the hospital's working resources, the amount of work carried on and the number of patients in the wards compared very favourably with previous years. The number of major operations during the year was 565, and 1,567 minor operations were carried out.

In common with most Dublin hospitals, their resources had been taxed to the utmost to meet the demands made upon the accommodation. The public had very little idea of the number of the sick poor who were admitted to the wards. As an example, it is recorded that during the year just closed 946 patients out of a total of 1,825 were treated entirely free of charge. The Governors regret that owing to lack of funds, it has not been possible to carry out a long-cherished scheme to add an additional wing to the hospital to accommodate at least thirty patients.

The report expressed surprise at the published report which coupled the name of the Meath Hospital with that of Sir Patrick Dun's and other hospitals which were in favour of amalgamation, together with a request that the Minister for Local Government and Public Health should give effect to the proposal without undue delay. The Meath Hospital is opposed to the amalgamation scheme in the interest of the poor of the County and City of Dublin; in the interest of the education of students; because of the introduction of Government control; because of of the greater efficiency of the small hospital; and because of the admitted absence of any economic advantage. The Meath Hospital occupies a unique position, standing on three and-a-half acres of fine grounds in one of the poorest localities in the city.

There were in the wards on January 1, 1936, 133 patients, 1,692 were admitted during the year, making a total of 1,825. Of these 1,583 were discharged cured or relieved, 109 died and 133 remained in hospital on December 31, 1936. The average daily number of beds occupied was 127.37. The average number of days spent by each patient was 23.78. The cost of each occupied bed was 9s. 3½d. per day, or £3 5s. 2d. per week.

There was a deficit of £5,908 odd, ordinary income being £15,909 and expenditure £21,816.

The Convalescent Home, Bray, continued to confer much benefit on patients, who, after they have been discharged from hospital, are sent there for a few weeks before they return to their homes and occupations. Thanks were given to Miss Erck, Hon. Secretary, and to the members of the Ladies' Committee.

The report concludes by thanking supporters, and makes a plea for further and increased support from the charitably-disposed public.

BORDER OUTRAGES SEQUEL

INJURY CLAIMS GRANTED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

NEWRY, Tuesday.

An echo of the burning of Free State and Northern Ireland Customs huts was heard at Ballybot Quarter Sessions to-day, before Judge Greene, K.C., when Mr. W. J. Maxwell, Border Hut, Killeen, claimed £3,000 for the destruction of his dwellinghouse, dance hall and shop at the border. It will be remembered that on the morning of the 20th July last, the occasion of the King's visit to Northern Ireland, armed men entered the dwellinghouse of Mr. Maxwell, and, after ordering him and his wife and family out, set fire to the premises, also his shop and dance hall, which were close by.

An award of £1,250 was made.

Constable J. B Gifford was awarded £7 10s. for the loss of a bicycle, which was stored in Maxwell's hut on the occasion of the raid, and Henry Simon, Sunington Park, Belfast, was awarded £11 10s. for the loss of a pigskin suitcase and its contents, which were in the Customs hut when it was burned.

At the Belfast Summons Court yesterday, Daniel McAvoy, whose address was given as Upton street, Belfast, was fined 40s. and costs for travelling from Belfast to Heysham without a ticket.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"SIX MONTHS WASTED"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The attention of my Federation has been called to your leading article of October 5th. I am directed to state that the assumptions contained therein are not correct, and it would appear to be written by one who is completely ignorant of the facts, and has failed to verify his data even by reference to your own columns.

The settlement reached is one that is acceptable to both sides, since it practically ensures that no future dislocation of the industry, with its consequent loss to employer, worker and citizen equally, can take place. This is the gain from a long and severe struggle, and slum-dweller or millionaire alike will benefit by the knowledge that for many years to come work can, and will, proceed continuously at a high speed.

The losses borne by the employers have been borne solely from their private means, since, in industry, no insurance is possible against such a risk as "loss of profits due to labour troubles." To prove this point we have inquired from leading Dublin insurance brokers, and the following is an extract from a letter received by one of these:—

> "We assume that a policy indemnifying the assured against loss of profits and/or contracts owing to strikes in the future is required and not material damage If this is the case we are very sorry to have to advise you that there is no market whatsoever at Lloyd's. We have had numerous inquiries of this nature in the past, but have never been able to obtain a quotation."

My federation would be glad if you would deal with this matter in a further equally prominent leading article, and, at the same time, pay due tribute to the discipline and restraint exercised by both sides during a contest that has been one of the longest and largest in the history of this city. Errors may have been made in the early stages, but they arose from the importance of certain principles involved, and not from any ill-will or deliberate delay.

My federation feel very deeply your reference to Communism and Fascism at the very moment when agreements were ready for signature by both sides.

The benefits gained from this dispute, very briefly summarised, are as follows:—

A growing "national" viewpoint of the industry.

A determination to avoid any future dislocation by means of the establishment of an "Area Joint Council" to deal with all and every issue that could arise

An "open entry" for boys to all skilled trades, but all conditions to be equally controlled by workers and employers.

A full appreciation by 90 per cent. of the workers of the advantages of collective bargaining.

A reasonable financial settlement that has left both sides on the best terms and ready to resume work on Thursday.—Yours, etc.,

A CIVIC MUSEUM

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Allow me to enter on your space to support heartily the opinions expressed at the recent Old Dublin Society's Exhibition, that the result of its labours should be made permanent.

From a civic point of view, it is gratifying to know that in the short period of the Exhibition some 12,000 people, of all ages and callings, visited and took a lively interest in the graphic records of our city's past. In this age of so-called modernism, and blind mimicry of foreign design, it is good to look backwards a while and perceive in this old city a native character of structure well worthy of study and preservation. In the ultimate execution of projected improvement schemes by the Dublin Corporation many fine examples of Dublin craftsmanship may disappear.

I appeal, therefore, to the authorities concerned to rescue from the house-breaker such items as mantelpieces, joinery details of doors, windows and staircases, plaster ceilings, iron balconies, and the great variety of Georgian doorways.

All these could be stored safely until such time as a Civic Museum is available, wherein they could be reinstated for study by citizens and visitors alike.

Frequent contact by our younger architects and craftsmen with such a permanent exhibition would provide a steadying influence against the present-day drift towards foreign eccentricities. Occasional organised visits by school children to such a museum would instil in the future citizen a sense of civic responsibility.—Yours, etc.,

FRANK GIBNEY.

THE PRICE OF BREAD

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—The general dissatisfaction with the present price of bread in the Irish Free State, as compared with that obtaining in England and Northern Ireland, would suggest that the Government should take immediate steps to remedy a situation which places an intolerable burden on the poorer sections of our population.

The bakers—I am one myself—have a clear conscience in this matter, as the recent investigation by the Prices Commission showed. Mr. Lemass may be relied upon to curb the bakers, as the reduction in bread prices for party propaganda purposes just previous to the recent election shows. This reduction was not justified by the then price of flour. Also, his Department's "indicated" price for flour generally averages two shillings less than the actual delivered price. The present "indicated" price is 51s. 6d. per sack of 20 stone. The actual price delivered here is 53s. 6d. To-day's official price for standard grade flour delivered in London is 40s., plus 6d. quota payment. What is the reason for this difference of 13s.?

Logically, it would seem to me that either the millers' or the Government's wheat policy is to blame. Mr. Lemass seems satisfied that the millers are doing their best under the circumstances. Personally, I am not. That 13s. needs a great deal of explaining, and the vague explanation of the miller that it is due to the Government's wheat policy is not convincing. After all, the British Government subsidise home-grown wheat also.

There are three possible remedies—(1) That the Government should abandon its present wheat policy. It is not popular with the farmer. He grows wheat—and it is poor quality wheat—faut de mieux. If his normal and more profitable markets were restored the farmer would rarely bother with this uncertain crop. (2) That the baking industry should be subsidised out of general taxation, in order that the poor, who are the heaviest consumers of bread, may have it at a reasonable price. (3) The nationalisation of the milling and baking industries. Six or eight suitably situated mechanised mill-bakeries could supply the whole needs of this country.

My trade journal some time ago had an article on the Government controlled bakeries in the U.S.S.R., which supply a great percentage of that country's bread requirements. The writer greatly admired their efficiency and the quality of their product. I do not recommend this latter solution for obvious personal reasons. It would also put thousands out of employment; but I do recommend the Government to do something quickly to solve the problem, and also to give some thought to the butter and bacon questions before the consumers and, incidentally, the electors, patience is exhausted.

The Roman emperor's philosophy of government used to be summed up in the phrase, "panem et circenses." Verbum sapienti, Mr. Lemass.—Yours, etc.,

THE TRAINING OF TEACHERS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—In your issue of October 2nd, under the above heading, you give a summary of the conditions required for the appointment of national school teachers. The main qualification appears to be that they should be "fluent speakers in Irish." Nothing is said about their being educated speakers of English. Yet when their pupils pass from their hands, and seek for a position in which to earn their own living, the only thing which will count is their English standard of education—except, perhaps, in the Free State Civil Service. When a boy or a girl, just finished school, applies for any position outside the Civil Service the first thing an employer will note will be his or her general outward appearance and manners. If these are unfavourable, the candidate is doomed to disappointment. The next point will be his way of speaking English—his "accent," as we call it. This is the surest test of his general standard of culture, and is evident as soon as he opens his mouth.

The employer probably will ask the candidate to write him a letter applying for the position and stating his qualifications. If this is badly written, with mistakes in spelling and grammar, the candidate has no chance at all to obtain a position of any importance. It is only after he has passed these three tests that the employer will consider his technical fitness for the job.

Thus a good English education is the essential thing for success in life. May we not fairly ask if a teacher who has been brought up in an Irish-speaking house in an Irish-speaking district is qualified to give this education? Do not these very two facts disqualify him? He may teach the best of Connacht or Munster Irish, with the real native "blas"; but how many can appreciate these attainments in his pupils? While everyone can and will judge him by his standard of English.

Everywhere we hear of the crowds of young men and women who are flocking to England to seek employment. To them, all this concentration upon Irish is not merely no use to them, but has left them deficient in the things which count for most over there. We have just been told to put back the hands of the clock. I tried it on a clock some years ago, and it has never gone since. Under present methods many of our children are learning neither Irish nor English. The attempt to put back the hands of the clock with regard to Irish is wrecking young lives. Yet our politicians will not admit the fact for fear of losing their reputation for what is really a narrow and injurious nationalism.

The first consideration of our Government in its educational policy should be to prepare our children for success in their coming battle of life, rather than to indulge a political and sentimental hobby. Suppose you appoint to a Dublin school a teacher from the wilds of Kerry or Connemara, and he concentrates upon making his pupils speak Irish like himself, and, I suppose, to imitate his corresponding manners and customs, he probably will succeed with a certain number of pupils. But what will they think of their system of education when they have to face employers who do not care a rap for their Irish culture and manners, and reject them because of their deficiency in English culture?

The plain fact is that the British and Irish races have become one people by centuries of intermarriage and social intercourse. The standard of an Irish gentleman and of an English gentleman is exactly the same.—Yours, etc.,

DUDLEY FLETCHER.

CHURCH OF IRELAND CONGREGATIONS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In connection with Mr. Knight's speech at Clones on 24th September, may I say that in this parish during the past thirty years we have lost heavily? Seven hundred acres of land formerly held by us have passed to others. This included our former rectory and land attached. Our congregation has decreased from thirty to about ten. Symptoms point to a further decrease, and it is almost a certainty that in fifty years' time our church will be closed.

In a Northern paper recently appeared an account of the Parish Church at Dunlewey, County Donegal. During Divine Service, the only one held annually, the wind and rain disturbed the worshippers so much (owing to broken roof and windows) as to make worship almost impossible.

It has been well said that "the wealth of a church consists of human beings and not filthy lucre." Alas, it is otherwise with the Church of Ireland, and so we see the result.—Yours, etc.,

J. C. K.

PLUNKETT STREET, DUBLIN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In view of the many pilgrimages now being made to the shrine of the martyred Oliver Plunkett at Drogheda, it may interest some of your readers, including myself, to know whether Plunkett street, Dublin, was named after the Archbishop or had any association with him. My old-time friend, William John Fitzpatrick, once told me that it had. On the other hand, the fourth Lord Plunket, Protestant Archbishop of Dublin, informed me that it was named after his great-grandfather, a Presbyterian minister who formerly officiated in what, in my early Dublin days, was known as the Plunket Street Meeting House, which was afterward removed to a site on St. Stephen's Green, adjacent to York street, now occupied by a Unitarian Church.

Can any of your readers supply definite information on the matter, especially members of the Old Dublin Society, which, I was glad to see by your columns, had recently paid a visit to the old seventh century parish church of St. Dolough, of which church I was formerly a vestryman and honorary lay reader, being the first layman formally licensed to that office in the Church of Ireland?—Yours, etc.,

THE WAY TO ACHILL

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Just at the moment when everyone is trying to solve Achill's economic problems, one of her chief lines of communication is cut off. There is now no alternative for passengers and heavy traffic but the road. I understand that the bridges on this road are unsafe; I know that in stretches its surface is deplorable. To travel it in private car or 'bus is a nightmare During the temporary closing of the railway I travelled from Achill Sound to Westport in a 'bus. Fifteen of us were standing like cattle in a lorry—mostly women with baskets—as far as Newport. I have swayed in 'buses along precipices in Yugoslavia and in the Pyrenees. I have never felt as frightened as I did that day. We do not want another disaster on the Achill road, and, as far as I can see, we are heading for one.

With Shannon power in Westport, would it not be feasible to run a light electric railway, like the "Michelin" in the South of France, which runs gaily along the coast from Marseilles to St. Tropez? The railway company deplores its lack of passengers; tourists will not flock in quantities by a train which takes five hours to crawl from Achill Sound to Roscommon, a distance of about one hundred miles.

About two thousand seasonal migrants leave Achill annually, to return for the winter. In Donegal a railway meeting was held to improve facilities for tourists. We should like something done to improve conditions for the inhabitants. The railway company is said to have promised "better travel facilities than ever." We await fulfilment.—Yours, etc.,

THE WATER SUPPLY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I was interested in a letter in your issue of October 2nd from a Rathmines resident regarding the quality of the water supply there. If your correspondent resided in part of the Killiney area, he might further complain regarding the quantity of the supply in that district, since nightly, shortly after 11 o clock, the supply ceases entirely until some time the following morning.

I have complained to the Dun Laoghaire Corporation, but have been informed that, under arrangement with the Dublin Corporation, who apparently supply the entire area, it is necessary to "reduce" the pressure, so as to cut down the consumption of water.

Large sums are spent annually in making the district attractive to visitors whilst the ordinary requirements of the regular residents are neglected. If the authorities would even arrange an ample nightly supply of some of the straw-coloured fluid of which your Rathmines correspondent writes, it would be slightly more acceptable than the whistling sound which emanates from the supply pipes when the water taps are turned on after "closing time" in parts of the Killiney area.—Yours, etc.,

THE TRAFFIC BY-LAWS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In order to enable motorists, cyclists and pedestrians to appreciate the effects of the forthcoming new codes and parking by-laws—and their relationships to the Traffic Act of 1933, and the recently issued code of regulations which apply to Dublin and elsewhere—this Association has arranged for the early publication of a Motorists', Cyclists' and Pedestrians' Traffic Guide.

The publication will contain a brief digest of important provisions of the Traffic Act and relevant by-laws; alphabetical lists of officially prescribed parking places; tables of upwards of 150 streets in which waiting will either be totally prohibited or limited to twenty minutes; list of one-way, "restricted" and "alternative parking" thoroughfares, and a map which portrays the relationship of new "parks" to streets in the city's business centres.

So that such essential information may be within reach of all concerned, the brochures will be available at the nominal cost of threepence each, and it is hoped that ample supplies will be available for public use before the new by-laws come into operation. Pending publication extracts from the information contained and other particulars may be had on application to this office.—Yours, etc.,

WOLFE TONE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Concerning the controversy which appeared recently in some Irish papers in connection with Wolfe Tone and my great grandfather, Dr. James McDonnell, of Belfast, it may interest some of your readers to know that Wolfe Tone's son married the niece of Dr. James McDonnell's wife, Elizabeth, née Clarke.—Yours. etc.,

DOGS AND FIREWORKS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The firework season has come round again, but some creatures are precluded by nature from sharing juvenile enjoyment. Dogs at large when fireworks are going off frequently take fright and run for miles (the lost dog statistics always show a rise at this time). For this reason it is advisable to exercise a dog on the lead just now, unless he has already proved himself immune from fright in the presence of loud explosions.

When at home a quiet room should, if possible, be found for him. Some owners find that pads of cotton wool tied loosely over the ears are helpful. Radio music is also said to mitigate the distress.—Yours, etc.,

Guard Still in Hospital.—When William Frederick Harrison, of Newtowngore, Co. Leitrim, appeared at Ballyfarnon District Court yesterday, charged with wounding Guard Thomas Sheehan, Inspector O'Sullivan applied for a remand to Mohill Court, as the Guard was still unable to attend court. The case arose out of eviction from the Rectory at Newtowngore, Carrigallen, when the defendant, it was stated, resisted ejectment under an order of Circuit Court Judge Sheehy. The defendant was granted bail at £50, and two sureties of £25 each.

Meanwhile no definite plans have been made for the use of the site.

DUBLIN "GATE" PLAYERS

WELL RECEIVED IN LONDON

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday.

Mary Manning's tragi-comedy, "Youth's the Season . . .?" which is well-known to Dublin audiences, was very appreciatively received at the Westminster Theatre, London, this evening when Longford Productions from the Dublin Gate Theatre presented this favourite to a packed house.

The author of "Storm Over Wicklow" and "Happy Family" is at her best in this interesting study of the Millington family in Dublin. The cast was Jean Anderson (Mrs. Millington), Cathleen Delany (Deirdre Millington), Kathleen Edwardes (Constance Millington), Blake Gifford (Desmond Millington), Betty Chancellor (Toots Ellerslie), Niall Maginnis (Terence Killigrew), Cecil Brock (Horace Egosmith), Harry Fine (Harry Middleton), Nigel Fitzpatrick (Dr. Gerald Parr), Willie Sullivan (Ronald Ibbs), Philip Pryce (Hamlyn Benson), Priscella Converse (Ninka Dogela), Europa Bull (Doris Finn), Pearl Harris (Clodagh Garratt), and Margot Davies (Mary).

Peter Powell produced, and Eric Adeney's settings provided striking backgrounds.

LACK OF LIBERTY IN IRELAND?

MR. FRANCIS HACKETT'S VIEW

The Copenhagen Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post, telegraphing yesterday, says:—Mr. Francis Hackett, the writer, arrived here yesterday with his Danish wife. They have decided to live at Copenhagen, where Mr. Hackett will finish his novel on Anne Boleyn. He said that he had left the Irish Free State for good because of "lack of liberty."

THEY'RE DELICIOUS!

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN SHORTCAKES

8 oz. flour.
3 level teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder.
½ teaspoonful salt.
4 oz. butter, margarine or lard. 1 egg.
Cold water to mix (about 4 to 6 tablespoonfuls).

SIEVE flour, salt and baking powder into a basin. Rub the fat into flour with the tips of the fingers. Mix to a soft dough with beaten egg and cold water. Cut into large rounds, place on greased and floured baking sheet and bake in a hot oven at about 400° until they are golden brown and firm. These shortcakes, split and filled with hot creamed chicken, make a delicious dish. If one tablespoonful of sugar be added to the dry ingredients, the shortcakes can also be used with any fruit.

● "For lighter, tempting puddings and cakes, use plain flour and Royal," experts say. They know it is important to use the right raising agent, and the right amount of it — just what the recipe calls for, no more, no less. You can do this only by using plain flour and Royal. A level teaspoonful of Royal costs only about a farthing — an amazingly cheap insurance against failure.

GREAT BRITAIN

The British Labour Party Conference at Bournemouth yesterday rejected by a majority of 1,785,000 votes Sir Stafford Cripps's motion to refer back that part of the Executive's report which called upon all members of the party "to refrain from any further joint activities with the Communist Party and the Independent Labour Party.—(Page 8.)

The Cost of Living

President de Valera returns to-day from the rarefied atmosphere of Geneva to his normal environment in Dáil Eireann. For many days he has been dealing with the interdependence of nations; for a time he must now give his attention to the interdependence of individuals within his own country. When statesmen and politicians hear the word economy they are all too quick in assuming that it refers to the economy of nations; it is only when they return to the familiar cosiness of their own homes that they realise that it may have an entirely different significance. President de Valera will understand to-day that the domestic interpretation of the word may transcend both its national and international significance. While he has been engaged in the heroic effort to disentangle the politics of European ideologies, those whose votes so recently gave him a renewed lease of office have been engaged in the futile task of attempting to make their income meet their expenditure. In the effort of making a bird's-eye survey of the world the President must have been startled by the fact that the cost of living in his own country is getting out of control, and that, however he may pine for the hair-shirt standard of livelihood, his asceticism is not shared by a majority of his compatriots. The process of belt-tightening may be carried to a point where the belt becomes too large for the figure it was designed to encircle: that is the point now being reached rapidly in this country. The resolution which is to be presented to the Dáil to-day will bring the President back to realities. During the past year the cost of living, according to the figures published by the League of Nations, in this country has increased by over a shilling in the pound. In the corresponding period the rise in Great Britain has been only sixpence. In the President's own constituency it was stated recently that 7s. 6d. to-day bought only the same quantity of goods that 2s. 6d. would have bought five years ago. Whatever faults may exist in the memory of this commentator are rectified by the official figures issued by the Department of Industry and Commerce. Between August, 1931, and August, 1937, the cost of living in Saorstát Eireann has increased by 13 points, while in the same period the increase in Great Britain and Northern Ireland has been only 10 points.

The country will await with some anxiety to hear what the President has to say on the subject. It will be very interesting to hear, for instance, why "streaky" bacon in Saorstát Eireann costs 1s. 8½d. a pound, when it can be bought in England and Northern Ireland at 1s. 3d. a pound. While he is explaining the difference in the price of bacon he might offer some reason why the loaf in this country costs sixpence, and in England only three-quarters of that sum. He may be induced to tell us, also, why flour costs exactly double here what it costs in England; why cheese costs 1s. 4d. per pound instead of England's 10d.; why the cheapest tea costs 6d. per pound above the English price; why potatoes should be 11d. per stone instead of 8d., as in Belfast, and why margarine is nearly double the price here that it is in London. These are the staple items in the domestic budget—unless we add the penny difference in the price of sugar to weight further the advantage of the British housewife—and they constitute a formidable indictment of the Government's policy. It is unnecessary to await the President's explanation of the price differences between the two countries; everyone who takes the faintest interest in current affairs is aware that the cause is to be found in the tangled scheme of tariffs, quotas, bounties, subsidies, regulations, boards, and bureaucracy by which the Government has surrounded itself in the past five years. Mapping its course towards the ideal of self-sufficiency, the Government has proceeded in the most haphazard way, zigzagging in its policy from side to side as the pressures of the moment dictate. Its policy has, undoubtedly, enriched some sections of the community, but in the process other sections have been impoverished. The large proportion of the population—larger than those who are presumed to exist upon unearned income because it includes the mass of professional and clerical workers—which exists on fixed incomes and salaries, has been sacrificed for the benefit of a few. The policy of the Government, in fact, looks like filling up one hole with the proceeds of the next; and nobody quite knows what has happened to the material extracted from the first. The time has come to take stock of the whole policy; to balance the losses against the gains, and to give the domestic budget at least as much attention as is given to the national Budget.

Geneva Protests

For the second time in its not especially glorious history the League of Nations—or a subsidiary body thereof—has declared against Japan. Yesterday the Committee of 23, appointed to study Far Eastern affairs, reached a conclusion which is described as a "strong vote of sympathy with China and a promise of aid." It admitted that, possibly, there was an incident which gave Japan a technical excuse for warfare against China, but it held that the later Japanese "operations" have been out of all proportion to that incident. It found, furthermore, that Japan's conduct "cannot possibly facilitate or promote the friendly co-operation" which her authorities, with consummate hypocrisy, have alleged to be their chief ambition; that her behaviour cannot be justified on the basis of existing treaties, or of the right of self-defence, and that it contravenes the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922, as well as the Pact of Paris. In other words, the League's decisive committee has found that Japan's invasion of China is unjustifiable. The question arises, therefore: What does the League propose to do about it?—and the answer, so far as we can gather, is: Nothing. Three years ago the League was challenged by Japan, and did nothing. It went to the length of sending a special commission to report on Japan's invasion of Manchuria, and formally approved the commission's findings, which were condemnatory of Japan in the highest degree, but, having registered its solemn disapproval of the invasion, Geneva permitted the matter to drop. We cannot believe that any better fate will attend the latest resolution. All the nations are ready to admit that the Japanese have done wrong—that they have offended against the principles which Europe has been striving for nearly twenty years to assert—but they neither are willing to take arms against Japan or even to follow the less perilous course of an economic boycott. When the South African delegate yesterday proposed an amendment that hinted at drastic action, he was countered by the votes of Australia, Holland, Great Britain and France—in other words, by four nations that stand to lose heavily from an encounter with Japan.

Is it possible that the United States will take action against Japan where the League of Nations will shirk the challenge? President Roosevelt's speech, reported in our columns this morning, is as guarded and "woolly" as most important speeches of leading statesmen. Yet it has given rise to the belief—received, as the case may be, with pleasure or regret—that his Government may take sides against Japan in one very practical way. The speech is construed in some quarters as a hint that the United States Government may modify its Neutrality Act so as to permit of the export of arms to China, while retaining the existing ban on their export to Japan. The United States plays no direct part in the affairs of the League of Nations, but it is, of all Powers, the one which is concerned most intimately in any disturbance of Far Eastern tranquillity. Russia, whose more vigilant eye is directed at the moment towards Germany, has spared little concern for its Siberian boundaries, and seems to have no interest at present beyond the course of affairs in Spain and the Mediterranean. It is evident that Great Britain proposes to let matters take their course in regard to China and Japan, and will make a working agreement with the Power that emerges more successfully from the conflict. If the small nations of Europe could force the League to adopt a decisive policy towards Japanese aggrandisement, they would be only too ready to do so; and, without doubt, it is their advocacy which has dictated yesterday's unusually strong condemnation. Yet we repeat that we cannot expect Geneva to take action of any effective sort against the Japanese. If the collective wisdom and humanity of the nations had no time to spare for Ethiopia's plight in the face of an Italian challenge, how much less will they be inclined to intervene on behalf of China, in whose case not only is the seat of war removed many thousands of miles from Europe, but also the immediate issues at stake are smaller. The fact is, of course, that a Japanese empire over the whole of Eastern Asia is far more perilous to the world's security than an Italian empire over a small portion of Africa; but a fully developed Japan is also a more formidable antagonist than a newly renascent Italy. Nobody can contend the Powers' logic; it is their morality that is dubious.

Exit "Bulldog"

What lover of adventure stories will not confess to sadness when he opens a certain English magazine this month, and sees the signature of "Sapper" (Lieutenant-Colonel H. C. McNeile) once again, over a story of Bulldog Drummond and his comrades? Just before his lamented and premature death, an editorial note says, "Sapper" completed a series of twelve short stories about his hero; the last two of these will appear in November and December—positively the last appearance of the gigantic ex-officer, victor in so many battles with organised crime. We had come to look forward to Drummond's exploits as one of the regular entertainments of life, and the sudden cessation will cause a gap that no other character in fiction offers to fill. Bertram Wooster and Jeeves still are "doing their stuff"—to borrow an inevitable phrase—but their pranks do not satisfy the appetite for perils and victories. A few years after the Great War, when McNeile already had a name for stories of warfare, he was troubled by an irrepressible boor on the golf links, and said in his mind that it would be satisfying to deal with the fellow as he had dealt with enemies at the front. Therewith, Bulldog Drummond was born, together with Algy Longworth and the rest, and started on an epic career of war within peace. The magnificent, nonchalant slang in which these comrades conversed, as they raided Bolshevist dens, were jailed in empty houses, suffered on the moor or triumphed on the sea, made them congenial to multitudes, and tale after tale was demanded of "Sapper" long after he was weary of the jest. Captain Kettle and Sherlock Holmes, in our youth, were hardly more popular, though it must be allowed that those heroes had a refinement which the Bulldog lacked. Films magnified Drummond's fame and made Algy's eyeglass—always in place, even after the roughest rough-house—familiar to the world. These types belonged to the age. If McNeile had been an Italian, he would have drawn a Blackshirt chief in Drummond; for the Bulldog satisfied in fiction the same appetite for rough justice and a short way with dissenters as Fascism itself. The "gang" would be at home in lands where the regular police confine their attentions to petty larceny and leave big crime to self-appointed authority. We loved Bulldog Drummond on paper or on screen. We would detest him in the flesh.

Song Amid the Soapsuds

The invention of the bathroom has had two paradoxical repercussions; it has both cleared and thickened the atmosphere. Since the bathroom came into general being, this earth has become a more fragrant and lovely place than the Elizabethans ever knew; but the moderns have had to pay through the nose for that blessing. The bathroom has gone far to exacerbate the already distant relations between men and women. Old razor blades, unintentionally communal toothbrushes, hairpins in the sponge, and face-cream on the hand-towels, have provoked acute crises in their time. These bathroom misdemeanours, however, even themselves out, since they either are common to both sexes, or else can be nullified by reprisals. Indeed, it is possible that a peaceful stalemate might have been attained in the course of the years had it not been for bathroom singing; but with bathroom singing comes the irreconcilable parting of the ways. When a man leaves his shorn beard to darken the rim of the basin, woman has a powerful reply in the shape of eyebrow black on his toothbrush—the two even may find love in a mutual admiration of one another's ruthlessness—but woman has no reply to Puccini with the toilet. Her enforced capitulation makes her nervy, spiteful and careless with the breakfast, while man, in his triumph unqualified, becomes an arrogant and thoughtless brute. The truth is inescapable. Woman cannot sing in her bath, and man does very little else. For many years we have wondered why this should be, and for many years we have thought that there must be some means by which women could be persuaded to give tongue, and to establish a balance of power. We could perceive no solution of our own imagining, and thus it was with eager hope that we opened Sir James Jeans' latest book, "Science and Music." Here, surely, would a way-out be found; and here, most surely, it has been. Sir James says that men sing in the bath because the male voice sounds best in a room ten feet by seven, and that any note below middle C rolls richly round walls of these dimensions. The soprano merely squeaks. Now that the building strike is over, let us have bathrooms attuned to the female voice, unlimited helpings of "Mi chiamano Mimi," and, after many troubled years, peace again upon earth.

THE MARQUESS OF CLYDESDALE

ENGAGED TO LADY ELIZABETH PERCY

The Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, has become engaged to Lady Elizabeth Percy, sister of the Duke of Northumberland. The announcement was made by the Moderator of the Hamilton Presbytery yesterday, when introducing the Marquess, who is an Elder of the Presbytery, and was guest of honour at a luncheon.

Acknowledging the congratulations of the Moderator, the Marquess said that he was engaged to Lady Elizabeth, and that he had just returned from the most critical contest of his life, the battle of the wooing. He confessed that this had begun at Alnwick Castle and had reached a successful conclusion in the North.

The Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale, M.P. for Renfrewshire since November, 1930, is aged 34. Popularly known as the "Boxing Marquess," he won his Blue at Oxford, and represented his university against Cambridgeshire for three years in the ring. In 1933 he was chief pilot of the expedition to fly over Mount Everest. He is a Wing Commander on the General List of the Auxiliary Air Force.

Lady Elizabeth Percy is 21. She was one of the six train-bearers to the Queen at the Coronation. Her mother is Mistress of the Robes to the Queen.

LONDON LETTER

EFFECTIVE NON-INTERVENTION

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

SOME important steps are likely to be taken in the course of the next few days to make non-intervention more effective. Should Signor Mussolini refuse to accept the proposals of Great Britain and France for a three-Power series of conversations, and, perhaps, suggest a different method of consultation by the inclusion of other Powers, or by demanding that the matter shall be referred back to the Non-Intervention Committee, the British and French Governments may propose that Mr. Eden, M. Delbos, and Count Ciano, with the Foreign Ministers of other Powers, shall meet in London to discuss matters. Should this invitation be accepted it is thought that the talks may be opened without much further delay, though it is unlikely that a meeting could be arranged inside of the next fortnight.

Belligerent Rights

The Foreign Office is devoting much attention to the situation in Spain, and it is rumoured that it has already decided upon the despatch of an envoy to General Franco's Government at a suitable moment. The conversations planned to take place between London, Paris and Rome regarding the question of volunteers leaving Spain will, it is hoped, have a successful issue shortly, even though the outlook is not promising at present. In such an event belligerent rights will certainly be granted to General Franco, and with that recognition would go another which would involve the appointment to the Government at Salamanca of an official representative of Great Britain, who would have the rank of Chargé d'Affaires. It is rumoured that for some time past several Ministers have been anxious to recognise General Franco, as the present method of dealing with him is one that is most unofficial. Private individuals are sent, interviews are given, and conversations take place, and the private individual returns with a report to the Foreign Office. Should the position be properly adjusted and a British representative appointed, such a step would be warmly welcomed by big commercial and trading interests.

The Economic Boycott

The British Government has no intention of doing anything to help any campaign for the imposition of an economic boycott against Japan, and while this attitude may partly be due to financial considerations it is not so altogether, as there is a hope that in due course Great Britain and the United States may be called upon to help to settle peace terms between China and Japan. The British Government would certainly like to aid any such proceeding, and does not intend to jeopardise the prospect by promoting a boycott of any kind. It is also appreciated that in the event of a boycott this country would simply be handing over to other Powers the trade which we shall be throwing away. Another point is that the present trouble between China and Japan is due to a boycott of the latter's goods by the Chinese merchants.

Gold Hoarders

It is of interest to note that the hoarding of gold has been recently resumed in London on a large scale, and it is estimated that during the past two weeks £13,500,000 have been bought simply to hoard. This buying of gold takes money away from the Stock markets, and to some extent is responsible for the fall in security values. There seems to be no specific reason for this desire to hoard gold, but possibly it is due to a lack of confidence in currencies that in turn is brought about by political causes. Until the causes are eliminated there are bound to be recurring bouts of hoarding on the part of people who believe that in buying gold they are safeguarding their possessions. Not until gold is freely available will those who have savings cease to want it. There are many people who take the view that we shall never get back to a paper currency exchangeable into gold, while the fact is that there can never be stability of currency until Governments keep expenditure below revenue, and provide that paper currency shall be exchangeable into gold.

Air Raids Over England

The King, who has taken a great interest in the organisation of precautionary measures against air-raids, is to visit the air-raid precautions centre when he goes to Leeds this month, and he will make his first inspection of the actual work accomplished by the responsible departments. Sir Samuel Hoare, the Home Secretary, will be present to explain the general scheme. The organisation of Leeds is considered as admirable, and an example for local authorities generally, as it is fitted with cleansing shower baths, a complete decontamination section, a gas chamber, a lecture hall, and a respirator store, while it also has a local training centre for personnel. At Chatham this morning mid-way through the work there was a mock air-raid, and at the sound of a siren nine thousand workers rushed to take cover. In the shelters workers of all grades, following instructions, sang to the accompaniment of mouth-organs while awaiting inspection by Admiral Sir Edward Evans, Commander-in-Chief, The Nore. The first-aid stations were manned, and all the parties entrusted with special tasks were on duty. Chatham Dockyard is to play an important part in the great mock air-raid over southern England on the night of November 4th.

The Post Office Ring

It was recently disclosed that there was a manufacturers' ring able to dictate terms to the Post Office, and this allegation is to be brought to the notice of the House of Commons when it reassembles. Questions are to be addressed to Major Tryon, the Postmaster-General, to ascertain the precise circumstances in which existing contracts for Post Office supplies were entered into, how long they have to run, and what steps are contemplated to safeguard the Department in future. It was stated in the evidence before the Public Accounts Committee that the Department had to purchase 90 per cent. of its requirements from the ring firms, and that it was completely in the hands of the ring.

Earl Haig's Statue

The Duke of Gloucester is to unveil the statue of Earl Haig on the afternoon of November 10th. The ceremony will take place at half-past three, and there will be a gathering of many well-known Service men. The statue, which is in the centre of Whitehall, immediately opposite the War Office, is in a line with the Cenotaph, which is about three hundred yards away. To-day people were looking at the rather elaborate scaffolding which has been erected around the plinth, as this scaffolding rather indicates that the statue will be placed in position very shortly. The equestrian statue is the third since a committee, headed by Lord d'Abernon in 1929, rejected two other models and recommended that of Mr. A. F. Hardiman. The cost, it was stated in the House of Commons, is £10,700.

The Princess Royal is to attend the British Legion Festival of Remembrance in the Usher Hall, Edinburgh, on the evening of Armistice Day. The British Broadcasting Corporation yesterday intimated that part of the festival would be broadcast.

JAPANESE INVASION OF CHINA

No Justification for Military Action

INDICTMENT BY LEAGUE COMMITTEE

Plan To End War By Agreement

FROM three corners of the world yesterday an appeal was made to peaceful nations to take joint action to stamp out international aggression and restore peace in China and Spain.

President Roosevelt called upon peace-loving nations of the world to " make a concerted effort to uphold the laws and principles on which peace alone can rest."

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY

In London the Archbishop of Canterbury lead a public meeting of protest against Japan's aggression.

Echoing President Roosevelt's words, the Archbishop told his audience: " We are entitled to ask our Government if protest and appeal are unavailing, to take a lead by letting it be known that they are prepared to act, if they can obtain support from other nations as would make their action effective, and by inviting other nations to join them."

GENEVA'S CALL

In Geneva the Twenty-three-Power League Committee adopted a resolution suggesting that the Powers interested in the Pacific should be asked to meet, with a view to ending the war, and urging the Assembly to express its moral support for China.

An early meeting of the Powers in London to discuss aid for China is likely to result from the resolution, states Reuter.

It is probable that the Assembly will take a vote on the resolution to-night.

The Cabinet meets to-day and will consider the request from Mr. Attlee, Leader of the Opposition, that Parliament should be summoned immediately to discuss the Japanese aggression. It is improbable that the request will be granted.

THE FINDINGS

AN early meeting of the Powers in London to discuss aid for China is considered likely to result from a resolution adopted yesterday by the Twenty-three Power League Committee on Far Eastern affairs.

The Committee suggested that Powers interested in the Pacific should be asked to meet with a view to ending the Sino-Japanese conflict by agreement. The resolution urges the Assembly to express its moral support for China, and to recommend members to take no action which might weaken China's powers of resistance, and further consider how far they can individually extend aid to China.

Another report of the same committee finds that Japan has invaded China without justification, in breach of her obligations under three separate treaties.

The wording of the resolution was in the nature of a surprise, being much more favourable to China than at one time seemed likely to pass.

There is good ground for the belief that the language of President Roosevelt's Chicago speech, of which an advance text was made available to members of the committee, influenced their decision.

CONCLUSIONS

Japan is unjustifiably invading China is the conclusion of the leading sub-committee on the Far East, which approved a report to this effect yesterday, says a Reuter Geneva telegram. The sub committee consists of thirteen members. The full Far East Advisory Committee met last evening.

The following are the conclusions of the sub-committee:—

" It is clear that the two countries take very different views as to the underlying ground of the dispute and as to the incident which led to the first outbreak of hostilities.

" It cannot, however, be challenged that powerful Japanese armies have invaded Chinese territory and are in military control of large areas, including Peiping itself; that the Japanese Government has taken naval measures to close the coast of China to Chinese shipping, and that Japanese aircraft are carrying out bombardments over widely-separated regions of the country.

BREACH OF TREATY

" After examination of the facts laid before it the committee is bound to take the view that the military operations carried on by Japan against China by land, sea and air are out of all proportion to the incident that occasioned the conflict; that such action cannot possibly facilitate or promote the friendly co operation between the two nations that Japanese statesmen have affirmed to be the aim of their policy; that it can be justified neither on the basis of existing legal instruments nor on that of the right of self-defence, and that it is in contravention of Japan's obligations under the Nine-Power Treaty of February 6th, 1922, and under the Pact of Paris of August 27th, 1928."

The report traces the position since the beginning of July, and sets out the Japanese and Chinese versions of the initial incident at Lukouchiao.

" Leaving on one side the obvious discrepancy between these Chinese and Japanese versions of the event," the report proceeds, " it may be observed that, while these discussions between local authorities for local settlement were going on, and while communications were passing between the Japanese Government and the Chinese Government. . . . extensive movements of troops were making the situation worse."

By July 12 Japanese troops in North China had increased from 7,000 to over 20,000 men, and the Japanese Air Force consisted of 100 aeroplanes. It was also announced that troops of the Central Chinese Government were moving North.

CHINA'S REACTION

After describing the outbreak of hostilities in North China at the end of July, the report continues:—" The operations of the Japanese troops in North China provoked a lively reaction in China.

" The Government and the people of China were led to the conclusion that Japan was determined to break their resistance by force of arms.

" They were confirmed in this conviction when, at the end of the second week of August the Shanghai region became a second theatre of operations. . . .

" During the last few weeks," the report notes, " Japan has developed her military action not only in the Yangtse Valley, where, inter alia, Japanese aircraft have several times bombed the capital of China, but along the Chinese coast and in the interior, where numerous aerial bombardments have been carried out. . . .

JAPAN'S DEFENCE

" Since July 7th, faced by a growing resistance, Japan has not ceased to intensify her action, employing larger and larger forces and more and more powerful armaments.

" According to Chinese estimates, in addition to the 100,000 men in the Shanghai region, the strength of the Japanese troops operating in China exceeds 250,000 men."

The report then refers to the three main treaties affecting the two countries, including the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922, by which the contracting Powers agreed to respect the sovereignty, independence and territorial and administrative integrity of China.

" Prima facie, the events described in the first part of this report constitute a breach by Japan of her obligations towards China and towards other States under these treaties," says the report.

" It would seem," it continues, " that only if it could be shown to be a measure necessary for self-defence—including the defence of the Japanese forces and nationals lawfully upon Chinese territory—could the position of the Japanese forces in China possibly be reconciled with Japan's treaty obligations."

The report then sets out statements by General Chiang Kai-shek, by the Chinese Foreign Office and by the Japanese Prime Minister, which, it says, " appear to show that both sides believed that at an early stage of events the incident could have been localised and a pacific solution found."

" This result, however, proved unattainable.

THE CHARGES

" It is noteworthy that Japanese official statements declare that it was the movement of Chinese troops and the aggressive intentions of the Chinese Government which frustrated the pacific intentions of the Japanese Government.

" Chinese official statements, on the other hand, bring exactly the same charge against Japan—namely, that it was the invasion of Japanese troops and the aggressive intentions of the Japanese Government that have swelled a local incident into a great catastrophe.

" At a comparatively early stage," adds the report, " it began to appear that Japan, in addition to reaching a local settlement, was also determined to obtain a settlement of all the questions at issue between China and Japan."

PIRATES CONDEMNED

The League Council, meeting in late session at Geneva last night, adopted a resolution condemning attacks on shipping in the Mediterranean " in violation of the most elementary rules of humanity."

The attacks on merchant vessels were declared " repugnant to the conscience of the civilised nations."

The Spanish Government delegate voted in favour of the resolution; the Polish delegate abstained from voting.

The resolution had been drawn up in secret session of the Council earlier in the day following an appeal by the Spanish Government that its ships should benefit by the Nyon Anti-piracy Agreement.

It is understood that the Spanish delegation has now accepted the formula that the Nyon Agreement is contributing to greater security in all parts of the Mediterranean.

THE QUEST FOR PEACE

ROOSEVELT'S PLEA TO THE NATIONS

DENUNCIATION OF AGGRESSORS

COMPLETE ISOLATION IMPOSSIBLE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CHICAGO, Tuesday.

BITTERLY denouncing aggressor nations, President Roosevelt to-day called upon peace-loving nations of the world to " make a concerted effort to uphold the laws and principles on which alone peace can rest secure."

The President was making the major speech of his "pulse-feeling" trip through the United States of America.

" America," he said, " is actively engaged in the search for peace."

President Roosevelt spoke of the impossibility " for any nation completely to isolate itself from economic and political upheavals in the rest of the world."

Leading up to his theme by contrasting the peace and security which he noticed at home during his tour with conditions abroad, he declared:—

" The political situation of the world . . . is such as to cause grave concern and anxiety to all peoples and nations who wish to live in peace and amity with their neighbours.

FEAR OF CALAMITY

" The high aspirations expressed in the Briand Kellogg Peace Pact, and the hopes for peace thus raised, have of late given way to the haunting fear of calamity. The present reign of terror and international lawlessness began a few years ago . . . and has now reached the stage where the very foundations of civilisation are seriously threatened.

" Without a declaration of war, without warning or justification of any kind, civilians, including women and children, are being ruthlessly murdered with bombs from the air. In times of so-called peace ships are being attacked and sunk by submarines without cause or notice. The nations are fomenting and taking sides in civil warfare in nations that have never done them any harm.

" Nations claiming freedom for themselves deny it to others. Innocent peoples and nations are being cruelly sacrificed to the greed for power and supremacy, which is devoid of all sense of justice and humane consideration."

Quoting a passage from James Hilton's book, " Lost Horizon," in which Mr. Hilton foresaw a time when men exulted in the technique of killing, which might endanger every precious thing in the world, Mr. Roosevelt uttered the warning:—

" If these things come to pass in other parts of the world, let no one imagine that America will escape, that it may expect mercy, that this western hemisphere will not be attacked, and that it will continue tranquilly and peacefully to carry on the ethics and arts of civilisation . . .

CONCERTED EFFORT PLEA

" If those days are not to come to pass—if we are to save a world in which we can breathe freely and live in amity without fear—the peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort to uphold the laws and principles, in which alone peace can rest secure

" The peace-loving nations must make a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties, and those ignorings of humane instincts which are to-day creating the international anarchy and instability from which there is no escape through mere isolation or neutrality.

" Those who cherish the freedom and recognise and respect the equal right of their neighbours to be free to live in peace, must work together for the triumph of law and moral principles in order that peace, justice and confidence may prevail in the world.

" There must be a return to belief in the pledged word, in the value of the signed treaty. There must be a recognition of the fact that national morality is as vital as private morality.

" There is solidarity and interdependence about the modern world, both technically and morally, which makes it impossible for any nation completely to isolate itself from economic and political upheavals in the rest of the world, especially when such upheavals appear to be spreading and not declining. . .

" International anarchy destroys every foundation for peace. It jeopardises either the immediate or future security of every nation, large or small. It is, therefore, a matter of vital interest and concern to the people of the United States that the sanctity of international treaties and the maintenance of international morality be restored."

COST OF ARMAMENTS

Declaring that most people throughout the world want peace and prosperity, the President referred to the high cost of armaments.

" In those nations of the world," he said, " which seem to be piling armament on armament for purposes of aggression, and those other nations which fear acts of aggression against them and their security, a very high proportion of their national income is being spent directly on armaments. That runs from thirty to as high as fifty per cent.

" The proportion that we in the United States spend is far less—eleven or twelve per cent.

" I am compelled, and you are com-

Cost of Living in the Free State

To be Discussed in the Dail To-day

By OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

AT to-day's sitting of the Dail the main topic will be the high cost of living. This subject will inevitably occur in the debate on the second reading of the Control of Prices Bill, as well as in the discussion of Mr. McGilligan's motion. The recent increase in the price of bread, as well as the high cost of all the articles which go to make up the housewife's weekly budget, will enter into what would seem to be an attack in force on Government policy.

The Government Whips hope that the Prices Bill will get a second reading to-day, as well as the Senate (University) Bill, and the Speaker's Re-election Bill. If this is done the Senate Election (Panel) Bill will be the chief business for Thursday, and, if incompleted, for Friday also.

The motion in the names of Deputies McGilligan and Morrissey reads: " That the Dail deplores the lowering of the standard of living of the community by Government action through the operation of taxes, levies, duties, and like impositions on foodstuffs and other necessaries of life; and is of opinion that all such impositions should be forthwith abolished."

FIRST READINGS

Four new bills are down for first reading. One is the Agricultural Produce (Cereals) (Amendment) Bill, which proposes the exclusion from the operation of the original Act wheat, the flour derived from which is used in the manufacture of biscuits, in calculating for the purposes of the Act the quantity of wheat milled at mills licensed under the Acts. The other bills are the Commissioner of Valuation (Substitute) Bill, 1937; Imposition of Duties (Confirmation of Orders) (No. 2) Bill, and the Expiring Laws Bill, 1937.

At question time Mr. William O'Brien will ask the President whether, in view of the peaceful state of the country, the Executive Council are prepared to extend an amnesty to all persons who have been convicted of political offences.

Mr. William T. Cosgrave will ask the Minister for Local Government and Public Health whether he is aware: (1) That as a result of anti-diphtheritic immunisation carried out at Ring, Co. Waterford, in November, 1936, one child has died and twenty-three children have been infected with tuberculosis; (2) whether he has received a memorial from the parents of these children, and, if so, what action has been taken in reference thereto: (a) whether an inquiry has been held; (b) whether, if no inquiry has been held, it is intended to hold one; and (c) whether special precautions have been taken to secure against a repetition of the occurrence referred to.

Further questions arising out of the same occurrence have been tabled by Deputies Seamus Bourke, R. S. Anthony and Tadhg O Murchadha.

CIVIC GUARDS' PAY

Mr. Gerrard L. McGowan will ask the Minister for Justice whether he is aware of the discontent among members of the Civic Guard force concerning their present scales of pay; whether any representations have been made to him in the matter, and whether he has in contemplation any proposals to remedy the grievances of which the Guards complain.

Mr. Eamonn O'Neill will ask the Minister for Justice if he has been approached on behalf of the National Leaseholders' Association with reference to the grievances arising out of leasehold and ground rents, and if he intends to set up an inquiry into these grievances with a view to their subsequent redress by legislation.

Mr. John Flynn will ask the Minister for Agriculture if he will again consider the possibilities of further negotiations with American fish buyers with a view to the re-opening of the markets for cured mackerel from the Free State.

Mr. Patrick McGovern will ask the Minister for Agriculture if he is aware that there is a demand for bacon produced from the Ulster breed of pigs which is not being met by the curers at present, and that a co-operative factory is being started in Cootehill, part of whose business will be to cure Ulster pigs to meet this demand, and if he will give an assurance that his department will discontinue the policy of stamping out the Ulster breed.

Mr. Alfred Byrne, jun., will ask the Minister for Education if he proposes to supply free school books to necessitous children

Major Myles and Mr. Micheal Og MacFadden will ask the Minister for Agriculture whether he has received complaints from provision traders in Donegal with reference to a shortage in the supply of bacon.

A BISCUIT FACTORY

Mr. James M. Dillon will ask the Minister for Industry and Commerce whether any representations were made to him with a view to having a biscuit factory established in Clones, and whether his department refused to afford any facilities for the enterprise; and, if so, if he will state what were the reasons for his refusal.

MR. DE VALERA'S RETURN

WELCOMED AT DUN LAOGHAIRE

Looking well after a good crossing from Holyhead, President de Valera arrived at Dun Laoghaire yesterday evening on his return from the League of Nations Assembly meeting at Geneva.

Accompanied by Dr. M. Rynne, head of the League of Nations section of the Department of External Affairs; Mr. J. J. Hearne, Legal Adviser to the Department; Mr. Warnock, Department of External Affairs; Miss K. O'Connell, his secretary, and Captain J. Brennan, his aide-de-camp, Mr. de Valera acknowledged the salute given him by a company of Civic Guards and the cheers raised by women among those who lined the water front.

Among those who were on the pier to meet him were Mr. S. T. O'Kelly, Vice-President of the Executive Council; Mr. F. Aiken, Minister for Defence; Mr. O. Traynor, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs; Mr. Vivion de Valera and Dr. E. de Valera, sons of the President; Miss M. Pearse, Mr. J. F. Walsh, secretary, and Mr. S. Murphy (External Affairs); Mr. M. Moynihan, Secretary to the Executive Council; Mr. P. J. Little, Parliamentary Secretary to the President; Mr. J. M. Irwin, Irish manager, L.M.S., and Captain McGurk, Acting Harbour Master.

BATTLE FRONT EXTENDS

GRIM STRUGGLE IN CHINA

THE Sino-Japanese battle-front in the five provinces of Northern China now extends over a distance of 1,250 miles, according to a Tokyo despatch.

Guerrilla warriors have reappeared among the western hills, close to Peiping, to the number of about 2,000. The Japanese state that a number of Chinese students are fighting among them.

Large-scale, sweeping operations by all the Japanese troops in Peiping, nearly 10,000, with tanks have cleared an area of some 30 square miles, the guerrilla fighters retreating among the mountains.

CEASELESS FIGHTING

Ceaseless fighting continued all along the front at Shanghai yesterday, where the Japanese have launched the heaviest aerial attack yet made on the Chinese positions in Chapei.

The Chinese, however, claim that their troops were neither defeated nor demoralised, and that in return they severely harassed the Japanese.

Much of the fighting was hand-to-hand work among the ruins of Chapei, causing terrible loss of life on both sides.

The Japanese claim some advance at two points, chiefly towards the principal Chinese base at Kiating. But they admit that the Chinese resistance is very stiff.

IN THE SOUTH

In South China the Japanese say that Canton has been reinforced with 40 battle 'planes, sent by General Chiang Kai-shek, also that the Canton River has now been completely blocked against entry of Japanese warships.

Japanese bluejackets have landed on three small islands off the mouth of the Canton River, and are said to be levelling the ground for an aerodrome.

A Shanghai telegram says:—To-day saw the severest attack yet staged on the Chinese positions in Chapei, just north of the International Settlement. Hundreds of Japanese bombs fell on the area, but the Chinese claim that their troops have been neither dislodged nor demoralised.

AMERICAN MARINES

American marines were yesterday forced to withdraw temporarily from some of their outposts along Soochow Creek.

The Chinese are now hitting back with nights raids, which are sorely harassing the Japanese warships.

Meanwhile the Japanese warships' guns continue to hammer steadily at Pootung across the river.

GENERAL EXECUTED

News comes from Shansi that General Li Fu-yin, Commander-in-Chief of the 61st Army, has been executed by Marshal Yen Hsi-shan, Governor of Shansi, for losing Northern Shansi to the Japanese. Marshal Yen interrogated the defeated General for twelve hours.

BOMBS NEAR NANKING

Six Japanese 'planes flying at a great height dropped bombs just outside Nanking, on the southern side, yesterday, says Reuter. Chinese pursuit 'planes engaged the raiders, who were dispersed after exciting fights in the twilight.

NORTHERN JUDGES' SALARIES

Six M.P.'s Vote Against Increase

IN the Northern Parliament to-day, during a discussion on a money resolution fixing the salaries of the Recorders of Belfast and Derry and the County Court Judges, Mr. W. J. Nixon (Independent) said that the Government, after six months of idleness, came to the House, and their first action was to introduce a resolution raising the salaries of Judges from £30 per week to £40 per week. The Government, he said, had made Northern Ireland a super-paradise for lawyers.

Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Finance, moved the money resolution authorising charges on the Consolidated Fund in respect of the following salaries for County Court Judges:—Recorder of Belfast, £2,000; Recorder of Londonderry, £1,650; County Court Judges of Armagh and Fermanagh, Down and Tyrone, £1,500 each. The emoluments of these judges at present, he said, consisted of a salary fixed in 1877, plus a cost-of-living bonus. It was now proposed to merge salary and bonus on a basis equivalent to the rates of remuneration drawn by the present holders of the offices.

At present the only judge to whom the proposals would apply was the County Court Judge for Tyrone and all judges subsequently appointed.

THE PERFECT STATE

Mr. J. Beattie (Labour) said that the Government had no power to alter the existing salaries. The Recorder of Belfast's salary was fixed in 1897 at £2,000, and at that time the salary of the Recorder of Dublin was fixed at £2,500. Since then the duties of the Recorder of Belfast had increased enormously. The salaries of some of the County Court Judges were too high for the time they had to devote to the duties. The bill was providing a paradise for lawyers. The only perfect State would be one where there were no lawyers, and if politicians did their duty and passed simple Acts of Parliament it would not be necessary to secure lawyers to interpret them.

Mr. Nixon said that the Government had made the North a super-paradise for lawyers

Mr. Robert Crawford (Unionist) thought that no salaries should be increased at present. He moved that the salary of the County Court Judges be £1,400 per annum instead of £1,550.

Captain Herbert Dixon, Chief Whip, said the judges' salaries were fixed by the Imperial Parliament and could not be reduced.

Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nationalist)—Have we no jurisdiction over the County Court Judges?

Captain Dixon—You can increase their remuneration if you wish to give them a bonus, but you cannot decrease the salaries fixed by the Imperial Parliament.

FREE STATE JUDGES

Mr. Campbell said that the salaries of judges in Northern Ireland approximated to those paid in the Free State to Circuit Judges, but these Circuit Judges had to cover a much wider area, in some cases three and five counties, involving continuous sittings of about nine months of the year. Several counties in Northern Ireland could be amalgamated under one judge. He urged that, as the duties of the Recorder of Belfast had been greatly increased, his salary should be increased. He was the one judge who was not receiving any increase above the salary fixed sixty years ago.

Colonel Gordon, Parliamentary Secretary, said that judges appointed before the passing of the Government of Ireland Act were protected, and, therefore, they did not come under this bill. There was no increase in salaries or bonus by the present resolution. The question of revising the areas presented many difficulties, and could not be put into operation during the tenure of the existing judges, but would be taken into account at some future date, when new appointments were being made.

WHOLE-TIME JOBS

Mr. D. H. Christie (Unionist) said that it was a well-known fact that no County Court Judgeship to-day was a whole-time job, except the Recordership of Belfast, and he considered that one judge should have jurisdiction over two counties.

Mr. T. Henderson (Ind. Unionist) said that the Government were more concerned with the salaries of judges who were already getting £30 per week than they were for the 70,000 people in Northern Ireland who were starving. It would be better if the Government were finding employment for the thousands of workers in dire distress.

Mr. Rowley Elliott seconded the proposal of Mr. Crawford that the salary of the County Court Judges be £1,400, instead of £1,550, in future appointments.

The Attorney-General said that the Government was perfectly well aware that in the future it might be necessary to readjust the areas of the County Court Judges.

On a division the amendment to reduce the County Court Judges' salaries was defeated by 21 votes to 6, and the money resolution was passed.

CHICAGO AND LONDON

The Times, in a leading article to-day on the protests in London and Chicago against Japanese terrorism in China, says: Too much reliance upon force as an element in the structure of peace may be as disastrous as too little. When pent-up bitterness and vindictiveness, the brew of four years of war, submerged the peacemakers of 1919, force took the place of the appeal to good-will—with the results which all can see. Yet, day in and day out, those among us who are counted, and count themselves, the most zealous for peace are still preaching force to the uttermost. Even successful force must be negative. A repressed and frustrated aggressor does not cease to be a menace to peace, since he that is convinced against his will is of his own opinion still. But what is to be said of ineffective force, which destroys peace without frustrating the aggressor?

The people of this country have shown that they are ready to play their part in the collective defence of peace. But all their instincts and experience tell them that the basis of ordered life is constructive rather than punitive. Honest indignation in these matters will, by itself, only succeed in setting the wise to their proverbial task of repairing the mischief done by the good. To turn again to the doctrine of appeasement when you have the least inclination to it, or apparent justification for it, is not despicable, either as ethics or as statesmanship. But the doctrine cuts two ways. Those who make appeasement impossible by refusing the way of conciliation, and by making their own strength the sole measure of their act, are threatening not only their neighbours, but, as Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday, civilisation itself. His warning to them is—and it could come with effect only from the United States—that such a threat must encounter in the end not only the united condemnation, but the united resistance, of all civilised nations, and a deployment of force that will not be ineffective.

AMERICAN HORSE SHOW

FREE STATE TEAM TO BE PRESENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

A team of Irish Free State officers will compete in the nightly international military jumping contests at the American National Horse Show at the Madison Square Garden from November 3 to 10.

An Irish team finished second to the British team last year for the Perpetual Military Challenge Trophy.

It is expected that a Belgian team will also take part in the tournament.

FARMER KILLED BY BULL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

FERMOY, Tuesday.

Hugh Higgins, Frankfort, Curraglass, farmer, aged 75, was attacked by a bull last evening while driving cattle to water on his farm. He was so severely injured on the head that he died within a couple of hours. At the inquest to-day medical evidence showed that Mr. Higgins died of shock and laceration of the brain, following fracture of the base of the skull, and a verdict accordingly was returned, the injuries having being apparently caused by the bull.

A dispute about haulage hands' wages led to three of the biggest collieries in North Wales being idle yesterday—Llay Main, Gresford and Hafod, all near Wrexham. About 5,000 men were affected. A meeting of the men decided to resume work to-day pending the decision of a conference between representatives of the owners and men next week.

MINISTER AND BRAY COUNCIL

SANCTION TO LOANS REFUSED

SEVERE CRITICISM OF METHODS

INSPECTOR'S COMMENTS IN REPORT

THE Minister for Local Government has refused the Bray Urban District Council's application for sanction to loans of £33,400. The letter conveying his decision, which was read at the meeting of the Council last night, severely criticises the conduct of the Council and its officials.

An inquiry had been made into applications for sanction to loans of £3,400 for swimming pools, £20,000 for use under the Small Dwellings Acts and £10,000 to be used under the Housing of the Working Classes Act. It occupied five days in April and May last.

When the Council was considering the minutes of its last meeting Mr. H. B. Hipwell protested strongly against the delay of the Ministry in forwarding a copy of the inspector's report; other members supported his protest.

At a later stage the Chairman (Mr. G. Byrne) said he had received a letter from the Ministry of Local Government in regard to the inquiry. The statements contained in it were so serious from a financial point of view that he suggested it should be discussed by the Finance Committee, copies of the letter in the meantime to be sent to each member of the Council.

Mr. Hipwell agreed, provided that a copy of the report of the inspector was available at the same time.

THE LETTER

The Secretary, Mr. J. McCall, then read the letter, which, first of all, dealt with the evidence given before the Inspector. Evidence with regard to road-widening schemes, it stated, showed a total expenditure when the works were completed of £23,151. The Chairman of the Council, in evidence, had stated that views had been expressed at meetings that the work on roads and swimming pools was costing too much.

The Inspector stated that it was impossible to say to what extent the facts as to the progress of the work and its cost were reported to the Council. The swimming pools work appeared to have been undertaken without any due regard to the amount of expenditure that should properly be incurred.

"The evidence which, for the Town Clerk's part, was not given with the readiness, directness and certainty which the occasion called for, disclosed two main features—i.e., praiseworthy efforts in housing and employment on the one side; on the other, prodigality in the handling of funds, undertaking or continuing work without funds, and a Quixotic hope of obtaining them. . . . I cannot see that there has been a real attempt to keep expenditure within the limits of available funds. . . . The Town Clerk is content to say that the expenditure went on and on. . . . To reconcile the statements made with actual facts there is little aid anywhere; as I have explained already, the minutes for the period I examined reveal nothing, and such documents as I have looked over show no instructions or orders.

"VERY UNSATISFACTORY"

Men had left one job to attend a football match. There had been very bad management and supervision. A new mental outlook towards its responsibilities was needed by the Council and its officials. If the officials desired to avoid a charge of incompetency they must keep the expenditure within proper bounds. The evidence disclosd a very unsatisfactory position. No proper records had been kept of meetings at which works of this nature were considered, and the only conclusion that could be come to was that no serious attempt had been made to control the expenditure.

The Minister was unable to consider the proposal to raise a further loan of £3,400 until a complete reform had been made in the present system of administration. With regard to the application for £20,000 for the purposes of the Small Dwellings Acts, the administration of those Acts had been particularly unsatisfactory. Several borrowers were in arrears to a total of £1,260. One, an employé of the Council, owed £27. An advance was made to a member of the Council who subsequently obtained a licence for the sale of intoxicating liquor on the premises, and although the provisions of the Act were specially brought to the notice of the Council in this case, no action appeared to have been taken.

The Minister could not sanction any further borrowing under the Small Dwellings Acts. With regard to the loan of £10,000, a grant of £2,422 had been sanctioned from the Employment Schemes Vote, and the Minister would be prepared to sanction a loan to meet the Council's portion of the costs, and also such sums as would be required to pay the compensation for the lands. Before doing so, however, he would require to be furnished with a firm estimate of the total cost.

The Chairman said he did not agree with several of the things said in the letter, and suggested that consideration of it be adjourned to a special meeting in committee.

That course was agreed to.

OFFICIALS AT ELECTIONS

On the motion of Mr. E. Byrne, it was decided by 6 votes to 4, to rescind a resolution deducting a day's pay from officials of the Council who acted at a recent general election. A number of members of the Council having spoken in support of the motion, on the ground that no pay had been deducted in similar cases at past elections, it was opposed by Mr. P. Martin and the Chairman, Mr. G. Byrne.

The Chairman said that it was an established trades union principle, "one man, one job." There was too much in the country of people taking holidays with pay to obtain other jobs. He referred to civil servants, and said that the Horse Show was a very popular holiday period.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH. SANDYMOUNT

COURT OF GENERAL SYNOD TO MEET

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

The following statement appears in today's Belfast Telegraph:—

"We understand that a special sitting of the Court of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland will be held in the Church House, Armagh, on Friday, 29th inst., in connection with the case of Rev. S. R. S. Colquhoun, Rector of St. John's Church, Sandymount, Dublin.

"The petitioners now allege that the respondent has not implemented promises he gave to the Court, and that it has become necessary to cite him again."

Sarah Graham, aged 59, of Colenso Parade, Belfast, who was knocked down by a motor cycle on the Malone road on Monday evening, sustained a fractured skull, and was removed to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carters Brand Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carters Brand Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 2/- to this effect, by the Japanese leaders, the report says: "The Japanese Government has, on a number of occasions, stated its desire for a peaceful settlement and for harmonious co-operation between Japan and China. It has, however, insisted throughout that this result must be achieved by China and Japan alone, without any interference from third parties."

INVASION BY JAPAN

The attitude which the League and the Powers should adopt towards the conflict is discussed in a second report of the Committee of Thirteen. It states:

PEACE BY AGREEMENT

"The Committee is convinced that even at this stage of the conflict, before examining other possibilities, further efforts must be made to secure the restoration of peace by agreement.

"In attempting a settlement by negotiation of the present conflict, the League cannot lose sight of the fact that one party is not a member of the League, and has, in relation to the work of the Advisory Committee, explicitly declined to co-operate in political matters with the League.

The report concludes: "The Committee invites the Assembly to express its moral support for China, and to recommend that members of the League should not only refrain from taking any action which might have the effect of weakening China's powers of resistance and thus of increasing her difficulties in the present conflict, but also consider how far they can individually extend aid to China."

Later the full Committee of twenty-three adopted both reports. Poland abstained from voting, expressing the view that the rules of procedure had been neglected, and that a dangerous precedent was being established.

Canada and Switzerland said that they had not had time to consult their Governments, and, therefore, abstained from voting, without expressing any opinion on the substance of the report and resolution.

THE LEAGUE ASSEMBLY

The resolution is regarded less as a condemnation of Japan's policy in China than a strong vote of sympathy for China in her difficulties, and a promise of aid.

The League Assembly summoned last night to receive the resolution, decided to adjourn until 5 p.m. to-day to enable the delegates to consult their Governments.

The object of this move is to ensure that as few delegates as possible should plead inability to consult their Governments as a ground for abstaining from the vote.

THE STRUGGLE IN SPAIN

SUCCESSES CLAIMED BY GOVERNMENT

A Government success in North Spain is claimed in a Valencia telegram received by Reuter in London from the Spanish Press Agency. This stated that Republican troops in the Onis sector captured by assault Hill 468, north of El Abra. The insurgents fled in disorder, abandoning many dead.

In the Las Puertos sector an enemy attack was repulsed. Rain and fog kept aviation on the ground.

According to a Madrid telegram Republican troops continue their advance in the direction of Villevarde, southern suburb of the city, occupying new positions at Los Amigos.

The enemy offered no resistance, apparently demoralised by the recent successes of the Government troops in capturing Casa Derruida and the "trench of death," as well as 75 houses. The enemy pocket in the Usera sector has, consequently, been completely wiped out. From their new positions the Republican troops directly menace rebel communications, particularly the fortified positions on the Toledo highway, the message adds.

ANGLO-FRENCH INVITATION

STIFF ITALIAN REPLY EXPECTED

ROME, Tuesday.

The Italian reply to the British and French invitation for a conference on Spain may be published any day this week, it is authoritatively stated. While it is not expected that the invitation will be rejected outright, it is believed that Italy will make stiff conditions for her participation. They will include the extension of the invitation to Germany.

The "man in the street" in Italy is more and more doubtful whether Italy will agree to the withdrawal of any volunteers till the victory of General Franco has been assured.

DUCE'S MESSAGE TO FRANCO

It is officially announced that Signor Mussolini sent the following telegram to General Franco on October 1st, the first anniversary of the General's elevation to the headship of Nationalist Spain:—

"On the first anniversary of the assumption by Your Excellency of the leadership of the State, I desire to send to you my warmest congratulations for the results attained in this year of victorious struggle against the forces destructive of civilisation.

"In the name of Fascist Italy, which has followed the heroic events of the year with passion and with a sense of comradeship, I add my fervent wishes for the complete triumph of the Spanish national cause so nobly personified by you."

General Franco replied:—"In the name of National Spain, and in my own name, I deeply appreciate the stirring telegram which Your Excellency has sent me on the occasion of the anniversary of my elevation to the post of head of the State.

"At the same time I take this opportunity to express to you the extraordinary satisfaction given to all good Spaniards by the immense triumph of Your Excellency's journey to Germany—a journey which has sealed the friendship of two great peoples and the mutual understanding between their two great saviours."

Attempt to Cut Electricity Supply.—Another effort to cut the electricity supply in the Lurgan district, the second within a week, has been discovered by the Northern Ireland Electricity Board. CORK HONOURS ARCHBISHOP

CITY FREEDOM PRESENTED

EMANCIPATION DAYS RECALLED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT,

CORK, Tuesday.

THE Freedom of Cork City was to-day presented to the Most Rev. Dr. Finbarr Ryan, O.P., LL.D., Archbishop of Gabula and Co-adjutor Archbishop of Port of-Spain.

The conferring ceremony took place at the City Hall in the presence of a distinguished gathering, and His Grace was subsequently the guest of honour at a luncheon presided over by the Lord Mayor, Councillor James Hickey.

The Most Rev. Dr. Ryan is known throughout Ireland as a preacher and lecturer of unusual ability. Born in Cork in 1882, he is a member of a family all of whom have achieved distinction in various capacities. One brother, Sir Andrew Ryan, is British Minister Plenipotentiary to Albania. Another brother, the late Sir Thomas Ryan, was director general of the English State railways. His only sister is Professor Mary Ryan, M.A., who has held the Chair of Romance Languages in University College, Cork, since 1910, and who received the Cross of the Legion of Honour from the French Government some years ago.

The Lord Mayor and members of the Corporation received His Grace at the City Hall a little before noon to-day, and in the Lord Mayor's room distinguished visitors were presented. Then a procession headed by the Lord Mayor escorted the Archbishop to the Council Chamber, where the Lord Mayor, having extended a civic welcome to the Archbishop, the Town Clerk (Mr. C. Harrington) formally read in Irish and English the resolution conferring the Freedom of the City.

The Scroll of Freedom presented by the Lord Mayor, was enclosed in a beautifully-worked silver casket, specially manufactured in Cork.

At the City Hall a guard of honour of Civic Guards, under Superintendent F. O'Driscoll, was drawn up to receive His Grace, who was accompanied by the Very Rev. Fr. Stephens, O.P., Provincial, and the Very Rev. Fr. Hegarty, O.P., Prior, St. Mary's, Cork.

Among those presented to His Grace were: The Right Rev. Dean Sexton, Mr. Hugo V. Flinn, T.D. (representing Mr. de Valera); Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, Dr. P. J. Merriman, President, University College, Cork; Mr. S. Fitzgerald, Chairman, Cork Harbour Board; Chief Superintendent Hannigan, Civic Guards; Colonel McCabe, O.C., Southern Command; Judge O'Donnell, S.C., Cork Circuit Judge; Mr. J. Downey, Bursar, University College, Cork; Mr. P. Monahan, City Manager; etc.

LORD MAYOR'S TRIBUTE

The Lord Mayor expressed the great gratification of the city in having the privilege of bestowing the highest honour in its gift to Archbishop Ryan. It was, he said, fitting that the Cork City Hall—once destroyed because it symbolised our national characteristics—had to-day been raised from its ashes and was the scene of a ceremony where a worthy member of their Church was the first to receive within its walls the most treasured gift in the keeping of the citizens to bestow. It was with feelings of no ordinary regret that they contemplated his approaching departure, but no length of time or distance would sever the ties that bound him to them, and they would always claim him as a Cork man and a friend. They had some consolation in his separation from them in the belief that his future ministry would be one of honour and usefulness to the Church and to Ireland. He had attained every distinction in the gift of his renowned Order: yet his simplicity was his outstanding quality, and endeared him to all.

His Grace, having signed the Roll of Freemen, said that he most deeply appreciated the honour. When he thought of the very distinguished people upon whom that honour had heretofore been conferred, he was still more sensible of the dignity accorded to him, because it was quite clear that the City of Cork did not throw away its favours. He expressed his regret at the death of the late Lord Mayor, Alderman S. French. The City of Cork was a very ancient city, which had for its founder a Saint, and he felt a certain thrill himself that day to receive the Freedom of the City of St. Finbar, since he was himself Finbar. In 1224 what was quite possibly the first foundation of the Dominican Order in Ireland was made near the then Monastery of St. Finbar. As a Dominican, he looked back rather proudly to that date, and he thought the citizens of Cork might take a certain amount of pride from the fact that never once since that year, 1224, had the continuity of the services of the Dominican Fathers to the citizens been interrupted. When Emancipation came, their Church of St. Mary's was, he thought the first to be erected in a public and grand manner after the achievement of O'Connell, and it could be looked upon in some sort as a public memorial of Catholic Emancipation. So it was recognised at the time of its opening in 1829, because all the then bishops of Ireland came to Cork, and Daniel O'Connell himself came, and the civic worthies of the city were present, too, to recognise the grandeur of the freedom which had come to the Faith.

Speaking of the West Indies, to which his new appointment will take him, His Grace commented on the Cromwellian persecutions and the sending forth of many Irish people to the West Indies. A number of Irish Dominicans, he said, followed the transportees in those days. His Grace declared, amidst laughter, that in the Island of Montserrat there was quite a distinct trace of the Cork accent.

There was again a distinguished gathering at the subsequent luncheon which was marked by felicitous speeches by several of the distinguished visitors.

DUKE OF WINDSOR IN PARIS

VISIT TO EXHIBITION WITH DUCHESS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor paid a prolonged visit to the Paris Exhibition to-day.

First they were entertained at lunch by the Exhibition Welcome Committee in the "Normandie" Pavilion at the Merchant Marine Pavilion, and later visited the German, Belgian, Yugoslavian and Danish Pavilions.

While crossing the bridge in an electric taxi the Duke and Duchess were recognised by a crowd of sightseers and enthusiastically cheered.

The Duke of Windsor spoke "faultless German" says a statement issued by the Press Bureau of the German Pavilion following the Duke's visit.

It further states that he took great interest in all the objects shown to him, especially those of a technical and industrial nature.

THE AMERICAN VISIT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The Duke of Windsor will be able to count on the full assistance of the Federal Housing Administration in his investigation of housing conditions in the United States.

Anticipating that the Duke might be interested in inspecting several large-scale housing projects in the Washington area which are financed by private enterprise in conjunction with the Federal Housing Administration, Mr. Stewart Macdonald, the Federal Housing Administrator, said to-day:—"We will give full co-operation, and will make available to the Duke and Duchess all the facilities of the Federal Housing Administration."

BALLINASLOE GREAT FAIR

A BIG TRADE IN HUNTERS

ALL CLASSES OF HORSES DEAR

FROM OUR REPORTER.

BALLINASLOE, Tuesday.

PRICES for first class hunters at the five day fair, which was continued here to-day, ranged from about £80 to £250. In quality and type the horses showed an improvement on those of last year. Since the last fair prices advanced about 20 per cent. all round. English and Northern Ireland buyers attended in bigger numbers than last year, but though demand for all classes of horses was keen a considerable number remained unsold, the owners holding out for higher prices. In the early part of the day prices were not as high as later. Another reason given for the failure to clear was that there was a glut of horses on offer, the number estimated at about 1,500. Generally speaking, however, sellers were satisfied with the prices secured. A well known western breeder of hunters told our reporter that prices and demand were the most satisfactory in his 30 years experience of the fair.

A small number of troopers on offer were quickly sold at from £30 to £50 each. Serviceable farm horses sold well, and good draughts went as high as £40. Suitable dray horses, were bought at £45, and half-bred horses about four years old were sold for £60 and £70.

Mr. O. Dixon, Reading, purchased 25 hunters at prices ranging from £100 to £250. Captain Weaver and Mr. Harry Gale purchased about 17 hunters each, and paid similar prices.

HEAVY FINES FOR SMUGGLING

WHAT CAR SEARCHES REVEALED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT,

DUNDALK, Tuesday.

Fines amounting to £500 were imposed by District Justice Goff in Castleblayney (Co. Monaghan) District Court to-day, when five people were charged separately with smuggling offences. Annie Jane Wilson, Tullyrahan, who was charged with having smuggled maize meal in her house, admitted that she had imported the meal from Northern Ireland. She was fined £100.

Bernard Martin, Mallaghadee, charged with having smuggled sugar and maize meal in his house, admitted that he smuggled the goods. He was fined £100.

Owen Cunningham, of Aghadreenan, was fined £100 for smuggling a pot of jam and a half-stone of sugar.

Mrs. Annie Irwin, of Market Square, Castleblayney, was charged with smuggling various dutiable goods, and James H. Crozier, Hope Arms Hotel, was similarly charged.

The defendants pleaded guilty.

Mr. J. J. Keenan, State Solicitor, said that the two defendants were in a motor car. In the luggage receptacle 7lb. of icing sugar was found, which the woman said she could not get in the Free State. Another 1lb. of chocolates was found in the car, and when the matting of the driver's seat was lifted 2lb. of sweets were found. Underneath the driver's seat was tinned tomato soup, and from another place tins of another class of soup were taken out. Underneath the seats more tins were found. In the tool box underneath the bonnet there were eight tins of beans, a pair of gent.'s new shoes, four tins of soup, two electric lighting bulbs, a tin of insecticide, and at the back of the instrument board there was 1lb. of sausages. Crozier produced linen table centres from his coat, and Mrs. Crozier also produced a pair of lady's silk stockings. She admitted that a raincoat was bought in Belfast and the duty had not been paid on it.

The Justice imposed a fine of £100 in each case.

SOUTH ATLANTIC FLIGHT RECORD

On its return flight across the South Atlantic from Natal (Brazil) to Dakar (West Africa) the new Air France four-engined Farman land 'plane has, Reuter learns, set up a new record for the crossing from West to East.

Last week the 'plane broke the record for the East to West crossing in a time of 12 hours 25 minutes.

ROOSEVELT'S PLEA

pelled, nevertheless, to look ahead. The peace, freedom and security of 90 per cent. of the population of the world is being jeopardised by the remaining ten per cent. . . . The situation is definitely of universal concern.

THE PROBLEMS

"The questions involved relate not merely to violations of specific provisions of particular treaties . . . they also involve problems of world economy, world security and world humanity.

"It is true that the moral consciousness of the world must recognise the importance of removing injustices and well-founded grievances, but, at the same time, it must be aroused to the cardinal necessity of honouring the sanctity of treaties and respecting the rights and liberties of others, and of putting an end to acts of international aggression.

"It seems to be, unfortunately, true that the epidemic of world lawlessness is spreading. When an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread the community approves, and joins in a quarantine of the patients in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of disease.

"It is my determination to pursue a policy of peace, and to adopt every practicable measure to avoid involvement in war. No nation which refuses to exercise forbearance and to respect the freedom and rights of others can long remain strong . . . War is a contagion, whether it be declared or undeclared.

TO KEEP OUT OF WAR

"We are determined to keep out of war. Yet we cannot insure ourselves against the disastrous effects of war and the dangers of involvement. We are adopting such measures as will minimise our risks of involvement, but we cannot have complete protection in a world of disorder, in which confidence and security have broken down.

"If civilisation is to survive, the principles of the Prince of Peace must be restored . . . most important of all, the will for peace on the part of the peace-loving nations must express itself to the end that nations that may be tempted to violate their agreements and the rights of others will desist from such a course.

"There must be positive endeavours to preserve peace.

"America hates war; America hopes for peace. Therefore, America actively engages in the search for peace."

WELCOMED IN LONDON

The speech has aroused wide interest in London, says Reuter's Diplomatic Correspondent. Attention is naturally centred on the President's statement that it is impossible for any nation completely to isolate itself from economic and political upheavals in the rest of the world, and on his strong references to international lawlessness. Observers here recognise the importance of utterances by the Chief Executive of the United States that amount to a most solemn condemnation of acts of aggression.

Such utterances would appear to confirm that Japanese aggression in the Far East and foreign intervention in Spain are as strongly condemned in the United States as they are in Great Britain. With regard to the President's implied references to the presence of foreign nationals in Spain, it is noted that the policy which President Roosevelt condemns with such vigour has resulted in the very situation which it is now the aim of Great Britain to rectify by making non-intervention effective.

The speech, it is felt, tends to reinforce from the standpoint of a detached Power the demand of Britain and France for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from the Spanish conflict. It is, therefore, particularly welcomed as helpful at a time when a lead has been taken here in making non-intervention effective, and it is felt that it should impress those Powers now engaged in movements of aggression.

"MARK THIS WELL"

In usually well-informed quarters in Washington it is believed that President Roosevelt's speech is one of the most important he has ever delivered on foreign affairs, says Reuter.

Unusual attention is being paid to the passage in which he spoke about the application of quarantine; for when he reached this portion of his speech he paused significantly and asked hearers to "mark this well." This remark was not contained in the advance copy of his speech.

Whether the United States is contemplating some move designed to prevent the spread of Sino-Japanese and Spanish conflicts to wider areas is the subject of much speculation. Some observers felt that the remark indicated some future effort in the direction of isolating all aggressors from world commerce.

The speech generally was taken as an indication that President Roosevelt is exploring every field in the quest of peace, and might be regarded as calculated to lend the unqualified moral support of the United States Government to any concerted effort to restore world peace.

In few quarters was it thought that the United States would be prepared to take the initiative, but it was felt that the speech was meant to contain definite encouragement to the League of Nations to proceed with sterner and more practical measures against aggressors—measures which would receive the full support of the United States.

COURTMARTIAL ON U.S. AIRMAN

DEATH PENALTY DEMANDED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SALAMANCA, Tuesday.

The fair-haired American airman, Harold Dahl, who was shot down at Brunete in July, together with three Russian aviators, were put on trial here to-day for "taking arms against the Spanish nation."

The prosecuting counsel demanded the death penalty for all four. The trial was presided over by Colonel Frederico Acosta and six other insurgent officers, and the Marquis del Merito, who was educated at Eton and Cambridge and is a lieutenant in the insurgent air forces, was chosen as "prisoners' friend."

Before a crowded court statements by Dahl were read out to the effect that he had enlisted as an instructor in Spain, and had been forced to fight at the point of the pistol. He declared that he had no political object in coming to Spain.

When asked whether he had anything to say, he answered "No," while the Russian airmen intimated that they did not regard themselves as volunteers, but as soldiers serving Russia.

There was a dramatic interruption when a telegram from his wife was brought in to Dahl.

In defending Dahl, the Marquis de Merito made an eloquent appeal for mercy, based on the trickery alleged to have been practised by "Red" agents in luring men out to Spain from America.

The Russians appealed for mercy on the grounds of their political upbringing in the U.S.S.R., and of the fact that they were soldiers and had to do what they were told.

According to reports, his wife sent a personal appeal to General Franco, accompanied by her photograph. She received an answer indicating that her husband's exchange with prisoners in Government hands was being negotiated.

ARCHBISHOP'S PROTEST

AGAINT JAPANESE AGGRESSION

ECONOMIC PRESSURE SUGGESTED

THE Archbishop of Canterbury, who presided last night over a thronged meeting in the Albert Hall, London, declared that after making all allowances for exaggerations regarding the indiscriminate bombing of non combatant civilians in China, there remained only too much cause for a sense of dismay and horror.

The Archbishop said that his special responsibilities imposed some restraint upon his words, but the effectiveness, the solemnity of their protest would be strengthened and not weakened if they could put some restraint upon the expression of their natural emotions.

Referring to a protest which had been made by the Archbishop of Tokio to his presence at that meeting, he said: "I must needs have special relations of friendship with the Japanese Christians. I know that many of them are distressed by my being here this evening. I wonder, indeed, how far they know the facts as they have reached us in this country. But even between friends the voice of conscience cannot be silenced, and conscience forbids us to maintain a silence which might be taken to mean acquiescence."

APPEAL TO JAPAN

We make our appeal to the Government and people of Japan to restrain the actions of their naval and military commanders in China, and thus to vindicate their place among civilised nations. But what is to happen if, in spite of protests and appeals the deeds of ruthlessness are proved to be continuing?

"If protest fails ought not there to be some common action, in the way of some form of economic pressure or otherwise, on the part of the nations who have recorded these protests. I could not myself join in any call to the British Government to act alone, but we are entitled to ask our Government, if protest and appeal are unavailing, to take a lead by letting it be known that they are prepared to act, if they can obtain such support from other nations as would make their action effective, and by inviting other nations to join them.

CALL FOR ACTION

"Is not the lesson of the events a call for concerted action in which we hope our Government will take a lead towards stopping the increase and reducing the number of these terrible instruments of destruction (bombing aircraft), and even towards securing by common consent the total abolition of their use before it is too late?"

A message from Mr. Lloyd George stated:—"If civilisation is to be saved, then aggressors must be made to realise by combined and definite action among the more humane and peace-loving countries of the world that barbarism is not a paying game."

Other messages were received from Mr. Winston Churchill, Sir Archibald Sinclair, Professor Gilbert Murray, and from Mr. Ben Tillett, who wrote:—"I trust that the dockers of all ports and nations of the world will stop Japanese ships. The only alternative at the moment is that they may have to stop Japanese shells with their bodies as the Chinese are doing now."

The Earl of Lytton described the war being carried on by Japan as an international crime.

A resolution was carried recording horror at, and emphatic condemnation of, the indiscriminate attacks upon civilian non-combatants by Japanese forces in China, and urging the British Government to take the lead in securing concerted action by economic measures and otherwise to prevent their continuance.

A CHINESE GENERAL

General Yung Hu-Cheng, a member of the Supreme War Council of China, speaking at a meeting of the "Unity Campaign" at Bournemouth, said: "The waging of war on innocent citizens, especially women and children away from the war zone, is an indication of Japanese barbarism. The people of China are prepared to shed their last drop of blood to resist this aggression. It is the hope of the Chinese people that all the Powers of the world will use their great military power to safeguard peace."

LOCAL ELECTIONS IN THE NORTH

BELFAST, Tuesday.

Nominations were received in Belfast yesterday for fifteen vacancies in the Corporation, one in each of the city wards. There will be contests in four wards unless some of the nominated candidates withdraw. Mr. Robert Ritchie, an Independent Unionist, was nominated for the Pottinger Ward to oppose Mr. W. R. Keatings, J.P., the official Unionist candidate.

In the Shankill Ward Councillor Robert Hill, Independent Unionist, is being opposed by Mr. Robert T. Henderson, official Unionist. Mr. John Malcolm, a trade union official, is going forward as a Labour candidate in St. George's Ward against the official Unionist candidate, Mr Kennedy Leacock.

The following candidates were returned unopposed:—Clifton Ward—Councillor Courtney Catherwood. St. Anne's Ward—Councillor F. W. Kennedy. Court Ward—Councillor R. J. R. At Derry there was considerable surprise when it was learned that Nationalists had made no nominations. They decided to ignore the elections, holding that it was not worth while taking any action on this occasion, when only two vacancies are to be filled in each of five wards. There will be no contests, and Unionists who were nominated yesterday were returned unopposed.

Mr. Andrew Thomson, Limavady road, was nominated to fill the additional vacancy created by the recent death of Councillor A. Duncan, and Councillor James Hamilton, J.P., Northland road, was nominated for the vacant aldermanship. Mr. Michael McNutt was nominated to fill the vacancy created in the south ward by the resignation of Councillar P. Maxwell.

Nominations for Lurgan Urban Council received last evening for five vacancies included:—Messrs. Edward Lunn, D. C. Malcolmson, Wm. Hill, Fred A. Monroe. All the retiring members were again nominated, and also James Neill, Frederick place; Thomas McGrath, Avenue road, and Samuel Ewart, Windsor avenue.

IRISH LINEN WEEK

Mr. H. Milne Barbour, Minister of Commerce in the Northern Ireland Government, and the Lord Mayor of Bristol, Mr. A. F. Moon, spoke at a luncheon given by the Irish Linen Guild at Bristol yesterday, inaugurating an Irish Linen Week.

Mr. Barbour said that the Irish linen industry had suffered through his country's loyalty in the war. Then almost the entire output of their linen factories was devoted to the Government purposes and the civil trade suffered, as people began to use substitutes.

LABOUR REJECTS COMMUNISM

AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY

MR. CLYNES'S REPLY TO SIR S. CRIPPS

BY a majority of 1,785,000 votes, the British Labour Party Conference at Bournemouth yesterday rejected Sir Stafford Cripps's motion to refer back that part of the Executive's annual report which dealt with a United Front policy. The report contained the following sentence:—

"The Executive calls upon all members of the party to refrain from any further joint activities with the Communist Party and the I.L.P."

The voting was:—For reference back, 331,000; against, 2,115,000.

In moving the reference back, Sir Stafford Cripps said that the issue was vital. He believed profoundly in the necessity of trying to convert the party to the view that unity was essential at all cost, and whatever the risks. It had always been permissible for members of the party to urge opposition views upon a public platform, he added, "Lord Cecil, Mr. Winston Churchill and the Archbishop of Canterbury are three of the bitterest opponents of the working class that you can find in Great Britain, and yet eminent members of the Labour Party in high and influential positions have shared, and are sharing, platforms with them to-day. Why was the rest of the movement forbidden this right of association, he asked. He knew the majority did not wish to see the imposition of a strait jacket upon the opinions of the Right any more than they did on the opinions of the Left. They must not be limited to strict and crushing orthodoxy. Without public discussion of new ideas the party would become lifeless and mechanical.

MR. CLYNE'S CRITICISM

Mr. J. R. Clynes, for the Executive, said that the issue was whether they were going to reverse all their previous decisions. "I doubt whether there is a political body in the world more rigid and more foreign in the enforcement of its decrees than the Communist Party," he declared. My profound conviction is that association with the Communists would be fatal to the future influence, power and progress of the Labour Party. An alliance with them would strengthen the Fascist and enfeeble the Labour Party. This demand was for a hollow unity. Let them go their own way.

Mr. J. McGurk (Lancashire), in the course of a speech which was often interrupted, said: Sir Stafford Cripps is a rich man. He has got some rich pals around him, and they are the biggest danger to the Labour Party in this country. You will find this chap and Mosley together before very long.

Mr. G. R. Strauss, M.P., protested that Mr. McGurk was not expressing the views of tens of thousands of miners who remembered the services of Sir Stafford in the Gresford colliery disaster and the Harworth prosecutions without any payment.

Mr. Herbert Morrison expressed regret that Sir Stafford's professional services had been mentioned Sir Stafford, he said, would be the first to say that in his present eminent professional position it meant very much less to him than much self-sacrificing work of men and women in the party.

Continuing, Mr. Morrison said that if the United Front went through it would split the Labour Party from top to bottom. Sir Stafford and his friends were not playing the game. They were constantly attacking the party and casting reflections. They could have been expelled, but were not. "Tolerance has been exercised—much more tolerance than they would have got in the Communist Party," he said. "We cannot go on like this. I hate the job of expelling people. We don't want to do it, but this conference is going to take a decision, and the Executive has plenty of power." During the coming months reasonable discipline must be maintained.

A vote was then taken on Sir Stafford Cripps's motion to refer back the report, with the result announced above.

The Executive's report was adopted.

SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS'S RESIGNATION

Sir Stafford Cripps last night resigned the Presidency of the Committee of Constituency Labour Parties. "I feel it could be better filled by someone who will be less an embarrassment to you in the future," he said.

Sir Stafford referring to the Unity Party in a speech at Bournemouth last night said: "It is our purpose if we can, to remain a part and parcel of the Labour movement giving it all the services we can."

GAVE MONEY AWAY

REMARKABLE COURT STORY

EXTRAORDINARY evidence was given at Dungannon Crown Sessions yesterday when Patrick Connolly, Maghery, Co. Armagh, and Helena McGuckian, Moneymore, Co. Derry, were charged with the larceny of two head of cattle, value £16 10s., by means of a worthless cheque at the March Moy fair.

Sergeant Vance said he cautioned the female defendant, who admitted being present at Moy, but said that Connolly had purchased the cattle.

Sergeant Bell said that when he arrested both prisoners, Connolly said he bought no cattle, that the woman had bought them. McGuckian said, "I stole no cattle and I drove no cattle away."

McGuckian, in evidence, said that when she was sixteen, in 1922, she went to America and saved a considerable sum of money. She opened a confectionery shop in Edward street, Belfast, in September, 1936. Connolly came and introduced himself, and he continued to visit the place, and said he had farms in Tyrone and Armagh and was in the horse dealing business. He borrowed sums of money from witness, including £25 and £40 for business. None of the money was returned, and she gave him a further £40 when he told her a "hard luck" story.

DEEDS DEPOSITED

Later in the year Connolly wanted to open a bank account, and they went to the Provincial Bank head office in Belfast and she deposited the deeds of her farm as security for £250 which the directors said was the limit of credit to be granted to Connolly. She afterwards found Connolly putting the money to bad use, and when she called in the bank she was told to sign the cheques with Connolly, and she would then know how the money was being spent.

Connolly received £80 in notes in Armagh and bought cattle and a horse, for which he paid by cheque, although he had the roll of notes in his possession.

She eventually found that Connolly was a married man, and that he had not even a place of his own. He frequently abused her.

Captain Fyffe—Why did you not leave him when he abused you?—I had grown very fond of him. I did anything Connolly said because I loved him, and I gave him all my money.

Connolly denied that he had purchased the cattle. He also denied borrowing £40 from McGuckian and later telling her that after he had purchased ponies at Cushendall they had raced over the cliffs were were drowned. He also denied signing the cheque at Moy fair.

WOMAN DISCHARGED

Connolly was handed over a cheque, and then admitted that he had signed it.

The jury found the female prisoner not guilty, and returned a verdict of guilty in the case of Connolly.

Discharging the female prisoner, Judge Hanna said it would be some time before she would again see Connolly, and he urged her to try and get him out of her mind and heart.

Sentencing Connolly to four months' imprisonment with hard labour, his Honour said he was trying to keep from his mind the despicable conduct of the prisoner towards this girl. He could not express the depth to which he had been moved by her story.

MISSIONS IN CHINA

A letter, dated September 23rd, has just been received by the Church Missionary Society in London, and gives the following news as to conditions in the Fukien Province, where so many Irish missionaries are working:—

"All is normal and quiet in Fukien, and missionaries have returned to their stations in the interior. The Foochow schools are carrying on, and are well filled. The only anxiety in the mission is the fact that there may be difficulty about getting supplies of foreign food, as the river channel leading up to Foochow has been blocked some twelve or fifteen miles from the city. Letters to all missionaries in China should be addressed, for the time being, c/o Rev. G. K. Carpenter, St. John's Hall, Hong Kong."

A scheme of river widening is to be carried out by the Clyde Navigation Trust at a cost of £70,000. This project will facilitate the passage downstream of the Queen Mary's sister ship, the Cunard-White Star liner No. 552, now being built by Messrs. John Brown and Co., Clydebank, and of the two battleships which are being constructed in the

MACHA RUNS WELL

dy of Shalott's Success : Smart Time by Carnival Boy

OTTINGHAM, Tuesday Night.

[illegible] Cambridgeshire candidates, Lady [illegible] Shalott and Fairplay, were chiefly [illegible]ncerned with the finish of the Trial [illegible] Nottingham to-day. The honours [illegible] with Lady of Shalott, who gave H. [illegible] a comfortable ride.

[illegible] were handicapped on the same [illegible] in the more important race at [illegible]. The winner's weight was re[illegible] this occasion by H. Blackshaw [illegible] the 5lb. apprentice allowance. [illegible] noticed that whereas Fairplay was [illegible]essure almost throughout the last [illegible] of a mile, Blackshaw found it un[illegible] to move at all on Lady of Shalott. [illegible] of the field scarcely counted, for [illegible] unable to go the speed set by the [illegible]

[illegible] Shalott is a nice type of filly. [illegible] Fair Copy at Ascot, and was a [illegible] two-year-old. Her weight of [illegible] Newmarket is a most convenient [illegible] it is in her favour that she has [illegible] boy as Blackshaw to ride her. [illegible] of the race she is likely to [illegible] price at the next call-over on the [illegible]shire.

[illegible] Middlemas, the owner of Fairplay, [illegible]ams, trainer of Lady of Shalott, [illegible] themselves as satisfied with [illegible]ances of their respective repre[illegible]

Sprinting

[illegible] Boy gave a great display of [illegible] to win the Elvaston Plate in [illegible]—a record for the course. He [illegible] three-year-old, and to carry top [illegible] of 9st. 5lb. to victory was a good [illegible]. He made all the running, and [illegible] a canter. [illegible] he passed the post the winner was [illegible] lengths in front of Daring Duchess. [illegible], and he had never been asked [illegible] effort. Anaglypta raced by him[illegible] stand rails, and may have been [illegible]apped through this. He did well to [illegible] fourth.

It was with relief that the majority of the onlookers saw Melanin draw out from his rivals about three furlongs from the finish of the Sherwood Forest Nursery Plate. He was by far the best-backed candidate, but even after going into a clear lead T. Weston found it necessary to keep him going strongly.

Gay Sprite's Challenge

This was because Gay Sprite continued to go so well. The filly would not readily accept the situation, and she kept pegging away to cause Weston anxiety until he had safely passed the post. Although Knit-On was third, he did not ever seem likely to win. Lem-onn ran as though six furlongs would have suited her better.

Melanin is owned by Mr. F. Day, a son of the well-known trainer, R. Day. Mr. Day is a veterinary surgeon, and this was the first success gained by his colt.

Parole showed great gameness by the way she battled out the finish of the Bentinck Welter Plate. After she had taken the lead from Fonds de Caisse below the distance, Parole was beset by the challenge of Ard Macha. The pair engaged in a keen struggle, with Parole pulling out a little extra in the last hundred and fifty yards.

One of the most interesting aspects of this event was the close betting between three of the five runners. They were Ard Macha, Fonds de Caisse, and Parole. The winner was third favourite at 5 to 2.

Another Plating Success

Calf Love gained another plating success for Jim Russell in the Colwick Park Plate. Ably handled by the stable apprentice, G. Wells, she took the measure of the opposition some way from home to beat Broad Highway with comfort.

Coronation Girl, a hot favourite, ran modestly to finish third. The winner was bought in for 210 gns.

Boomerang held on in a great finish for the Welbeck Selling Plate to beat the favourite, Broad Oaks, by a short head. This was a "skinner" for the books, as Boomerang was the outsider of the party at 20 to 1.

The winner was sold to Mr. W. Hutchinson, owner of the second, for 310 gns.

WEATHERVANE NAPPED

Sidley Dee Preferred for Chesterfield Welter

[illegible] the Rockingham Handi[illegible] York to-day promised to provide [illegible]eful Cesarewitch trial. Last [illegible]ithdrawals, probably caused by the [illegible] of the ground, has played havoc [illegible] field, which will now contain only a [illegible]tes who also hold the engagement [illegible]ng-distance event at Newmarket. [illegible] circumstances it appears that [illegible] has little to do, and I con[illegible] as her to follow up her Ebor Han[illegible] gained over the course at the [illegible] here. She won fairly comfort[illegible] occasion, although the official [illegible] only a head. Since then she [illegible] going well in home gallops, and if [illegible] the stylish victory that I antici[illegible] may become the most fancied of [illegible]ley's entries for the Cesarewitch. [illegible] Act, whom she will meet on [illegible] terms at Newmarket, will be [illegible] rivals to-day. Peacock's [illegible] a better race this season [illegible] last time out when second [illegible] would have beaten the [illegible] receiving 5lb., at the dis[illegible] event, a mile and three[illegible]

[illegible] that Wellesley has Farsi right [illegible] form. Although the gelding has [illegible] turn of finishing speed, he has an [illegible] over some of the others on the [illegible] stamina. Harry Wragg, who rode [illegible] to victory in the Great National [illegible] Plate at Redcar, will again [illegible] mount on Captain Elsey's charge. [illegible] colt subsequently gave a poor [illegible] Great Yorkshire Handicap, he [illegible] out of calculations [illegible] be grounds to fancy the con[illegible]ley Tom, but the danger, if any, from Prudent Act. [illegible] Butters has declared his hand in the [illegible] Plate by scratching Khan Bahadur and leaving in La-Li. This filly, though not of the same class as some of his other two-year-olds, has shown that she is useful. While respecting her chance, I have a slight preference for Captain Boyd-Rochfort's representative,

WEATHERVANE

ROYAL OAK.

The colt is reputed to have made considerable improvement since he ran a good fifth to Khan Bahadur on this track in August.

Captain Boyd-Rochfort has a good line to the smart Northern-trained Hoity Toity through Unbreakable, who ran second to M. Peacock's filly here in the spring. Although Hoity Toity has not had a race since then, it seems safe to say that she will be a danger to the best.

SIDLEY DEE,

running for the first time in the colours of his new owner, Prince Aly Khan, may be the best to stand in the Chesterfield Handicap. The gelding put up a fine performance when winning easily under 9st. 4lb. at Doncaster last time out. He has most to fear from Paul Beg, who always runs his best races on the flat York course.

The handicapper has left few loopholes in the Middleham Nursery. One that may be a little leniently treated is who ran third to Ramayana II. at Gatwick, and now has 4lb. less to shoulder. I take this colt to score from Antecedent and Paracelsus.

GRAND DANCER FILLY

has a much easier task in the Derwent Plate than she had when attempting to give Tamasha 8lb. at Doncaster. She can now meet Tamasha on 15lb. better terms, and should turn the tables and win. Portworth is the pick of the others.

LE CHICANEUR

is preferred to Gentle Lily for the Apprentice Plate; and is expected to register a belated victory in the Lendal Selling Welter Plate.

HORNSEY RISE

CAMBRIDGESHIRE NON-RUNNERS

DONOGHUE ENGAGED FOR SPOT BARRED

W. R. Jarvis states that the King's horse, Fairey, will not run in the Cambridgeshire next week. Captain Boyd-Rochfort has not accepted with Ambrose Light, and his other horse in the race, Streamstown, is a doubtful runner at the moment. Pegasus and Pike Barn, both trained by Basil Jarvis, also have not accepted, nor has Constellate, trained by Captain O. Bell. Another nonrunner is Musoma from Walter Earl's stable.

Absence of rain is causing great anxiety to trainers. A heavy fall is needed to save the situation. The Yorkshire-trained Scarlet Princess, is one which is affected by the hard ground, and her trainer, H. Peacock, stated yesterday that she will not run unless there is rain.

S. Donoghue has been engaged to ride Spot Barred in the Cambridgeshire. The Kildangan trained gelding will run in the October Handicap at Haydock Park on Friday, in which race Donoghue will ride him, and then he will be sent to Newmarket. His weight in the Cambridgeshire is 7st. 11lb.

Gordon Richards's mount in the Cambridgeshire will be Never Surprised, as Le Bambino, who would otherwise have been his mount, is not to run. Beckhampton will be without a runner in the race, as it has been decided not to start Merina. Never Surprised is owned by Lord Portal, and is trained by F. S. Butters. He won the Great Foal Stakes at the last Newmarket meeting easily, beating Flag of Truce. The distance was one mile and a quarter, and Never Surprised was in receipt of 8lb. He has 7st. 12lb. to carry in the Cambridgeshire.

MISHAP TO SIGNATURE

Our Newmarket Correspondent is informed by Captain Boyd-Rochfort that Signature has rapped a leg. He only walked at exercise yesterday, and will continue with this easy work for the time being. Signature was second in the Goodwood Stakes in July on his last appearance in public. Previous to that he won the London Cup at Alexandra Park. Captain Boyd-Rochfort is also represented by Dytchley, who dead heated with Severino in the Newbury Autumn Cup, thereby incurring a 10lb penalty, which raised his weight to 8st. 12lb.

There was a great run in England yesterday on Maranta for the Cesarewitch, and he is likely to see a shorter price at the next call-over to-night than the 20 to 1 at which he was quoted on Monday. There were also many inquiries for Nadushka for the Cambridgeshire, 25 to 1 being accepted to win several thousand pounds.

Huxley may not run in the Cesarewitch. He is more likely to run in the Rutland Handicap at Newmarket, or the Newbury Autumn Handicap.

LIMERICK PROGRAMME

Interesting Steeplechases on the First Day

Train—Kingsbridge, 10.15 a.m.

In connection with the Limerick meeting a special train will leave Kingsbridge this morning at 10.15 and return to-morrow evening at 6.20 o'clock. Runners on the opening afternoon will be on the small side, but the two steeplechases promise to provide very interesting races.

Tote Double on Fourth and Fifth Races.

The Clare Plate will bring into opposition two recent winners in Lady Barney and Prince of Birds. Each has to shoulder a 6lb. penalty, and may not beat Kilmoganny, who has now come down considerably in the weights.

Class will be well represented in the Tradesmen's Plate with such as Lucky Fool, Rockquilla and Ahanesk engaged. Rockquilla is just now at the top of his form, and won a flat race at Listowel last week. He is given the preference over Lucky Fool and Ahanesk. Selections:—

NEWMARKET NOTES

Idaho and the Cesarewitch : Selections for York

NEWMARKET, Tuesday.

THE drying winds have now made the surface on the training grounds very firm and our trainers with Cambridgeshire candidates under their care are becoming anxious, although with the Limekilns at their disposal they are certainly much better off than many provincial stables.

H. Jelliss wants very yielding going for his Cesarewitch charge, Troun de l'Air, and this morning, with Paladin, he was working on the tan. They covered one mile and three-quarters at a useful pace. Troun de l'Air is only a plodder, and even if the ground does become heavy I should certainly look to a better class animal when finally summing up.

H. Leach's Allegiance, who comes into the reckoning for the Cambridgeshire as a result of his cleverly-gained victory in the Clare Handicap last week, was cantering. He has quite his share of weight with 8st., which is 1lb. more than Dan Bulger carried as a three-years old last year, but his connections are more than hopeful regarding his prospects.

The majority of our teams were on the Limekilns, and it was here that Ted Leader gave the Cesarewitch Stakes candidate, African Lily, a good stripped gallop over one mile and a half with Suzerain. Although in receipt of weight he did not go as well as Suzerain, but impressed as likely to make a show next week. Midstream proved too good for Red Squaw in a rousing pace gallop over seven furlongs, but it must be remembered that it would take an exceptionally smart animal to beat Midstream at home over this distance, and I still think that Red Squaw holds as good a chance in the Cambridgeshire as any other lightweight we have engaged.

Nikitina is a filly on the upgrade that the Machell House trainer will be placing to advantage shortly, judging by the way she went in a good pace gallop over five furlongs with Album, Rock Daisy gelding and Peace Pact gelding. Arriba Espana and Summertide were sent the same distance sharply. The latter was runner-up to Herbalist at Leicester, and last week ran a good race to finish fourth to Ann of Austria in the Hopeful Stakes here. I was particularly interested in Arriba Espana when he made his début behind River Prince last week. He did well to finish fifth, about five lengths behind. I confidently expect him to win the Askham Maiden Plate at York on Thursday.

G. Barling gave Termagant (E. Smith), Gallalane and Magnetique a rousing gallop. The last-named was genuinely fancied for the Melbourn Stakes over a mile and a half here last week, but was just beaten for a place. Judging by her finishing effort, I should say that she would do better over ten furlongs. Helen's Hill went very well in a seven furlongs gallop with Work and Play and Dark Folly, and Eulalie shaped so well in a good pace gallop over five furlongs with Sub Poena and Night Bird that I am inclined to believe that she is a little better than her form at our last meeting would suggest.

Major Beatty sent his Cesarewitch Stakes charge, Idaho, in company with Irish Guard, two miles at a nice pace. This three years old appears to stay well, and many shrewd judges have supported him on the strength of the good show he put up in the Grand Prix de Paris over a mile and seven furlongs in June.

Frank Butters sent Euclid II. and Goudea one mile and a quarter at an easy pace. The former, who pulled up lame at Newbury, is now thoroughly sound again. Near Relation, Noble King and others of the team had a couple of five furlong canters.

C. Leader gave Pack Ice (Perryman) a good stripped gallop over one mile and a half with Hedgeley Moor and Guiscard. Lord Derby's filly went very well, and I notice that her near at hand engagements includes the Newmarket Oaks on Tuesday next.

Madeira Knight led the Cambridgeshire candidate, St. Magnus, Fair Copy and Correa in a striding pace spin over ten furlongs, and Gynerium accompanied the two years old, Prato, Faros and Onslaught (Perryman), in a good pace spin over six furlongs.

Captain Boyd-Rochfort's team, including the Cesarewitch Stakes candidate, Signature, was restricted to cantering exercise.

Captain Whittaker's Tapageur, with Everything Goes and Actaeon, had a good pace gallop over ten furlongs. Golden Shore, with Peter Kane and Irish Butter, went one mile at a similar rate. Laureat II., who must now be Mr. Benson's hope in the Cambridgeshire, led It. D., Welltaken, Gothic and Crabhole over five furlongs at a nice pace.

Considering the number of entries we have at York to-morrow, we shall be rather poorly represented.

THE ENGLISH TEAM TO VISIT DUBLIN

A NEW HALL URGENTLY REQUIRED

The International Federation has arranged the following international fixtures:—

December 3—Wales v. Ireland, at Llandudno.
December 9—Scotland v. Wales, at Edinburgh.
January 20—Scotland v. Ireland, at Glasgow.
February 17—Ireland v. England, at Dublin.
February 20—Sweden v. Denmark, at Malmo.
March 4—England v. Scotland, at London.

National championships have been approved as follow:—

Nov. 29 to Dec. 4—Welsh Championships, at Llandudno.
Jan. 20 to Jan. 22—Scottish Championships, at Glasgow.
Jan. 28 to Jan. 30—Netherlands Championships, at Rotterdam.
Feb. 17 to Feb. 19—Irish Championships, at Dublin.
Feb. 28 to Mar. 5—English Championships, at London.
Mar. 2 to Mar. 5—Canadian Championships.
Apr. 1 to Apr. 3—French Championships, at Paris
Apr. 15 to Apr. 18—Danish Championships, at Copenhagen.

It will be noted that Ireland is to play three matches during the coming season, the fixture with Wales coming into the list again after a lapse of a couple of years.

The match against England, the most important contest of the season, has been arranged for Dublin, as also has the Irish open championship meeting, during which the English match should be played.

These fixtures emphasise the urgent necessity for a new Badminton hall in Dublin. The Elm Park Hall, which for the last ten years has been the headquarters of the Badminton Union of Ireland, is no longer available. It has to be relinquished, as an hospital is about to be built on the property on which it stood.

Efforts are being made to raise the money necessary to cover the expense of erecting a new hall. This would amount to some thousands of pounds, and it is to be hoped that clubs and players will make a generous response.

In the meantime, some of the clubs who regularly played at Elm Park are making arrangements for other accommodation. Sandford, which for many years was supreme in Irish badminton, and is still very strong, will play at Woodbrook. Pembroke, which last year entered three teams in the top division of the Midland League, will also play at Woodbrook. The Woodbrook Hall, situated near Bray, contains four courts, as compared with six in the Elm Park hall. It has before now been the venue of many big badminton meetings, and several clubs play there every year.

A suitable site for a hall nearer the centre of Dublin than Elm Park can at present be obtained, and a further reason for urgency is that expenses would be considerably reduced by utilising some of the material from the old hall.

CANTY'S The Big Fella, Mountmellick, Lansdowne Road and Curly Top went five furlongs.

COLLINS'S Joyeuse Garde, Baby Gal, Jovial Prince, Prim Roseland and two-year-olds had healthy exercise.

FETHERSTONHAUGH'S Clinty and Pulcher travelled a mile and a half. Anyway, Holy Smoke and others of the team were usefully employed over five furlongs.

ATHLETICS AND CYCLING

TRINITY TO RESIGN FROM N.A.C.A.

THE SUB-COMMITTEE'S DECISION APPROVED

Dublin University Harriers' and Athletic Club have decided to resign membership of the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland, and to apply for affiliation to the Irish Amateur Athletic Union.

The decision was come to at a meeting last evening in the Pavilion, College Park. Representatives of the Press were not admitted to the meeting, at the close of which the following statement was issued for publication:—

"At an extraordinary general meeting of the Dublin University Harriers' and Athletic Club it was decided that the club should resign its membership of the N.A.C.A., and apply for membership of the I.A.A.U.

"At the annual general meeting of the club, held in June, a sub-committee was appointed to report on the effect of the present athletic situation in the club. This committee having considered the matter fully unanimously reported that, should the club continue to be debarred from contests outside the Irish Free State, the effect would be very adverse to the club.

"The harrier section, in particular, would in all probability come to an end should present conditions continue. Under the circumstances, the sub-committee reported that they were compelled to recommend that the club should take the necessary steps to secure sufficient competition, and so should resign from the N.A.C.A.

"The meeting deplored the situation that had arisen, and the 'break' that had occurred in Irish athletics."

I.A.A.U. FIXTURES

Fixtures arranged by the Irish Amateur Athletic Union are:—December 4—Novices' cross-country, four miles. February 5—Junior cross-country, six miles. March 5—Senior cross-country, nine miles.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

CLEANING UP THE GAME

Move to Abolish the Dangerous "Split" Tackle

THERE is a move in the English Football Association Council Chamber to abolish the sliding tackle, or, as it used to be called, the "split."

"I should like to see the sliding tackle abolished," was one of the remarks made by Mr. William Pickford, the president, at a dinner in London on Monday night. Two of Mr. Pickford's colleagues on the Council supported him. One, a noted referee in his younger days, said: "The sliding tackle is dangerous. That is the way to broken legs and damaged ankles. You never saw that form of tackle in my time."

This latest step by the Association to clean up the game caused much discussion yesterday among club officials, and opinions seemed to be divided. Mr. Frank Womack, manager of Leicester City, said: "The sliding tackle would take some cutting out. It is not over done in the first division, and I doubt whether any match produces more than two such tackles, but, of course, I cannot speak for other classes of football. It is generally used by the full back when he is out of position and the forward is a yard or two in front of him. Then the defender uses it as a last resort."

Mr. Charles Paynter, the West Ham United team manager, said: "The sliding tackle will never go out of football. There is nothing wrong with a defender, when he has no other chance of clearing, making a slide, so long as he goes at the ball. The trouble is when a player makes a sliding tackle at an opponent's feet. In those cases it is definitely dangerous, and should be stopped. It is up to the referee to decide when the tackle is unfair, and, if necessary, to take drastic action. Why should a player be punished when, in a last desperate effort to get the ball, and on the spur of the moment, he slides at the ball, without intending to harm anyone?"

Mr. A. Turner, the Tottenham Hotspur secretary, expressed the view that, "if referees would stop penalising players for perfectly honest charging, such tactics as the sliding tackle would not be part of the game. When an opponent is on one foot a slight touch will put him over, and generally the referee deals with the incident as if it were a vicious charge. When defenders find the charge punished they have no alternative than to try another method."

VERY DANGEROUS, SAYS THE LEAGUE PRESIDENT

Mr. Joe Smith, manager of the Blackpool F.C., said: "The sliding tackle is not necessarily dangerous. To eliminate it from the game would be unfair to defenders, who repeatedly make it without infringing the law, playing the ball and never the man. Admittedly, in certain circumstances, it could cause an injury, but that is chiefly when it is employed recklessly. Referees should definitely discourage it in those circumstances, but to forbid it entirely would, I think, be an extreme measure."

Mr. C. E. Sutcliffe, the League President, who arrived at Blackpool yesterday for a League meeting, said, "We all know that the sliding tackle is very dangerous, and a referee has the right to penalise it. The Disciplinary Board of the League is trying to do all it can to make the game as clean and as attractive as possible for spectators as well as in the interest of players themselves. No one likes unfair tactics, and we shall not tolerate them. Up to now only one player has been suspended this season, and so there is not very much wrong with the game as it is being played just now. Everybody, the League officials, the public, football managers and directors, desire to have clean football, and we shall do all in our power to see that they get it."

Mr. J. Cochrane, Sunderland's manager, said that "it is not the sliding tackle which causes broken limbs in football; the sliding tackle is perfectly fair when the man plays for the ball. If Mr. Pickford had referred to the man going over the top of the ball I would have better understood his objection."

PLAYER HAS NO CHANCE AGAINST IT

There can be no two opinions (writes our Special Correspondent) regarding the injury that can be inflicted by a player, back or forward, who employs the "split." It is the most dangerous of all forms of tackling. Nor is it of recent development. Thirty years ago it was favoured in senior matches in Dublin, particularly in military matches, often with disastrous consequences to the player with the ball.

At Sandymount, Londonbridge road, and Whitehall, legs were broken by it, with a sickening crack; but, as a rule, if the referee—and we had first-class referees in those days—considered that the tackler played the ball the offence went unpunished. A player with the ball has no chance whatever of guarding himself against the possible consequences of such a foul tackle, especially when it comes from either side, as it frequently does, and as it is an almost certain means of bringing an opponent down, and saves hundreds of goals each season, expressions of solicitude on behalf of "the defender" is not to be wondered at. The late Mr. "Tom" Robertson, the old Glasgow referee, who as a player knew every trick in the game, and was immensely popular in Dublin football circles, would not stand for the "split"—the whistle went the instant he detected the intention of the "defender." Again, that form of tackle, as old as the game itself, has been the cause of more tempers being frayed and more "scenes" than any other kind of foul play.

It should be abolished.

Cheers for Ballyduff, who won the Grand National earlier in the season, returned the best time, 31.82 secs., and he will take a lot of beating, but the Northern dog, Strong Mutton, ran a very good race, and might spring a surprise. Desirable won by a head from Western Skipper, who had led until almost on the line. Western Skipper was subsequently disqualified from competing in the final on account of savaging, and Cosain Airde, who finished third, will go into the last round. Details:—

LAWN TENNIS

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE DAVIS CUP

FORMAL CHALLENGE SENT TO AMERICA

For the first time for five years Great Britain has to challenge for the Davis Cup, and the formality of throwing down the gauntlet to America was decided upon at a meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association Council in London. Britain has challenged the United States Association and will compete in the European zone. Thus, as in the days before Perry's supremacy, Britain's team will have to visit or entertain Continental countries. The same procedure has been agreed upon in regard to the Wightman Cup, but the women's international with America next year is to be played in England.

The United States Association has delegated the management of the competition in Europe next year to the International Federation, who, in turn, has appointed the International Calendar Committee to do the work. This committee will consist of representatives of Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy, and Mr. R. J. McNair has been appointed to represent Britain.

The Lawn Tennis Association has decided to nominate a team to take part in the Scandinavian championships in Finland from January 30 to February 5 next.

L.T.A colours have been awarded to C. E. Hare, F. H. D. Wilde, Miss J. Ingram and Miss M. E. Lumb. British badges and blazers have been given to E. R. Avory and D. W. Butler, and England badges to C. M. Jones, G. R. B. Meredith, Miss J. Saunders, Miss V. E. Scott and Miss M. Whitmarsh.

Miss Wilson, ex-Lady champion, made a reappearance in competitive golf in the women's autumn foursomes at Ranelagh and Roehampton yesterday.

GAELIC GAMES

LEAGUE PROSPECTS

Kerry and Cavan Preparing for the Replay

(By PAT O.)

DUBLIN'S junior hurling success over London-Irish last Sunday was welcome for many reasons. City teams had a lean year, and this victory is important at a time when reorganisation is in the air. It should have a heartening effect on Dublin's senior teams through the winter leagues' campaign in hurling and football. Should Dublin teams take the leagues in earnest from the outset, they can recover, through them, their old championship prestige. Kerry, Laoighis and Mayo in football; Tipperary, Cork and Limerick in hurling, paved the way to recent championship successes by sending out strong, well-trained teams for their league engagements at home and away.

Dublin's team to meet Monaghan at Carrickmacross in the opening round of the National Football League next Sunday will be selected from the following, who are to meet at Aston's quay at 11.30 a.m.:—J. McDonnell, D. Brennan (O'Tooles), J. Feeney, J. O'Dowd, W. McAuliffe, J. Brosnan (Clan-na nGaedheal), P. Bermingham, P. O'Reilly, S. Behan (St. Mary's), W. Malone, C. Hanway, H. Hanway (St. Lawrences), P. Houlihan, P. Mulhall, M. Wellington (St. Josephs), F. Cavanagh (Dolphins), T. Robinson (S. McDermotts), J. Teeling, P. Toolan (Parnells), J. O'Leary (U.C.D.), P. Henry (E. Hopes), J. Farrell (Ballyboughal).

Newcomers on the list are Farrell, Robinson, Toolan and Hanway (junior), and new blood is essential in a new competition. In Monaghan, the visitors will find a very useful side on their home pitch at Carrickmacross, but I think Dublin can win the first round and go far in the new league.

OPENING FIXTURES

Other interesting fixtures on October 10th are Louth v. Kildare, Wexford v. Meath, Clare v. Laoighis, Offaly v. Galway, the first-named counties playing at home venues. Kildare are again set on a team-building mission, and are trying out some young players, whilst Louth still rely on their 1937 team, who played so evenly and yet failed on vital occasions. They are youthful, however, and must do well in the league.

Meath, too, are consistent supporters of league games at home and away. They travel to Wexford next Sunday, and on their 1937 championship form Wexford will be favourites at their home venue. Laoighis look good against Clare, but Galway will have stout opposition from the young Offaly players, who were deemed unlucky in losing to Laoighis on a replay at Athy in the first round of this year's championship. Should counties arrange to send out their strongest sides, the success of the new competition is assured. Any slackness at the outset will reflect on the success of the league.

Already there are indications that the attendance for the Cavan-Kerry replay will again touch big proportions. As a rule, replays fail to hold the same appeal to the public as the drawn game, but very often they run them close where the quality of the initial game was high. No fault could be found with the September game on the score of quality and thrills. Many spectators rank it as the best game of Gaelic football ever played. It was too uneven in its stages, however, to be styled as a classic, like some of the Kerry-Kildare finals. Yet it had all the dramatic features of a great game.

Inquiries for booked seats have been enormous, and, despite the public notices by Mr. O'Keeffe, applications have crowded in, accompanied by cheques, postal and money orders. Some 3,000 lots of moneys have to be returned to the disappointed applicants. The replay attendance will depend largely on weather, but there is no denying the record public interest in the game.

KERRY TROUBLED

Cavan and Kerry players have resumed training in earnest. The Ulster champions, satisfied with their fine side, are retaining their formation. Kerry are still worried by at least three positions. It is remarkable that, while Cavan were a uniform lot, who played right well after a disastrous opening. Kerry, though much improved, were still most uneven. Six men stood out—O'Keeffe, Keohane, Myers, Dillon and the Landers pair. Candidly, the others were moderate. It was a wonderful six that took the team on their shoulders and saved the game. No wonder that Kerry are still troubled.

It is rumoured that Dingle's fine individual side may be strongly represented next time. Two powerful youths in Casey and Connors are mentioned, and it is hinted also that Murt Kelly may be brought back as full forward. Sufficient to write at present that Kerry have a lengthy list of young players in training, from whom they still hope to build the perfect side by a series of graded tests where men are being tried out in different positions and searching-matching.

BOXING

BACKING FOR GAINS AGAINST FARR

WELSHMAN SAID TO HAVE SIGNED WITH JACOBS

Larry Gains's two rounds knock-out of Charlie Rutz, the French champion, at the N.S.C. tournament on Monday has prompted the coloured Canadian's backers to challenge Tommy Farr for the Empire heavy-weight title and a side-stake of £1,000. "Gains is now fit to meet any heavy weight in Britain," said Mr. Harry Levene, his manager. "He knocked out Rutz in two rounds, while Farr could only outpoint the Frenchman over twelve rounds eight months ago in the same ring. It is also not remembered that Gains beat Maurice Strickland in Leicester a year ago. He is confident he can beat any man here, particularly Farr.

"The £1,000 will be deposited with the British Board of Control as soon as the Farr management say O.K."

A Reuter's telegram from New York says that Farr has signed up with Mike Jacobs, the New York promoter, for the next five years, according to Jacobs, who said Farr's first fight would be at Madison Square Garden on January 21st, 1938, against the winner of the fight between Arturo Godoy and Nathan Mann. Farr probably will have a second fight at Miami, Florida, in February.

BRITISH TITLES

IRISHMAN IN FEATHER-WEIGHT ELIMINATOR

The administrative stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control are to find a challenger for Johnny McGrory (Glasgow), holder of the British feather-weight championship, by holding an eliminating competition. The semi-finals of this will be—Johnny Cusick (Manchester), Northern champion, v. Spider Kelly (Belfast), Northern Ireland champion, and Benny Caplan (St. George's), Southern champion, v. Ginger Foran (Liverpool). The bouts have to be completed by November 30, and the final between the respective winners by January 31.

The stewards have decided that the Dave Crowley v. George Odwell fight at Wembley on October 19 will not be a British light-weight championship final eliminating contest. It will be regarded as an "eliminator," but the winner must oppose Harry Mizler, a former champion, for the right to challenge Jimmy Walsh (Chester), holder of the title. The final eliminator must take place before December 31.

BRAHAMS'S PLUCK

FOUGHT EIGHT ROUNDS WITH BROKEN JAW

It was revealed yesterday that Joe Brahams (Mile End) fought eight rounds against Benny Caplan (St. George's) with a fractured jaw at the National Sporting Club's tournament at Earl's Court, London, on Monday. Mr. Joe Morris, his manager, stated that Brahams underwent an X-ray examination and the fracture was discovered.

"Brahams complained to me at the end of the eighth round that his jaw was painful," Mr. Morris said, "but he did not make much fuss about it, and said that he would not give up while he had a chance of winning. The accident happened during this round, and at the end of the fight Brahams's jaw started to swell, and he went off to hospital for first aid treatment."

Brahams went to the full distance of fifteen rounds with Caplan before losing on points.

STRICKLAND IMPRESSES

Maurice Strickland, the New Zealand heavy-weight, showed impressive form, which augurs well for his fight with Walter Neusel, the German, on October 19, in a public work-out at Wembley Gymnasium yesterday. Strickland boxed six rounds, two each with George James (Wembley), Tommy Luscombe (Holloway) and Johnny Bartlett (King's Cross). He was speedy, and his left leads and left hooks, the main blows he employed, were beautifully timed. He also used a short right uppercut on several occasions to shake his partners. The work-out showed that Strickland is now probably faster than ever he has been.

BROADRIBB'S OPINION OF LYDON

In an interview on his return to England from New York, Ted Broadribb, former manager of Tommy Farr, said that he had in mind a young Irish boxer, who, he thought, would make a strong bid for the British championship. "This youngster is 25 years old Dominic Lydon, formerly in the Civic Guards. He has a harder punch than Farr ever had, and he is going to turn professional under my management," said Mr. Broadribb.

SWIMMING

ATTEMPT ON RECORD BY R. N. CASE

100 YARDS COVERED IN 60 3-10 SECONDS

There was a big crowd at the Tara Street Baths last night for the twelfth annual gala of the Republican Swimming Club. R. N. Case (Clontarf), the holder of the Irish 220, 440, 880 yards and mile records, made an attempt on the record for the 100 yards. The I.A.S.A. Handbook gives:—"Irish amateur record, 61 secs., by J. Beckett, 1909"; and "Irish amateur record for the distance, 58 3-5 secs., by Geo. S. Dockrell, 1911." Case had bad luck at his first turn, and again at the fourth turn at eighty yards; but, despite these misfortunes, he was officially timed by three watches to cover the distance in 60 3-10 secs., which beats the record of Dr. Beckett.

There seems no reason to doubt that he is capable of beating 58 secs. on his swimming for the first eighty yards in last night's attempt. He may make another attempt on the record at the gala of the University College S.C. on the 14th inst.

The 220 yards championship of the club for the Liam Mellows Memorial Cup was won by J. Davenport, and J. Jordan was successful in the 100 yards breast stroke for the Madame Markievicz Cup. Mr. Oscar Traynor, T.D., Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, was present. Details:—

20 Yards Points' Competition—Final—D. Wickham (1), 1; T. O'Leary (scr.), 2; J. Keating (3), 3. The cup for the greatest aggregate of points during the season was won by Keating (19 points), Wickham (18) being second, and T. O'Leary (17) third.

40 Yards Points' Competition—Final—T. Hannigan (scr.), 1; H. O'Donovan (1), 2; D. Henderson (5), 3. Time, 35 2-5 secs. The placings in the points' allocation were—T. Hannigan (22 points), 1; H. O'Donovan (21 points), 2; D. Henderson (6), 3.

Ladies' 80 Yards Handicap (Fitzpatrick Cup)—N. Wickham (scr.) 1; M. Ni Donnchada (4), 2; J. Callaghan (4), 3. Four competed. 68 2-5 secs.

FIELD TRIALS

OPENING DAY'S TESTS AT ATHY

The second annual trials of the Irish Field Trials Association opened under ideal weather conditions yesterday at Kilberry, Athy. There was a big attendance of local and South of Ireland competitors, and one of the largest cross-Channel entries on record. Among those competing were four English trial champions, including the winner of the English Championship Stakes.

The trials opened at 9.30, but only the Retriever Stakes were completed. Seven dogs still remain for trial in the Open All-aged Stake. Of these, there are two Irish, Mr. Verschoyle's Pointer, Ardreight Bang, and Captain J. Geraghty's Irish Setter, Darby of Woodley, and five English.

In the Retriever and Irish Water Spaniel Stake, Mrs. Nagle's Sulhamstead Dusty d'Or was awarded first. This dog was winner of the Challenge Certificate of the West of England Ladies' Kennel Association in 1935. He did wonderful work all through, one retrieve of a snipe a long way out across a ditch which rose suddenly being particularly smart and clean. Each of his retrieves was clean and quick, with perfect delivery, and his steadiness was outstanding. Mr. Willington's Labrador, Actress of St. Kiernan's, was second. She put up some good work with three pheasants, was quick out and in, and was perfect in delivery. Her only blemish was a slowness to find the particular bird for which she was sent. Mrs. Eustace Duckett's Labrador, Castlemore Belle, was third. She had a good nose, and showed steadiness, but was slow to return with game, possibly due to over-eating.

Scent throughout the day was bad, which lessened the dash and style of the work.

The finals of the International Stake will be run off to-day.

LEINSTER BRANCH MEETING

MR. G. P. HOGAN ELECTED PRESIDENT

Mr. G. P. Hogan was unanimously elected President for the season 1937-'38 of the Leinster Branch, Irish Rugby Football Union, at the annual general meeting in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night. Mr. Hogan, who succeeds Mr. R. D. Gray, outgoing President, has been a very popular figure in Leinster Rugby for the last thirty years, and his selection was sponsored by all the members of the Executive Committee. He played for University College, Dublin, from 1918 to 1925, and for Lansdowne from 1925 to 1933. On many occasions he represented Leinster in the inter-provincial games, and was twice picked to play in the Irish final trial.

Returning thanks for his election, Mr. Hogan said that in addition to feeling very honoured himself, he felt that honour had been conferred upon his club, University College, Dublin. He expressed the hope that all the players would enjoy themselves during the coming season: that was the thing that mattered.

In the course of his report, the hon. secretary, Mr. E. C. Powell, recorded that Rugby in Leinster continued on the upgrade. The number of clubs now affiliated was 71, an increase of 3 on last year. The branch congratulated the nine Leinster players who had been selected for international honours, especially George Morgan, who captained the Irish team.

The annual Hospitals' match in November had been losing its attractiveness for some years, and for the coming season it had been decided to substitute a match between the Combined Dublin Universities v. the Rest of Leinster.

Continuing, Mr. Powell commented upon the fact that during last season necessity arose for severe and unprecedented disciplinary action. The circumstances which had given rise to this, he said, had caused the Executive Council grave concern, but, on the whole, they were satisfied that the incidents were not symptomatic of any general deterioration in the observance of the rules and spirit of the game in Leinster football, and that it was most unlikely that there would be any repetition. The executive relied upon clubs, committees and players alike to make sure that this optimistic forecast was fulfiled.

In the course of a striking tribute to the late Dr. A. D. Clinch, Mr. Powell said that wherever Rugby was played Dr. Clinch had been known and admired. A great player, an able administrator and a keen critic, who served his club, his province and his country to the end, they all mourned the passing of 77one whose loss was irreplaceable.

The report was carried with acclamation.

Mr. E. T. McCarron, hon. treasurer, in his report, said that income for the year was £2,500, compared with £2,851 the previous year. There was a working loss of £60 on the year; there had been a profit of £398 the previous year. Drop in gate receipts was responsible for the difference in income over the two years. £4,860 had been expended on the Donnybrook ground. The Branch had been alleged to be in difficulties in connection with the extension to Donnybrook, said Mr. McCarron, but he wanted to make it quite clear that the Branch knew from the start that it would have to meet an expenditure of about £4,800.

It was decided to alter the rule covering Schools' Cup ties, so that in the case of a draw in any match other than the final, there should be a replay. Prior to the final the committee might decide that extra time should be played if on the expiration of the regular 70 minutes the match was a draw. The previous rule permitted extra time to be played in all Cup-ties.

The representative of Roscrea College objected to the decision on the ground that it would involve country schools in extra travelling and expense.

The following officers were elected:—Hon. secretary, Mr. E C Powell (re-elected); hon. treasurer, Mr. E T. McCarron (re-elected); hon. auditors, Mr. V. E. Kirwan and Mr. F. Corr (re-elected). Executive Committee—Mr. P. E Dunn (Bective Rangers), Commandant J. Gleeson (Blackrock College), Mr. O. L. Mahony (Clontarf), Dr. H. Michael (Dublin University), Mr. N. M. Purcell (Lansdowne), Mr. R. M. Scott (Monkstown), Mr. R. D. Gray (Old Wesley), Mr. C. E. Macauley (Palmerston), Mr. G. P. Hogan (University College), Mr. R. W. R. Watson (Wanderers). Representatives of the Schools section—The Rev. J. M. Finnucane, C.S.Sp., and Mr. C. D. Sutton; representative of the Association of Referees, Mr. T. Bell.

High tributes were paid to Mr. E. Taylor, secretary to the Branch.

THE JUNIOR MEETING

APPEAL FOR LARGER GRANTS FOR PROVINCIAL CLUBS

At the junior section meeting Mr. R. D. Gray (Old Wesley), President of the Leinster Branch, was in the chair, and there was a large attendance of delegates.

The report of the hon. secretary (Mr. T. L. McLoughlin) showed that four new clubs—Tullamore, Arklow, Drogheda and Carbury—were affiliated to the branch since last season. No less than forty-three clubs were now affiliated, nineteen of which were from the country.

The hon. secretary referred to the fact that 373 matches were played last season under the jurisdiction of the junior section and that the Association had supplied referees to all of them. He appealed to players who had given up active participation in the game to join the Association of Referees.

Messrs. D. Murtagh (Shannon Buccaneers), P. A. Conmee (Kildare) and P. J. Power (Naas) appealed for larger financial grants to the provincial clubs, and the matter was referred to the Finance Committee of the Leinster Branch.

Messrs. P. J. Power (Naas) and D. J. Daly (C.Y.M.S.) were nominated as representatives to the Executive Committee of the branch. There was a ballot for the election of three representatives to act with Messrs. Power and Daly on the Junior Committee, and D. P. McGowan (Balbriggan), J. C. Boucher (Old Belvedere) and F. Conroy (Lansdowne) were chosen.

Mr. J. L. McLoughlin was unanimously re-elected hon. secretary.

A vote of thanks to Mr. R. D. Gray, as President of the Leinster Branch, brought the meeting to a close.

"The Debtors' Paradise."—Islands on the River Shannon two or three miles from Kildysart, Co. Clare, which were publicly described at one time as "The Debtors' Paradise," owing to the refusal of the inhabitants to pay decrees issued by the District Courts, were paid a surprise visit three times last week by a party of Civic Guards, detectives and Court messengers. Up to the present it was not feasible to raid the islands because it was impossible to locally obtain any boatmen to row across the Court messengers. For a number of years the inhabitants enjoyed immunity from the jurisdiction of the Free State Courts, and as a result did not pay any rates. Last week, however, a motor launch obtained from Athlone successfully transported the legal raiding party to the homes of the islanders. A number paid their debts, while others promised to do so at the earliest opportunity.

DEALINGS IN HAMMOND LANE PREFERENCE

WAR LOAN FIRMER

Trading was only of moderate dimensions on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday and scattered liquidation put prices easier in many sections.

Great interest centred round the start of dealings in Hammond Lane Foundry Preference and there was a large turnover in the shares. They opened at 2s. 4½d. premium, but towards the close they eased to 2s. premium, but looked rather buyers at this level.

The Free State Funds held steady to firm, but, exceptionally, the Third National Loan eased to 108½. Land Bonds on a little support improved to 109. British Funds were in strong demand and War Loan advanced 6s. 3d.

Banks enjoyed support in places and Bank of Ireland Stock recovered to 317½ and Hibernians hardened to 12.

Guinness Ord. shaded off to 126s. 6d., but Power Deb. repeated 20s.

Rails remained in neglect and Alliance Gas Ord. held 34s. Arklow Pottery Pref. fell 1s. and Carroll Ord. drooped to 29s.

Cement Deb. and Clondalkin Paper Ord. showed small gains. Goulding Ord and Irish Cinema Pref. were pence lower. Solus Ord. made fresh headway to 22s. 6d.

British Industrials were a little more lively, but continued dull. Tobaccos and Textiles tended lower and Imperials gave way to 147s.

Dunlop Rubbers, "Emmies," Ford Motors and Imperial Chemicals all showed an easier trend.

Oils were again depressed and Burmah Oil dipped to 123s. 4½d. Mexican Eagles quoted 14s. 3d. and Canadian Eagles 13s.

LONDON WEAK

GILT-EDGED AGAIN IN DEMAND

The unsettled state of Wall street, uncertainty with regard to the course of French affairs, and a sharp setback in metal prices, were factors which operated unfavourably on sentiment on the London Stock Markets yesterday, and in consequence buying interest dwindled to extremely small dimensions. Trading generally resulted from liquidation, and prices in practically all directions quickly assumed a weak appearance, though the amount of stock which came on offer was comparatively small. The more speculative departments experienced a dismal session, and many of the leading Industrial shares declined rather sharply. The one bright feature was sustained investment buying of gilt-edged securities, which were again able to provide some good exceptions.

BRITISH FUNDS.

British Government Stocks commanded considerable attention in the gilt-edged market, and after displaying firmness from the start War Loan and Conversion 3½ per Cent. closed appreciably better; Local Loans and Old Consols also were prominent, and smaller rises were established by several other issues. Among India Stocks the 3½ per Cent. was outstanding with a gain of ½ to 93.

FOREIGN BONDS.

Foreign Bonds were still unsupported, with quotations moving adversely. Brazilians were unsettled by doubts as to the future service on the Loans. Japanese Bonds, although lower in places, showed a rather better tone, and Chinese descriptions also held up fairly well. Further small recessions in the leading Germans were the only notable changes among Europeans.

RAILS.

British Rails did not maintain their overnight cheerfulness, despite expectations that next week's traffics will prove encouraging. The market resisted surrounding dulness, however, and the junior stocks managed to retain part of the gains recorded on Monday. L.M.S. Ordinary eased to 32¾, while Great Western Ordinary shed ¼ to 66½. Foreign Rails quickly gave way in face of selling, and Argentines closed on a weak note. B.A.G.S. fell back to 22, while B.A. and Western lost a point to 19. Cordoba Central Debentures formed another dull spot. American and Colonial Rails were depressed by Wall street advices.

INDUSTRIALS.

Notwithstanding a further batch of good company announcements, Industrials continued to lose ground amid idle trading. Trans-Atlantics opened in dull fashion and were forced down by local selling. United States Steels touched their lowest level this year. The Iron and Steel section also showed several substantial declines, and considerably reduced prices ruled for the leading Motor shares. Quotations for Electrical Equipment, Aircraft and Building shares were also scaled down, and in other directions Triplex were a notably weak feature.

MINES.

In the Mining groups Kaffirs came on offer, and most of the Paris favourites registered sharp losses during the opening stages. Some improvement occurred later in the day, but, even so, S.A. Lands, Western Reefs, Ventersposts, and many others closed lower on balance. The leading West Africans were inclined to firm up, but Rhodesians, particularly the Copper shares, gave a disappointing display. Diamond issues continued to weaken in sympathy with De Beers Deferred, which were marked down on fears of further continental liquidation, while Tin shares were unsettled by the fall in the metal price.

THE MONEY MARKET

£1,000,000 OF GOLD SOLD

Gold to the value of £1,013,000 was sold in official dealings on the bullion market yesterday. Unlike Monday, when supplies for official dealings were cut down to about 40 per cent. of buyers' requirements, purchasers were able fully to satisfy their needs at the fixing. It is understood that the bulk of yesterday's sales came from the ex equalisation account, though some newly-mined gold was also available. The price was 140s. 8d. per fine ounce, 1½d. higher than on Monday. A premium of 3d. over the dollar at 4.9525 was shown in the price.

In Lombard street Day-to-day Loans were in quiet demand at ½ per cent., while bill rates were quoted at 9/16 per cent.—no change.

Silver was unchanged at 19 11/16d. an ounce for spot, and 19 11/16d. for forward delivery.

The French exchange remained more or less under official control yesterday. The French authorities were not, apparently, anxious to establish any rigid peg upon the rate, but during the early dealings they took advantage of the demand for francs, arising from speculative covering, to supplement the gold reserve, and when the tide turned later in the day, provided support for the franc at a materially lower level to avert a more severe slump.

Nervous selling was in progress later, and, while the spot franc lost only such ground as the French authorities would permit, forward discounts rose sharply. The revival of speculative pressure on the franc also had an adverse influence upon the belga. The dollar staged a modest advance against sterling under the influence of steady commercial buying, and this was shared by the majority of the European currencies.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

FRESH SPASM OF WEAKNESS

A fresh spasm of weakness spread over the Industrial market yesterday as a result of adverse Continental and American advices. Nervousness was also apparent with regard to to-morrow's settlement.

With Wall street in despondent mood the trans-Atlantic counters weakened afresh, and finished at practically the lowest of the day. U.S. Steels were noticeably weak, and fell to 75, while Nickels lost 2½ at 49⅞. "Emmies" were lowered 6d. to 19s. Cable and Wireless stocks continued to droop in the absence of support, the Preference closing ½ lower at 99 and the Ordinary ⅜ lower at 70⅝.

MOTOR SHARE LOSSES.

In the absence of demand a small amount of selling proved sufficient to cause dulness in the Iron and Steel section. Indian Irons proved a firm exception, the price improving 1/16 to 3 11/16.

Apart from Henleys, which met with a little support and advanced 6d. to 18s. 6d., Electrical Equipments had a dull appearance.

Several weak features developed among the Motors, and a generally dull tone prevailed. Standards were under pressure and finished ⅜ lower at 7¼, while Austins declined to 36s. 6d., and Fords gave way to 24s. 10½d.

Although changes, on the whole, were of small importance, prices in the Aircraft group presented an easier appearance. Rolls Royce reacted to 4⅞, Hawker-Siddeleys lost 9d. to 27s. 4½d., and Bristols slipped back to 48s.

GUINNESS DECLINE.

With few exceptions Breweries developed an easier trend, while declines of 6d. occurred in Distillers, Guinness, and Watney Deferred.

Apart from Gallahers, which held at 5 11/16 on the increase in the interim dividend, Tobaccos were dull. "Bats" and "Imps" were both 1/16 lower.

In the Newspaper group Odhams Press were a few pence better at 8s. 6d., but Daily Mail and General Trust, Daily Mirror and Associated Defd all eased a trifle.

Drapery Stores were no exception to the general trend, but prices did not alter to any material extent.

COURTAULDS STILL LOWER.

Among Provision and Catering issues Unilevers lost ground, the Ord. to 39s. 4½d. and the N.V. to 41s. 3d.

With few exceptions, Textiles continued to sag. J. and P. Coats receded to 44s. 7½d. The only firm spot was Wm Hollins, which gained the turn at 15s.

The Rayon group also remained out of favour. American Celanese reflected the adverse advices from Wall street and weakened to 5¾. Courtaulds receded further to 50s. 7½d., although a few buyers appeared at this level.

Shipping shares generally lost further ground. The Miscellaneous section made a poor showing, with most of the leading issues finishing fractionally lower on balance.

OILS DULL

Oil shares had a distinctly weak appearance at the start yesterday's prices, with hardly an exception, being marked down. While there certainly was some selling, realisations were at no time of a heavy character, and the declines which took place in quotations were out of proportion to the actual volume of business. French operators came in small buyers of internationals being tempted by the fall in prices, but business on account of both Paris and Amsterdam was of little importance, although it tended to make for a hard tendency in Continental favourites, which generally finished above the worst. Anglo-Iranians suffered to the extent of 1/16, while the Eagles were dull, although leaving off above the worst.

RUBBERS DEPRESSED

Sentiment in the Rubber Share Market yesterday was undermined by conditions in the commodity market, where heavy liquidation forced the spot price of rubber down to 8 1/16d. per lb. The dulness in surrounding departments was another unsettling influence, and it was hardly surprising, therefore, that the recent disposition to relinquish holdings became more widespread. Sellers were in evidence right from the start and, as there were few buyers about, even at the lower levels, dealers quoted considerably reduced prices in the late dealings. The market presented a weak appearance at the close, with Anglo Dutch, Kuala Lumpur, Sedenak, Rubber Trust and Allied Sumatra showing heavy losses.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIR MOVEMENTS MAINLY DOWNWARD

Conditions in the Mining market yesterday underwent no improvement. Indeed, business was still very slack in all departments, and there were rumours in circulation of possible difficulties, or, at any rate, big differences to be faced at to-morrow's settlement.

Kaffirs were still undecided, though there was again a modest investment demand for some of the dividend-payers and holding concerns.

Rhodesians were dull throughout the greater part of the day, and, in the absence of business, prices were inclined to droop. Later a more hopeful view was taken regarding the outlook for the Copper market, but the recovery, if it may be so called, came too late to affect prices to any great extent, and shrinkages were the rule.

The Rhodesian Section Trust, which has a 64 per cent. interest in Mufulira, announces a maiden dividend of 6d. per share—10 per cent.—which is in accordance with market anticipations. The shares were, however, distinctly dull, as were also Selection Trust, Roan and the other copper descriptions.

Diamond descriptions further receded. West Africans found few friends, and Australians made a very poor showing, while Barriers and other base metals were distinctly weak. Closing prices:—

I.C.I.'s Important Discovery

A new chemical compound, discovered in the Manchester laboratories of the dyestuffs group of Imperial Chemical Industries, was the subject of an exhibition opened yesterday at the Dorland Hall, Regent street, S.W.1. It is called "Velan," and it is a water-repellent for textile materials. But it is a water-repellent in chemical structure and application quite unlike those now in use, and it bids fair to revolutionise the whole scope and technique of textile proofing. It is the first water-repellent for textile materials to be permanently proof against washing, laundering and dry-cleaning, and the first to combine the qualities of a water-repellent and softening agent. Drinks and other liquids accidentally spilt on Velanised fabric do not penetrate the fibre, and can be shaken off. The existing range of waterproofing media is limited. Hitherto preparations of rubber or oil and cellulose lacquers have been used for heavy fabrics. These close the interstices of the cloth, making it airproof as well as rain-proof, and stiff and unpleasant to handle. For lighter materials the coating of the fibres with waxy preparations has given excellent results, but the serious disadvantage of this finish is that of impermanence, the proofing medium being removed gradually by laundering and immediately by dry-cleaning. "Velan" does not merely coat the fibres; it actually combines with them, giving rise to new compounds which are highly water-repellent. These compounds are not affected by laundering or dry-cleaning, and the proofing is therefore permanent. It is reported that Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., is negotiating to take over part of the site of Mossend Steel Works, at Mossend, Lanarkshire. About twenty acres will be used for the erection of new chemical plant, including that for the recovery of ammonia. Official confirmation has not yet been announced. The works were owned by William Beardmore and Co., Ltd., and were developed during and after the war into one of the best steel plants in Great Britain.

London Transport Places £250,000 Contract

London Transport has placed a £250,000 contract for the new Metropolitan station at King's Cross with Edmund Nuttall, Sons and Company, Ltd., of London. Work will begin immediately. The new station will lie under Euston road, a short distance west of the existing platform, and trains, which now go no further than Baker street, will continue to King's Cross. The Board's stations at King's Cross are used by nearly 40,000,000 passengers a year.

Textiles

Textile shares have been one of the outstanding disappointments in the Industrial market. Early in the year there was a good deal of indiscriminating buying on the part of people who had been advised to have a flutter in the market, and realisations on their part in consequence of the slowness of the improvement in the industry have resulted in the reaction which has brought prices down to the lowest level ruling during the past two years. Thus Coats at 45s. compare with the highest of 55s. 3d. this year and 66s. 9d. in 1936; English Sewing Cottons at 41s. with 49s. 3d and 47s 6d. respectively; Bradford Dyers at 6s. 9d. with 12s. 6d. and 11s. respectively; Calico Printers at 9s. 3d. with 15s. 6d. and 13s. 6d. respectively, and so on. Lancashire Cottons have come down this year from 23s. 9d. to 15s. Linen Threads have held their ground better, being quoted around 35s., as compared with the highest this year of 38s. 6d., and the highest in 1936 of 36s. 3d.

Baldwins to Redeem Debentures

Notice is given of the intention of Baldwins, Ltd., to redeem the whole outstanding amount of the 6½ per cent. Income Debenture stock on January 1, 1938 at £105 per cent., together with accrued interest, less income tax.

Gallaher, Limited

The share register and transfer books of the above company will be closed from 11th to the 23rd October, 1937, both days inclusive, for the purpose of preparing warrants for an interim dividend in respect of the year ending 31st December, 1937.

Graengesberg Iron

Iron ore shipments from mines of the Graengesberg group totalled 1,134,000 tons in September. This is a decrease of 97,000 tons compared with August. Shipments in September, 1936, were 861,000 tons. September is the last month of the Graengesberg Company's year, and shipments have amounted to 11,286,000 tons, which is 2,632,000 tons more than a year earlier. Iron ore export quotas are, it is understood, to be increased by 800,000-900,000 tons. Of this amount half will be sent to England and the rest to Germany.

Unilever Plan Accepted

According to Reuter, the shareholders at a meeting of Unilever, held in Rotterdam yesterday, unanimously accepted the reorganisation proposal. The Chairman, in an explanatory speech, pointed out that the principal change affected the Preferred Shares. In future holders would be entitled to the profits and assets of their own company, and need not share with the holders of Preferred Shares in any other company.

On the other hand, any surplus after full payment of dividends might be used to meet the claims of holders in another company if the profits or assets of that company were insufficient. The changes should result in considerable additional profit to the Dutch company, and would prevent the debt of £11,000,000 to the British company becoming a burden and exceeding the income from their newly-acquired interests. The position of the Ordinary shareholders remained as before, but the amalgamation in England would nevertheless give positive advantages to all shareholders.

Argentine Rails

The Buenos Ayres Great Southern is expected to announce to-morrow the preliminary figures in respect of the year ended June 30, 1937, and these, together with those of the three other principal Argentine railway companies, should show tangible improvement. During the period under review there has been an increase of over 14 per cent. in their gross receipts, but it remains to be seen how much thereof has been saved as net increase. At the annual meeting of the B.A. Great Southern last year the chairman stated that an increase of 11 per cent. in gross receipts would enable the Preference dividend to be covered, while a further increase of 6 per cent. should show 1 per cent. earned on the Ordinary stock. A year ago this company announced payment of a dividend of 1 per cent. for 1935-36 on the 5 per cent. Preference stock. The Buenos Ayres Western paid the full 5 per cent. dividend on the 5 per cent. Preference stock and 1 per cent. on the 4½ per cent. Preference stock. The Central Argentine Railway made a distribution of 3½ per cent. on the 4½ per cent. Preference stock. The distribution of the Buenos Ayres and Pacific, as well as of the Argentine Great Western, consisted of the payment of six months' interest on Debentures, on which the arrears dated from 1932.

HOSPITAL INMATE KILLS ANOTHER

HEDGE-HOOK USED IN ATTACK

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

OMAGH, Tuesday.

While patients were working at Tyrone and Fermanagh Mental Hospital to-day Patrick Leonard, aged 70, a native of Trillick district, County Tyrone, who has been a patient in the institution for a lengthy period, was killed instantaneously by another patient, who was armed with a hedge-hook.

The two men had been working with a squad of patients on the farm, under the supervision of attendants, and were engaged cutting down bushes, when the assailant raised the weapon, with which he hit Leonard the fatal blow over the head, inflicting a terrible wound and lacerating the brain. Leonard collapsed at once.

The assailant made off, but was soon recaptured.

Arthur O'Laughlin, dock labourer, of Glenard Parade, was admitted to the Mater Hospital, Belfast, suffering from a fractured skull received at his work. It was stated that he was slightly improved yesterday.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

ANOTHER BIG SLUMP ON WALL STREET

INFLUENCE OF ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Wall street again broke badly to-day. Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Chicago painted a very depressing picture of world political conditions and the gloom created by it was aggravated by other factors, chief among which were the waning confidence in American business revival, the failure to follow the recent rallies, the weakness of markets abroad and the growing belief that the President will convene a special session of Congress. The list ended with a decidedly weak appearance, securities of British interest recording losses ranging to some $5. Sales totalled 1,680,000 shares. The opening was easy and the market almost immediately was sold off anything to four points over a broad front. Unloading was active, with future foreign selling exerting a most unsettling influence. Before mid-day many issues had touched new low levels, for the movement with losses of no less than 6 to 7 apparent in Deere, Du Pont Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak. Steel Common dropped to under $75 before being given moderate support.

Persistent selling and discouraged liquidation continued to assail the market in the early afternoon, when falls extending to 6 were shown by the Steels, Minings and Farm Implements. Allied Chemical was particularly bad at this juncture, with a slump of $12. The Steel group was still influenced by the week's precipitate drop in mill activity and Steel Common at this point was as low as $73. The Rails and Utilities were inclined to resist the downward movement, the former keeping steady on renewed hopes of a higher freight-rate authorisation which would offset the cost of the wage agreement. Meanwhile, the brokers reported many buying orders under the market at "fancy" prices, which reflected the prevailing uncertainties.

Activity increased as the losses were extended in the later dealings and the "ticker" fell two minutes behind. Finally, however, a slight rally developed—notably among the Steels, Minings, Chemicals and Industrials—but the close was very weak. Exceptional losses were evident in a number of issues, among which Allied Chemical was $11 down.

Sterling exchange opened 1/16 down at 4.95 1/16, but improved to 4.95¼ during the morning. The rate remained at this level throughout the remainder of the session and closed ⅛ lower, compared with the previous close, at 4.95¼.

Silver was unchanged at 44¾.

VOLUNTARY SERVICE

A CAMP NEAR SCHWEIBUS

GERMAN WOMEN'S LABOUR SERVICE

SIX MONTHS UNDER STRICT DISCIPLINE

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

I HAVE just spent some days in a German Women's Labour Camp. There are now 545 of these camps for women in Germany. The 10,000 young women now in the Labour Service are being joined by another 10,000.

I felt that I would like to know something about this movement, in which 20,000 young women between the ages of 18 and 25 from all classes of society voluntarily live for six months with the utmost frugality under strict discipline, and work six hours a day digging potatoes, tending cattle, cooking or scrubbing in some peasant cottage.

Setting out for the day's work.

Some good friends of mine in Berlin arranged the visit for me through the authorities. I had to supply them with a synopsis of my life and two photographs of myself—a quite natural precaution to take before allowing a foreigner to stay as a guest in a Government institution. Quite shortly came back the permission. They chose one of the camps in the east of Germany near Schweibus. As I left Berlin behind me on that Friday morning I felt a certain amount of trepidation. I had heard many tales of the severity of life in the [illegible] I am not much given to [illegible] At the little wayside station [illegible] a rather stern-looking [illegible] khaki uniform of the Women's Labour Service. (I discovered later that she was not as stern as she looked.) She greeted me, told me to wait a moment, and disappeared, returning in two minutes with a bicycle in each hand. My heart sank. It is twenty years since I rode a bicycle. But I knew that I was already considerably privileged in being allowed to visit the labour camp at all, so to cavil at the means of locomotion provided by my hostess would have been churlish. After several attempts I succeeded in mounting the bicycle; my companion had gallantly strapped my luggage on to the back of her machine, and off we went. I decided cycling must be like swimming—once you learn it you never forget. Nevertheless, I could have wished that the five miles to the camp had been shorter by half. Getting off the wretched machine was another story. Luckily I found a convenient doorway and propped the bicycle against it while I clambered off.

LIP-STICK PROBLEM

Down the path to meet me came the leader of the camp, Fraulein Kottmaier. I felt rather like a new girl at school. In those seconds while I walked towards her there flashed through my mind: "Heavens above, I've got lipstick on." I tried to remember how much lipstick I had put on that morning, and whether I had remembered to powder over it so that it did not look too glaring. I gave as well a hasty thought to my finger nails and thanked my lucky stars that I have never been a disciple of the blood-red school. I hoped my "light-rust" might pass unnoticed. Whether it did or not I never found out; but, by the warmth of the welcome I was given from both the camp leader, and later from the girls themselves, I conclude that if they did notice these things they absolved me on the grounds that I was English, not German.

It was by this time about one o'clock, and the girls of the camp were still at their work in the neighbouring village and settlement. While we waited for them to come back the leader showed me around the camp. It is established in what was the dower house of a castle, and stands just inside the castle gates. On the ground floor was the camp common room, a big diningroom, with four long tables of wood, scrubbed to a dazzling whiteness, walls distempered in sunshine yellow, and in the centre of one long wall what they called their "flower window," a wide windowsill banked with growing flowers. On the tables also were bowls of flowers.

Beyond the diningroom were model kitchens and laundry rooms.

On the first floor the bedrooms were arranged. Ten or twelve girls slept in each room in double-decker bunk-like beds. The bedding consisted of a straw mattress, no pillow, and a blanket folded and covered by a cover of blue and white check linen. (I slept on a straw mattress myself, and found it quite comfortable.) On this floor also was the washroom, where each girl had her own bowl and small bench.

The floor above was occupied with locker rooms for clothes and shoes. Each girl had a locker, with a key, in which she kept her clothes and personal possessions.

There were thirty-eight women in this particular camp, including the leader and two assistant leaders. Their ages varied from 18 to 25 years, and I was somewhat surprised to find that the average age seemed to be about 21 years. I had expected the majority of the girls to be nearer 18 years old.

RETURN FROM WORK

As we finished our tour of the house the girls began to return from their work, some on foot and some cycling. They were wearing their working uniform, a butcher-blue drill dress, with short sleeves and Peter Pan collar, a pinafore of navy blue, spotted in white, and a red kerchief on their heads. A very neat and practical uniform it looked. They seemed cheerful and happy coming up the road in twos and threes chatting and laughing. When they saw us they gave a friendly "Hail Hitler." There was nothing military about their greeting. The days when one used to have the feeling that the German's greeting of "Hail Hitler" held something of defiance in it have gone; it has become almost as benign a salutation as the Bavarian's "Gruss Gott."

On their return to the camp the girls changed for their leisure hours into their own private clothes, and we all gathered in the big dining-room for dinner. It was a very good dinner, too, of a simple kind. Rissoles we should call them, the Germans call them Hamburger steaks, and boiled potatoes. Two of the girls are detailed each week for kitchen service and they prepare the meals, another two are on table service, which consists of laying the table, clearing away and washing up.

After dinner everyone went to bed for one and a half hours. There was no compulsion to sleep; they could read or sew if they wished; but most of them, after six and a half hours work in field or cottage, were only too glad to sleep for this time.

At 4.30 they assembled again in the dining-room for a short period of instruction by the camp leader. On this particular afternoon she was talking about the position of the farmer and peasant in the life of the nation, glorifying country life and the people who work on the land. Three times a week this period of the day is occupied by lectures, and on the other two afternoons by folk dancing and handwork. Saturdays and Sundays are recreation days.

SUPPER-TIME

At 6.30 came supper; cocoa made with milk, rounds of rye bread spread with gherkins or sausage meat, and a delicious salad. The salad was so good that I asked how it was made and was told that it consisted of white cabbage finely shredded, chopped apples and gherkins, with an oil and vinegar dressing.

Supper is usually followed by one of the girls reading aloud from a newspaper, but just as we were starting with this a knock at the door hailed with wild enthusiasm by the assembly announced the arrival of the two assistant leaders of the camp, returned from the Reich Party Days in Nuremberg, which they had attended as delegates from their camp.

For the next hour they entertained us with a graphic description of their experiences, tumbling over one another in their eagerness to tell us all about it. In the middle of all the description of camps and uniforms the young voices dropped to an awed whisper. "And . . . then . . . came . . . the . . . leader."

Certainly Hitler has the whole-hearted adoration of the young people of Germany.

At 8.25 we all trooped out into the garden and assembled around the flag staff, with arms raised at the Hitler salute while the flag was lowered.

The Women's Labour Service has its own flag, a swastika flanked by ripe ears of wheat.

PHYSICAL JERKS

At 5 o'clock next morning I was awakened by the sound of scurrying feet, and rolled out of bed just in time to see my comrades, in their neat shorts and vests, set off for a sharp ten minutes of physical jerks in the open air.

The next half-hour was devoted to washing, dressing, making beds and putting rooms in order. Five minutes before six o'clock we assembled again while the flag was hoisted. Six o'clock was breakfast time. Breakfast consisted of milk soup and rye biscuits. Milk soup is a kind of gruel made with milk, thicker than English gruel, but rather thinner than our porridge. A second breakfast arrived at 9 o'clock for those who were working in the camp. The peasants for whom they work usually provide the girls with an equivalent meal.

At 7 o'clock the Arbeitsmädchen set out for their work in the neighbouring fields and cottages. Later in the morning I went round to see them at it. In the first house the "arbeitsmaid" was busy making cake for the family tea; the other side of the road another was up on the top of a threshing machine lending a hand. Just along the way we looked in through a kitchen door and found the arbeitsmaid mopping the floor. Another visit discovered one of them in the cowshed milking the cows.

I asked one of the peasant women how she liked having a strange young woman sent to help her. She told me that at first she and her neighbours were a bit doubtful about the idea, but once the awkwardness of the first few days had worn off they all found the extra pair of hands a great help. She said: "We have come to a very happy understanding with our work girls." But it was not necessary to tell me this. I could see for myself that these young girls were tremendously popular in the village. They work for six weeks in the same place, and then change around to give them each a diversity of experience. The young woman who was showing me around took me to the cottage where she had worked for the first six weeks, and which she left a fortnight before. The joyous greetings she received from the whole family spoke well for the success of the labour camp idea.

A HOLIDAY

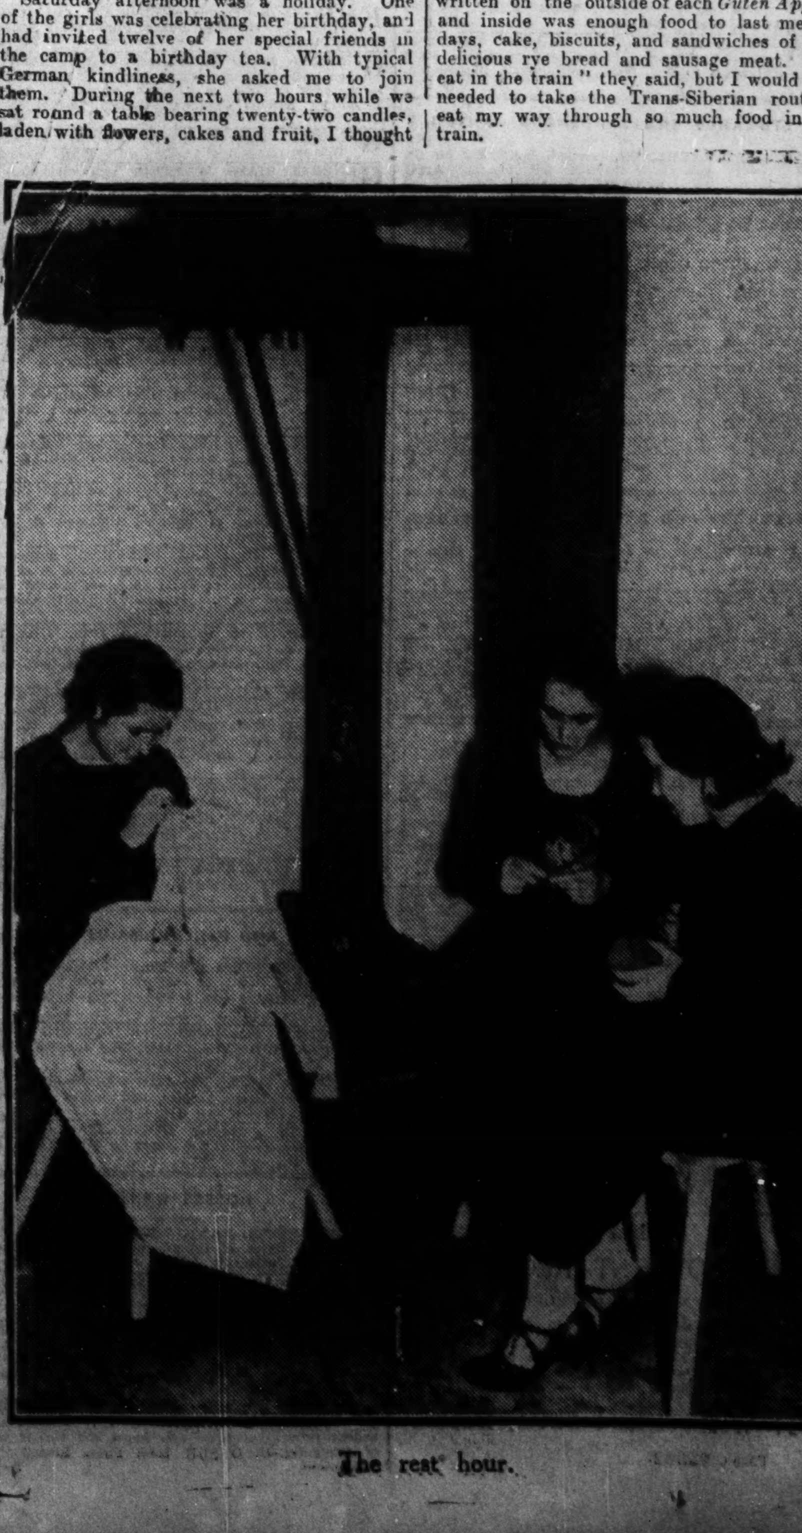
Saturday afternoon was a holiday. One of the girls was celebrating her birthday, and had invited twelve of her special friends in the camp to a birthday tea. With typical German kindliness, she asked me to join them. During the next two hours while we sat round a table bearing twenty-two candles, laden with flowers, cakes and fruit, I thought many times with smiles of the tales of military discipline which I had heard existed in these camps.

Discipline, of course, does exist, but the position between the camp leader and the girls seemed to me to be very similar to that between a prefect in an English boarding school and the girls of her form or house. The atmosphere was one rather of co-operation than of command and obedience.

The next day, Sunday, was visiting day at the camp, the day when parents and friends may come to see the girls, or take them out for the day. Those who had no visitors went off for walks or cycle rides, and several of them set out to visit their "settlers." After working in the kitchen all the week, they go to tea on Sundays and are entertained as guests of honour in the parlour. In many cases they were going back to see the people they had worked for during their first six weeks.

I spent most of the Sunday talking to one or other or groups of girls. It was interesting to hear about their different circumstances. They came from all districts of Germany and from every social circle. For the most part they were undertaking the service voluntarily. The only instance when the six months Labour Service is compulsory for women is in cases where girls wish to enter universities, they must first do the six months labour service.

I was quite sorry when Sunday evening came and I had to leave. They all came out to see me off and thrust into my hands and pockets half-a-dozen odd shaped parcels. When I had time to inspect them I found written on the outside of each Guten Appetit, and inside was enough food to last me two days, cake, biscuits, and sandwiches of their delicious rye bread and sausage meat. "To eat in the train" they said, but I would have needed to take the Trans-Siberian route to eat my way through so much food in any train.



The rest hour.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

THREE NEW COTTON LOANS ESTABLISHED.

The Commodity Credit Corporation has established three new loan classifications of cotton of which the grade and staple are not sufficient to meet the qualifications of the nine-cents loan. The new loans are (a) 8¼ cents on ⅞" staple and the better classing of strict low middling; (b) 7 cents on shorter than ⅞" strict low middling, and (c) 6 cents on shorter than ⅞" low middling. These supplementary loans were made following a flood of requests from regions where short staples and low grade cottons are produced. According to the Commodity Credit Corporation these new loans will provide for the orderly marketing of the remainder of the crop not covered by the provisions of the original loan. At the same time it was stated that cotton was moving in under the loan fairly slowly, it is estimated that so far only from 50,000 to 60,000 bales have been pledged. The slow movement is attributed by the C.C.C. to factors governing the working of the loan programme.

KREUGER AND TOLL CLAIMS DISALLOWED.

Objections to claims to the value of $41,394,000 on the Kreuger and Toll Participating Debentures which sustained yesterday by the New York Federal Court, which, agreeing with the Swedish Supreme Court, ruled that the allowance of the claims to American certificate holders would constitute preferential treatment. This decision reverses the earlier opinion held by the Referee in Bankruptcy.

NATIONAL CASH REGISTER SALES.

The National Cash Register Company reports that domestic sales during September declined 10.6 per cent. from September last year. The fall is regarded as reflecting hesitancy in the retail trade.

SHARP DROP IN AMERICAN TELEPHONES SUBSCRIBERS.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company gained 9,740 telephones during September, compared with 23,129 in September, 1936.

PRIVATE ESTIMATES OF COTTON CROP.

The New York Cotton Exchange estimates the total cotton crop at 16,575,000 running bales. The Fossick Bureau estimates the condition of the cotton crop at 77.3 per cent. and the total crop at 16,520,000 running bales.

PRIVATE ESTIMATES OF THE GRAIN CROPS.

Mr. H. Donovan, of Thomson and McKinnon, estimates the indicated crop of spring wheat at 200,000,000 bushels; that of maize at 2,615,000,000 bushels, and that of oats at 1,150,000,000 bushels. Mr. N. Murray, of Clement Curtis, estimates the indicated spring wheat crop at 205,000,000 bushels, the maize crop at 2,653,000,000 bushels, and the indicated crop of oats at 1,134,000,000 bushels. Mr. Murray also estimates the production of spring wheat in the three prairie provinces of Canada at 161,000,000 bushels. Mr. B. W. Snow, of the Bartlett Frazier Company, estimates the indicated crop of spring wheat at 188,000,000 bushels. The condition of the maize crop is estimated at 75.2 per cent., and the indicated crop at 2,598,000,000 bushels. The indicated oats crop is estimated at 1,161,000,000 bushels.

Motor Tractor Fines.—Fines totalling £32 were imposed on Thomas Early, Longwood, County Meath, at Ballivor District Court yesterday, for using a motor tractor which was not taxed or insured, and on which there were no identification marks. The defendant did not appear.

Depot Visited.—Major R. B. Leslie, M.C., formerly of the Lincolnshire Regiment, yesterday paid an unofficial visit to the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers at Omagh. Major Leslie, who recently gave up the command of the Ceylon Defence Force, is proceeding to Singapore on 14th October to take over command of the 1st Battalion of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

PLANTING OF ROSES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

All sections of the great rose family, and especially the now universally popular hybrid tea, delight in a good, deep, friable, loamy soil; but if the position is unduly damp or cold, some system of drainage must be adopted, and the soil lightened by the addition of leaf-mould, mortar rubbish, or sand. Even in the most highly-worked garden soils, it is a good plan to work in some fresh compost at the time of planting; and for this there is nothing better than the top spit of an old pasture, chopped up with some well-decomposed cow manure, and a liberal sprinkling of sharp sand to keep the compost sweet and porous.
